Partial atom ban sought

Nixon arrives in Moscow for talks with Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon arrived in Moscow today for his third summit meeting with Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. The President hoped his visit would produce a partial ban on underground nuclear weapons tests and a slowdown on nuclear arms development by the two superpowers.

Brezhnev was at the VIP Vnukovo Airport, decked with American and Soviet flags, to welcome the President. Two years ago when Nixon arrived in Moscow for their first summit, Brezhnev did not go to the airport to greet him. His presence today was seen as a sign of regard for the American president.

The President, with Mrs. Nixon on his right, smiled and waved as he walked down the ramp of the blue and white presidential jet under bright, sunny skies. A crowd of about 400 persons was at the airport to greet Nixon.

Nixon first reviewed an honor guard, which hailed him with the cheer, "We wish you health." He then heard a military band play the Soviet and American national anthems. Then he and his wife shook hands with some persons in the crowd, who were waving small American and Soviet flags.

Brezhnev and Nixon smiled frequently and chatted with each other as they walked through the crowd, and Nixon waved several times to the well-wishers, who included a contingent from the American Embassy.

Nixon then watched a brief military parade, headed into the airport lounge and prepared to motor into the city.

At the President's first Moscow summit, in May 1972, the Soviets accorded Nixon a cooly correct welcome and Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny was the chief greeter.

U.S. won't accept atom disadvantage

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Nixon administration, in a presummit tactic, has put Soviet leaders on notice that it will not accept a nuclear disadvantage and is prepared to continue the arms race "as long as we must."

At the same time, the administration has taken the precaution of notifying the American people that they shouldn't expect too much in the way of weapons controls from President Nixon's Kremlin talks with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The double set of signals was flashed at a Brussels news conference Wednesday night by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The United States probably retains an over-all weapons advantage because of its edge in deployed warheads and delivery systems, Kissinger said. But there has been a technological explosion since the 1972 interim nuclear arms treaty that puts pressure on both the big powers.

On the Soviet side, missiles with multiple independently targetable (MIRV) warheads may soon be deployed, Kissinger reported. But he added, "at what rate they will deploy them, it is not yet fully possible to foretell."

The secretary said that unless Washington and Moscow can agree on limitations within the next 18 months, it will be almost impossible to reverse the development of Soviet arms.

"It becomes harder with every passing six-month period," he noted glumly. "One reason, obviously, is the high cost of setting up a MIRV system."

Kissinger said the differences between the two governments on how to calculate their strengths to reach an agreed standoff are so great that a ban on offensive systems "will certainly not be completed in the form of any permanent agreement on this visit."

Moreover, he said, "it is impossible that there will be an extension of the interim agreement unless it is tied to some substantial agreement on multiple warheads, and that probably will also not be fully achieved at the summit."

He said an agreement in principle could emerge from Nixon's third annual meeting with Brezhnev, as well as a ban on some underground tests.

THE WIND will definitely be a factor in future tests of the disaster alert siren mounted atop the roof of the Courthouse building. . .

Washington C. H. Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen reported to City Council members Wednesday night on the test conducted last Friday. . . He said that at the time of the test there was a wind of between five and eight miles per hour. . . The wind affected the siren blast in such a manner that it was only heard in the vicinity of the Kroger Co. complex on the west end of the city, but as far as Bloomingburg to the east. . .

The disaster alert siren will be sounded on the first day of every new season. . . The tests are conducted at 12 noon. . .

REPORTS indicate that a surprisingly large number of parents have purchased or ordered copies of the fast-selling book "Down Through the Golden Years" for their children. . .

Author B.E. Kelley said many others are buying the book for birthday or Christmas gifts for friends and relatives. . . The author said the largest single sale to date was 12 copies. . .

Nearly all of the 500 copies from the first printing have been purchased, with the exception of some on reserve, and about all of the 250 copies from the second printing have either been pledged or purchased, according to Kelley. . . .The book, priced at $15.60, can be purchased at the Fayette County Museum from 2 until 6 p.m. daily. . .

Parking meter fines hiked

Legal counsel to collect unpaid city income taxes

Washington C.H. City Council Wednesday night agreed to employ legal counsel to prepare proceedings for the collection of delinquent city income taxes.

Council members also approved legislation to increase parking meter fines and accepted an application for the annexation of a tract of land into Washington C.H.

The city's legislators withdrew a piece of legislation pertaining to the posting of gasoline prices at Washington C.H. service stations, tabled an ordinance dealing with the closing of an alley, reviewed two liquor permit applications and discussed a new street lighting proposal for Columbus Avenue.

AN EMERGENCY ordinance employing Hess and Simpson attorneys, 226 E. Market St., as legal counsel to begin preparations for the collection of three-year-old city income taxes was unanimously approved.

The Washington C.H. law firm will be seeking the payment of delinquent income taxes from approximately 200 city residents. The city income tax was levied in 1971.

The fee charged by the law firm will be $3,300. The money to pay the fee will be derived from the unpaid taxes which are collected, according to a provision in the ordinance.

City Manager Dan Wolford said a total of 500 delinquent tax cases have been shaved to under 200 as early last year the city contacted many of those who had not paid and collected on 333 of the cases.

Additional coverage of Wednesday night's City Council meeting can be found on page 8 of today's edition.

The remaining delinquent taxpayers have been notified at least three times by mail, according to Wolford.

The city has been attempting to collect the remaining unpaid taxes, but has been stalled by personnel changes in the city solicitor's office and an overloaded court docket.

Wolford said all of the cases fall within the statute of limitations for prosecution. He said the city has six years to prosecute those failing to file or those who filed fraudulent tax returns.

Prior to action on the measure, Council chairman John E. Rhoads said the Sugar Creek Packing Co., located in the city's Industrial Park, paid "a substantial amount" of delinquent income taxes Wednesday.

Council member Bertha McCullough questioned whether the firm had any advanced knowledge that the ordinance would be appearing on Wednesday's agenda. Rhoads assured Mrs. McCullough the company did not.

FOLLOWING a lengthy discussion concerning the present parking meter fine structure, Council members agreed to increase the penalties for violations.

Presently, there are seven parking violations. The standard meter violation is established by the city; the others are determined in Municipal Court.

The present fine structire is 50 cents for the first 24 hours; $1 if the fine is paid within 10 days; $2 for the payment of a fine after 10 days, and $5 after the violator has been notified by the city.

After a suggestion by Councilman Billie Wilson, the fine structure was established as $1 within the first 24

HHH manager, fund scheme linked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Senate Watergate committee says it has evidence Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's former campaign manager helped engineer a scheme to funnel $137,000 in illegal corporate aid to Democrats, including Humphrey.

The campaign manager, Minneapolis attorney Jack L. Chestnut, refused to testify under oath about the affair on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself, the staff said in a confidential report.

A former top campaign aid to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, Joe P. Johnson, also invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify about apparently illegal aid to Mills' brief 1972 presidential campaign, the report said.

It said Humphrey's 1972 presidential campaign got $25,000 in apparently illegal corporate aid from the nation's largest dairy cooperative, Associated Milk Producers, Inc. The $25,000 was part of $137,000 in illegal AMPI contributions, the report said.

And, in separate donations, it said, Mills' presidential effort got corporate aid of $75,000 from the milk producers and $1,000 from a sister dairy co-op, Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.

Also, both Humphrey and Mills received previously undisclosed campaign gifts of $1,000 each from Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, Co., the report said.

A spokeswoman for Humphrey said he had not seen the report and "he won't want to comment on it until it is in its final form."

Mills could not be reached for comment.

The report said both Humphrey and Mills had been asked to submit to interviews with one of the committee's members, but that neither had complied with the request.

Humphrey sent a letter saying that he knew nothing about the matters being investigated. Mills, after being asked twice to cooperate with the committee, sent word through a lawyer that he would do so at some later time, but so far hasn't arranged a meeting.

Humphrey also failed to produce all the documents sought by committee investigators, the report said, indicating failure of Mills and Humphrey to cooperate fully hindered the investigation.

The report, a copy of which The Associated Press obtained, was circulated to committee members Wednesday but hasn't been adopted.

One section of the two-volume report focuses on Chestnut's role in the payment of $137,000 to a Minneapolis computer-mail firm for lists of potential Democratic voters used by Humphrey and other Democrats in 1971.

The report cited no evidence that Humphrey or the others who benefited from the arrangement were aware themselves that corporate money was paying for the lists, which were compiled for use in Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas and South Dakota.

Ehrlichman trial jury being picked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among the likely witnesses in the trial of John D. Ehrlichman and three others accused in the plumbers case are a former president of Cuba, a former Treasury secretary and two policemen from California.

The four were among 57 listed as likely to appear in the trial that began with jury selection Wednesday and continues today.

They are Dr. Carlos Prio Socarra, Cuban president from 1948 to 1952, ex-Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Michael Haigwood and Clinton Brickley of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Former and present CIA officials, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Rep. Guy Vanderjagt, R-Mich., also are expected to appear.

Some may be called to testify to the character of one of the defendants. For example, Vanderjagt lived two doors from Ehrlichman before the White House aide resigned more than a year ago.

Ehrlichman, G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio L. Martinez are accused of violating the rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Dr. Lewis Fielding's Beverly Hills, Calif., office was broken into Sept. 3, 1971, in a fruitless search for Ellsberg's files. Fielding's name also appears on the prospective witness list.

The defendants are accused of conspiring to obtain the psychiatric files of Ellsberg, former Pentagon analyst who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

St. Clair request rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney James D. St. Clair is opening President Nixon's impeachment defense before a House Judiciary Committee that has rejected his request that six witnesses be called on Nixon's behalf.

The committee agreed Wednesday to call two witnesses suggested by St. Clair and said the others may be called if staff interviews indicate they have pertinent information to provide.

An effort to win approval of St. Clair's full list of witnesses failed on a 19-19 tie vote that produced a sharp partisan split in the committee and may have influenced some Republicans to vote against impeachment.

Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., who offered the losing motion to expand the witness list, said he still was undecided about how to vote. "But if I don't hear from the witnesses I want to hear I'll never vote for impeachment," he said.

Rep. Thomas F. Railsback, R-Ill., also undecided on impeachment, said he thought the committee had made "a very bad mistake" in rebuffing St. Clair.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—Former Nixon aide John D. Ehrlichman and three White House plumbers went on trial in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

—A confidential staff report of the Senate Watergate committee said former top campaign officials for Hubert H. Humphrey and Wilbur D. Mills have refused to testify about apparently illegal campaign donations.

The Judiciary Committee named five witnesses who definitely would be called and listed five others to be interviewed by the staff to see if their testimony is wanted.

To be called starting next Tuesday are John W. Dean III, former White House counsel; Frederick C. LaRue, a former White House and Nixon re-election campaign aide; Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer; Alexander P. Butterfield, former presidential appointment secretary who now heads the Federal Aviation Administration, and Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen.

On the waiting list are former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and Charles W. Colson, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Paul O'Brien, former lawyer for the re-election campaign committee and William O. Bittman, lawyer for convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Dean and LaRue were St. Clair's choices, as were those on the waiting list except Colson.

In a letter to the committee St. Clair said all six witnesses he wanted could provide information on the March 21, 1973, conversation, in which Nixon discussed making payments to Hunt to keep him quiet, and a subsequent $75,000 cash payment to Bittman.

St. Clair described them "as critical witnesses to this inquiry on this issue."

Jurors read trial coverage

Judge declares mistrial

Fayette County Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman Wednesday declared a mistrial in the proceedings against Jay D. Gordon, 21, Staunton-Sugar Grove Rd., who is charged with kidnapping and extortion in connection with the alleged abduction of a Washington C. H. man Feb. 19.

The judge sustained a motion for mistrial which had been filed by Gordon's defense counsel, John C. Bryan and Conrad A. Curren, after it was determined that the jurors had been exposed to news media coverage of the trial.

ELEVEN OF the 12 jurors admitted that they had read coverage of the trial which appeared in Tuesday's Record Herald, in spite of the fact that they had been instructed by the judge not to allow themselves to be exposed to reports by the media or discussion of the case, even amongst themselves.

In granting the motion, the judge indicated that the jurors might be influenced by what they had read.

The article stated that Jack L. Gordon, younger brother of the defendant, was being sought as a witness for the prosecution and was necessary to the state's case. It further stated that the younger Gordon had been charged Tuesday with contempt of court and that a bench warrant had been issued for his arrest. It also contained a detailed account of testimony from the alleged victim, John A. Whiteside, 21, Snowhill Rd.

The case, which had been recessed Tuesday for continuance until after Jack Gordon had been located was continued Wednesday in spite of his absence.

During Wednesday's abbreviated session, Judge Coffman revoked Jay Gordon's recognizance bond and ordered that the defendant post $5,000 cash bond or $10,000 property bond. The property bond was posted Wednesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, efforts to locate Jack Gordon to serve him with a summons to appear in the case or to execute the bench warrant have been fruitless.

Judge Coffman had earlier granted a request by county prosecutors James A. Kiger and John H. Roszmann for immunity from prosecution for the younger Gordon.

According to the newly modified Ohio Revised Code, immunity may be granted with or without the consent of a witness if his testimony is shown to be

A change for the better in Ohio's weather has been promised by the National Weather Service as a high pressure area exerts its influence stretching from New York State to Illinois. The high will continue its dominance tonight and Friday as it pushes southward.

Some cloudiness may continue over southern Ohio as a result of low pressure which is moving northward from Florida.

During the night the worst weather experienced in Ohio was just patchy dense fog, but skies were clear otherwise. Toledo was the last station in Ohio to report rain and that occurred early in the night.

Temperatures at dawn were between 50 degrees at Mansfield and 55 degrees at Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Akron-Canton and the Chesapeake area.

Temperatures in the upper 60s to the mid 70s have been promised for today with the lower end of that range occurring near Lake Erie. Lows tonight will be in the 50s and highs on Friday will climb into the mid 70s to lower 80s.

Warm with a chance of showers Saturday or Sunday. Fair and a little cooler Monday. Highs Saturday in the mid to upper 80s. Highs Monday in the low 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Heavy rain, flooding hit Florida

By The Associated Press

Flooding had caused at least $12 million damage in the St. Petersburg-Tampa area alone as downpours continued into a fourth day today along central Florida's Gulf Coast.

Thunderstorms also dampened the rest of the Eastern Seaboard while fair weather prevailed over most of the nation west of the Appalachians.

More than 8 inches of rain fell on St. Petersburg during a 24-hour period Wednesday and McDill Air Force Base near Tampa recorded 10 inches in the same period. Two tornadoes were sighted near St. Petersburg.

After surveying the areas of worst flooding in Pinellas County, Gov. Reubin Askew said he was fairly confident the area would be declared a disaster area.

To the north, Greenville, S.C., had more than 2 inches of rainfall Wednesday night, and cloudy skies covered the remainder of the Atlantic Coast.

Lightning storms, meanwhile, have caused an outbreak of forest fires in the Gila National Forest and private lands in New Mexico since Monday. The largest, a grass fire, burned 900 acres southwest of Cimarron.

A few thundershowers sprinkled areas from eastern North Dakota into Minnesota. Mostly cloudy skies prevailed over Washington and Oregon, with rain near the coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 46 at Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich., to 100 at Blythe, Calif.

Mainly About People

John Tatman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Tatman, 929 Millwood Ave., was named to dean's list for the spring quarter at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., with a 3.7 average. Tatman, who has finished his freshman year in pre-medicine, received a 3.55 total accumulative average for the year.

Marvin Marine, 134 Grand Ave., has been transferred from the intensive care unit to Room 546, Mount Carmel Hospital, Columbus.

David A. Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Arnold, Bradford, Tenn., formerly of Washington C. H., was named to the dean's list for the spring quarter at the University of Tennessee, Martin, Tenn., where he is enrolled in pre-pharmacy.

Ferguson, Donahey fight transfer to new offices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's possible that everyone and everything scheduled for transfer from Ohio's Statehouse soon will be out—with the exception of two impregnable vaults and 82-year-old State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

A Legislative Service Commission study committee was told Wednesday that Treasurer Gertrude W. Donahey wants to keep her vaults, and that Ferguson, a veteran of 50 years in public office, intends to stay put in his present "corner."

The committee's deliberations involve completion of occupancy of a new 41-story State Office Tower across the street, and how to divide among legislators the space departing officials leave behind. The latter includes the Statehouse annex which will get some temporary new occupants before being torn down eventually.

Everyone but the governor and lieutenant governor received moving orders. Some have complied, others are in the process, and still others are packing up to move in late August.

But the peppery Ferguson told the Associated Press Wednesday: "I'm going to use every effort within my power to remain and have an administrative office in this corner of the Statehouse, even if it means going to court to do it."

He admitted his present space is not adequate, and indicated he will not stand in the way of most of his operations being transferred. "I'm not going to let anything stop us from issuing state checks on time," he said.

Ferguson said he thinks the Statehouse "was built for the purpose of housing elected state officials" and asserted the decision to move them out was not made according to law "but by a bureaucratic executive secretary who since has lost his job."

The auditor referred to George W. Busch, recently let go as executive director of the Ohio Building Authority after assuming that post late in a former state administration.

Mrs. Donahey was out of town Wednesday and could not be reached, but Dicksie Bradford, a public relations aide, said the treasurer doesn't want to move state securities and other documents out of the existing heavy vaults.

Miss Bradford said there "is not enough space" in vaults already built in the new $60 million building and added "I know very little about it, but I don't see how you'd ever tear out the vaults we have now anyway."

Roland A. Nesslinger, director of public works, confirmed that Mrs. Donahey may have less vault space in the new building but added he was "not sure." Although the new ones have less floor space, he said they probably are designed for more efficient space use.

The public works director indicated he had trouble understanding Mrs. Donahey's reluctance to accept the new vaults. "They are very fine, very modern, with television cameras, air imput if someone is trapped, communications to the outside. They really are ultra-secure," he said.

Nesslinger said the Statehouse vaults—one on the first floor and the other in the basement—have 430 and 1,236 square feet of floor space, respectively. The new vaults have a total of 1,296 square feet, he said.

The LSC committee, headed by House Speaker Pro Tem Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, told Nesslinger and other state officials a panel of legislators will meet with Ferguson and Mrs. Donahey to try to resolve differences.

At the request of Riffe, the panel directed that the annex— to be vacated in late August by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown and the Ohio Supreme Court—should be prepared for temporary occupancy by legislators while the Statehouse is being remodeled.

Senators, House members, and their staffs are to move into space made available by the exit of the auditor and treasurer along with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown who already is set up on the 14th floor of the new building.

The committee authorized Nesslinger, Administrative Services Director Joseph J. Sommer, and State Architect Carl Bentz to go ahead with plans, entering into contracts if necessary, to determine lawmakers' space requirements and devise proposals for their allocation.

City Council action

hours; $3 after the first 24 hours, but within 10 days, and $5 after 10 days of a mailed notice.

In another parking meter-related action, Council agreed to purchase new parking meter supplies. The cost of the supplies will be approximately $2,000.

An ordinance which will provide for an 0.94-acre tract of land in Union Township to be annexed into Washington C.H. was deemed an emergency, placed on second and third readings and approved by title only.

Larry Christman, of Washington C.H., owns the tract of land, which is located on the east side of N. North Street between Gibbs and Earl avenues. The Fayette County Board of Commissioners approved the annexation application March 25.

The annexation action apparently involves the development of a business. Two representatives of the Lawson Dairy Co. attended the Council meeting two weeks ago when the measure was placed on a first reading.

A proposed ordinance which would require posting gasoline prices on pumps at Washington C.H. service stations was withdrawn for various reasons.

Mrs. McCullough said she felt the ordinance was drafted "too hastily" while other Council members were concerned about the legality of the proposal. Wilson objected since he felt it would be discriminating, while Councilman Hugh S. (Bud) Patton said he would be in favor if it dealt with large oil companies only.

The proposed legislation was prepared by city solicitor Gary Smith and was patterned after a similar ordinance recently enacted in Columbus.

Two liquor permit applications were reviewed by Council. No formal objections were voiced.

The Kroger Co., has filed an application to have its present C-2 liquor permit transferred from its Main Street address to 548 Clinton Ave. Washington Beverage Centers, Ind., doing business as the Sagar Dairy Depot, 1302 Washington Ave., has submitted an application for a new C-2 permit.

Rhoads relayed an objection to Council from the pastor at the Washington Avenue House of Prayer over the Sagar Dairy application.

A ORDINANCE pertaining to closing an alley off Rawlings Street was tabled until city officials investigate utility company easements in the area.

The city has received a petition from property owners in the area requesting that the alley located between lots 566 and 567 in the Stevens Addition on Rawlings Street be vacated.

Wolford said the alley, which is located off Rawlings Street between Lewis and Wilson streets, has not been used recently and is covered with grass.

The Dayton Power and Light Co. has furnished the city with a new lighting proposal for Columbus Avenue, which has become heavily-commercialized recently. In the survey, the company has eight new lights for Columbus Avenue between Elm Street and Glenn Avenue. The cost estimate is $114 per light or $912 per year.

The matter was referred to Council's service and safety committees for further study.

Urge veto by Congress on President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee is being asked to recommend a congressional veto power over every presidential order, directive or proclamation.

The recommendation, an attempt to end so-called "presidential law making" under the president's emergency powers, was proposed to the committee by Dr. Arthur Miller, its consultant on issues raised by the Watergate scandal.

The report advised that the committee recommend enactment of a law "that will require the submission of every president's order or directive, by whatever name called, to be submitted to the Congress prior to its promulgation."

The report, made available to The Associated Press by sources close to the committee, proposed this for the committee's final report:

"The Select Committee further recommends that no such order or directive can have the force of law until both houses of Congress approve it by majority vote."

Since hundreds and even thousands of such directives are issued in any given year, the report recommended that Congress set up an office with the responsibility of approving routine orders.

"Congress could then devote itself to consideration of only those orders of the greatest importance or impact," the report said.

Kidnap trial

necessary to the prosecution's case. Under the provisions of the code, once immunity is granted the witness cannot refuse to testify by seeking protection under the Fifth Amendment, and a refusal in court to testify against his brother could result in Jack Gordon's imprisonment until he did testify. The new code became effective Jan. 1, 1974.

LATE WEDNESDAY afternoon, Bryan filed a request to be excused as defense counsel for Jack Gordon. The action was taken when the grant of immunity created a situation for Bryan where remaining as counsel for both parties could constitute a conflict of interest.

The declaration of mistrial has left the status of Jack Gordon's immunity and contempt charge in a state of limbo. Attorneys on both sides are involved in researching precedents concerning these points of law.

The trial dates for the Gordon's and Kenneth Haley, 22, of 1135 E. Paint St., who was indicted on the same charges, were not released. Haley is being defended by Robert Renshaw, of Springfield.

Walter Williams dies at Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)— Services for Walter L. Williams, 81, director of the Lebanon Production Credit Association for 27 years, will be held Friday.

He was also a charter member of the Clinton County Farm Bureau Co-op and State Farm Bureau Co-Op.

Williams died Tuesday.

Sovereign immunity claim turned down

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The City of Bowling Green may not use sovereign immunity as a defense against state claims for pollution damages in the Portage River, Ohio's Supreme Court has ruled.

Such a defense is "inapplicable" in Atty. Gen. William J. Brown's attempts to recover damages for fish killed in the north branch of the river as a result of discharges from a city sewage plant, the court said.

Wednesday's 6-1 decision, with Justice J.J.P. Corrigan dissenting, agreed with a ruling of the 6th Sixth District State Court of Appeals, which in turn had reversed Wood County Common Pleas Court.

The majority decision said the state not only had the right to bring suit against Bowling Green, but also to recover damages resulting from operation of the plant.

In another case, the Supreme Court ordered reopening of hearings into the case of a convicted felon turned down when he sought to take the Ohio Bar Examination.

Frederick E. Davis Jr. of Columbus was rejected by the Columbus Bar Association and the court's own Commissioners on Character and Fitness as a result of his guilty plea to a grand larceny charge.

Davis, who obtained a law degree at Ohio State University after his 1969 plea had resulted in probation, claims to have been rehabilitated.

In its 5-2 ruling, the court said in part that "the absence of good moral character in the past is secondary to the issue of existence of good moral character in the present." Justices Frank D. Celebreeze and William B. Brown disagreed with the decision.

In other action the court:

—Invalidated a zoning amendment that permitted construction of privately owned condominiums in the Brynwyck development of Monclova Township, Lucas County. The decision favored Edward W. Gray and other residents of the community against township trustees who approved the amendment in 1971.

—Reversed the robbery conviction of Terry L. Gallagher in the holdup of a Seven-Eleven Food Store in Dayton in May 1972. The court upheld defense claims that certain evidence was erroneously admitted at Gallagher's Montgomery County Common Pleas Court trial.

—Upheld a Knox County jury award of $55,000 to Merle and Janet Snow of Mount Vernon whose car struck a pony on a highway at night April 9, 1969. The court held defendants William G. Courtwight and Producers Livestock Association "failed to properly maintain the animal's enclosure."

The jury award in common pleas court had been reversed by the Fifth District State Court of Appeals.

Last 25,000 Army draftees to be leaving service soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is down to its last 25,000 draftees.

This represents only about 3 per cent of the Army's strength.

Draftees will be completing their two-year service and leaving the Army at the rate of about 5,000 a month during the summer and fall. Only a few will be left in uniform after that. But the last 85 draftees will not be discharged until June of next year.

Legal authority to induct men into the armed services died almost a year ago, July 1, 1973, but the Pentagon stopped issuing mass draft calls six months earlier than that.

In the last half year before the induction authority expired, virtually the only men drafted were reservists who had failed to meet their obligations.

Only the Army drew on the draft for manpower in recent years, although some of those who enlisted in the Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force were considered draft-motivated.

After a tough, uphill struggle, the Army topped its monthly enlistment goal in May and manpower officials say they believe it can continue to do so without sacrificing quality.

The Marines, however, have been unable to attract enough high school graduates to meet congressional requirements.

Because of the Marine problem, Pentagon officials said that total U.S. military manpower will fall about 6,000 short of the 2,174,121 figure planned for the end of the fiscal year that ends Sunday.

Some congressmen remain skeptical that the all-volunteer concept will work over the long term. But Congress has helped the Pentagon reach its all-volunteer goal by cutting the size of the armed forces to its smallest level since before the Korean War.

With the high school year ended, the Pentagon is looking for a surge of enlistments in the summer months. For June alone, it raised its goal to 44,520, up by more than 50 per cent over May.

Stocks again give ground

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground again today under the persistent pressure of rising interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off almost a point, and losers took a 2-1 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was subdued as a quarter-point increase in banks' prime lending rates, to 11¾ per cent, continued to spread in the banking industry.

Analysts noted fears that a further rise to an unprecedented 12 per cent might be in the offing.

Prices on the Big Board today included MGIC Investment, down ⅛ at 16¾; Ponderosa System, down ½ at 15; Combustion Engineering, off ¾ at 40½, and Cold Industries, up ½ at 24.

In Wednesday's trading the Dow Jones industrial average fell 11.89 points to 816.96, all but erasing the technical advance of 12.52 points it had recorded the day before.

Losers outpaced gainers by a 3-1 margin in continued slow trading on the NYSE.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .65 to 80.39.

Steel firms given fines in price fix

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Four major steel companies were fined $50,000 apiece Wednesday after pleading no contest to charges of violating anti-trust laws in Louisiana.

The companies were Armco Steel Corp of Middletown, Ohio; the Ceco Corp of Chicago; H.K. Porter Co. Inc., of Pittsburgh, and Laclede Steel Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

Charles F. Jones, Porter's steel division sales manager, also pleaded no contest and was fined $5,000 and given a suspended prison sentence.

The defendents were indicted several months ago and accused of fixing the price of reinforcing steel bars in Louisiana.

U.S. Dist. Judge James A. Comiskey said one company was selected to submit the low bid on public and private contracts while other companies refrained from bidding or deliberately bid high.

The judge said this paralyzed competition.

Steel prices rise again

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Price increases announced by U.S. Steel Corp. for a wide range of products might foreshadow higher consumer prices for automobiles and appliances.

The company's second price hike this month, announced Wednesday and effective Monday, also affects rails and plate steel used in construction. The company said the price boosts averaged 15 per cent. U.S. Steel had boosted prices 8 per cent on June 11.

The firm refused to say what precipitated the price hike, which averages 5.5 per cent over the total product line.

A spokesman also refused to say what effect the price increases might have on prices for consumer goods. But the nation's largest steelmaker said the revised prices "remain generally below those now being charged by competition."

Bethlehem, the No. 2 steelmaker, increased prices by about the same amount on Monday.

Glenn Turner seeks office

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Promoter Glenn W. Turner, saying he is "the only candidate who has been indicted before he runs," is campaigning for the U.S. Senate.

Turner, who has been indicted on federal mail fraud charges, is one of nine persons seeking nomination in the Democratic primary on Sept. 10. The winner will challenge Republican incumbent Edward J. Gurney.

Turner is scheduled to stand trial Aug. 5 for the second time for allegedly conspiring to defraud "persons too numerous to mention." He and seven former associates are accused of selling distributorships in Turner-controlled cosmetics and motivational firms without supplying necessary merchandise. The first trial ended in a hung jury.

Turner, 39, said he would campaign against big government, special interests and deal-making politicians.

Ex-Senator Gruening dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. Ernest Gruening of Alaska, one of the earliest and strongest congressional opponents of the Vietnam war, is dead.

Gruening, 87, died Wednesday night in a Washington hospital of cancer of the colon.

He was one of two senators to vote against the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution, which President Lyndon B. Johnson used as a functional declaration of war in Southeast Asia.

"All Vietnam is not worth the life of a single American boy," Gruening once said.

The resolution, approved by Congress two days after Johnson requested it, authorized in advance the President's using "all necessary steps, including the use of armed force" in Vietnam.

The resolution was approved unanimously by the House. Former Sen. Wayne L. Morse, D-Ore., was the only other Senate dissenter.

Gruening voted against all appropriations to the war effort until his defeat in the Democratic primary in 1968.

He crusaded for various causes, including population control and statehood for Alaska, during careers as journalist and public official.

A New York native, he was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1912 but he never practiced medicine. Instead he worked 22 years as editor and reporter for various newspapers and magazines, among them the liberal magazine, The Nation, for which he was managing editor.

THANK YOU

We wish to express our sincere thanks to Drs. Gebhart and Heiny, Morrow Funeral Home, pallbearers, friends and neighbors, the Hahn sisters, and Rev. Glen Williams for their kindness during the death of my husband, Lowell Browning.

Slower production means higher prices

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If the world's leaders appear puzzled about rising prices, the man in the street can be excused if no longer he seeks to understand inflation any more than he does his teen-age kid.

"It's a phase," he says, suggesting to himself that it will pass.

But here's an observation about life in an inflated economy that might help you understand why prices are rising all over the world, and why they're likely to continue rising for a long time to come.

First, what messages did you receive today from the media, your family or friends? Think about it for a moment and you'll probably find many of them fall into a category called consumption, such as:

Eat your breakfast. Get all your vitamins. Fill up the gasoline tank. Pick up the paper while you're at the store — and get me a carton of cigarettes too. Let's take in a show tonight. Why not vacation in Europe? Big sale on suits.

All day long the typical American is exhorted to consume, to spend, to acquire, to experience, to do. It is a consumption society; by means of appealing voices, fluttering pennants, sexual suggestion, visual displays and dozens of other techniques you are urged to buy, to consume.

The intensity of the message was once considered typically American, but what once was called the American way of life is now quite likely the life style of the Brazilian and the Frenchman too.

In contrast, how often are you exhorted to produce? Efforts by government officials to bring attention to lagging productivity have been relatively unsuccessful, a situation that an economist might deplore but which a psychologist can understand.

As most of us know, consumption is usually more comfortable than production, at least over the short run. Eventually, however, if production isn't maintained, consumption costs more or becomes impossible.

Thus, rising prices and shortages.

State hikes outlays for nursing homes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state is increasing from $10.27 to $12.75 its minimum daily payment to nursing homes for care of welfare recipients.

The new rate goes into effect July 1. Welfare Director Charles Bates said it was established on the basis of cost reports submitted to the department by about two-thirds of Ohio's 1,100 nursing homes.

TV Viewing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-guitarist Jerry Reed graduated from country to national stardom because of network TV, but his Music Row headquarters here is still just a plain, white wood frame house.

You need the address to find it. There's no sign outside.

The proprietor, a regular this spring on NBC's since-canceled "Music Country U.S.A.," is equally surprising in the flesh.

Where some top performers here might cite only old-time country artists as their main musical influences, Reed, a fine guitarist, readily claims the late jazz guitarist Django Reinhardt as one of his.

Mention Lenny Breau, an obscure, legendary Canadian known mainly to plectrum pros, and Reed lights up like Christmas: "Greatest guitar player I've ever heard, and I've heard some guitar players."

In short, Reed, a tanned, wiry native of Decatur, Ga., is among what Glen Campbell calls the "new breed" of country performers — artists equally at home not only in country music, but also jazz, blues and pop.

Like Campbell, who gave him his first network break on CBS in 1969, Reed is what you'd call a "crossover," a country performer accepted by country and noncountry music fans alike.

Surprisingly, Reed doesn't want a weekly country music show of his own on network TV.

"I don't like people to see it every time they want to see it,' Reed said, sipping a cola drink in the small, eight-track office recording studio he uses to try out new song ideas or hear those of others.

"I like to keep it important. Put it on network TV week in, week out, you're overdoin' it. The name of the ball game is going out and visiting those people. Fairs, concerts, that's where it's at."

Starring in specials is another matter, he said: "Now you're gettin' down to the nittygritty, talkin' my kind of language."

However, he laughed, "if I do a show, I'm going to call the shots because I'm the one who stands to lose the battle, the war. It'll be my head that'll roll or my career that'll suffer.

"The network'll always get another horse to ride."

State allocates school funding

Some $42,261,525 has been distributed to Ohio's 614 city, exempted village and local school districts by the state auditor's office in June.

Local revenue totaled $153,502.18. Washington C.H. city schools received $54,657.45 for basic operations and transportation, $1,927 for school employes retirement, $11,945 for teachers retirement, $135 for the school board.

Miami Trace schools received $57,626.25 for operations and transportation, $7,315 for the board of education, $15,381 for teachers retirement, and $4,414 for school employes retirement.

"OUR FRIENDLY CUSTOMERS MAKE EACH DAY"

Opinion And Comment

Step toward the goal

The White House has understandably sought to foster a euphoric sense of great things accomplished on President Nixon's journey to the Middle East. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler set the tone on the flight back to Washington when he set forth the President's views as follows: "The diplomacy on this trip has opened the door to peace in the Middle East and the nations in the area now have an opportunity to walk through that door."

Much that occurred offers general support of this assessment. Though some claim to believe the venture was in the main a public relations ploy meant to distract Americans' attention from Mr. Nixon's impeachment difficulties, it cannot be dismissed so cavalierly. The trip did have beneficial results, if only in symbolizing a major shift in United States Middle Eastern policy.

This shift was signaled by the President's overtures to Arab countries. These overtures herald a significant modification, perhaps even an end, of the very special relationship Washington has maintained with Israel. The Israelis, while reassured as to our continuing security guarantees, are being urged to make some concessions which might lead to a permanent Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

Arab leaders made it plain that, barring such concessions, there will be no permanent settlement. There is a new acceptance of Israel as a permanent state in the area, yet at the same time the Arabs seem adamant about certain points. Notable among these are the restoration of Palestinian rights, the return of Jerusalem to the Arabs, the return to Syria of territory now under Israeli occupation.

King Hussein of Jordan spoke for many observers when he declared that all concerned "must keep within our vision the final goal that is still many milestones away." President Nixon's journey was less an opening of the door to peace than a step - with many steps yet to come - toward that final goal.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Every man a Bishop!

Some years ago I spotted an ad in the paper which so intrigued me that I carried it around in my wallet for ages. "Start Your Own Church!" it urged, and provided an address to which one could write, enclosing a "free will offering," receiving in return ecclesiastical credentials. What tickled me was the thought of converting my family into a religious sect and claiming exemption from the town property tax. Doubless the Selectmen of the town of Weston would take a dim view of such a caper, but what a lovely lawsuit it would make! For openers, what right would a secular court have to evaluate the legitimacy of a church? It would clearly seem to violate the First Amendment doctrine of the separation of church and state.

I never followed this up, in part because I knew that the first thing that would occur in the Roche Church would be a schism: I could only muster one vote for Bishop while my wife and daughter (second and third generation women's liberationists respectively) would consolidate against me. Also I wondered at what point the courts of the Commonwealth would ask, "When is a religion not a religion?" And answer: "When it is a fraud." In short, it struck me as a non-starter.

NOW, HOWEVER, I read that an outfit in California, which dealt in mail-order ordinations, has successfully repelled an effort by the state to close down its operations. The summary of the decision indicated that the judge felt that a court had no right, under the doctrine of separation, to distinguish "legitimate" religions from "illegitimate." Or, as a cynic might put it (and an atheist surely would), the judiciary is not in the business of assessing the merits of comparative superstitions. Essentially, a Cardinal-Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church, a Methodist Bishop, a Jewish Rabbi and a self-styled Patriarch of Potsdam (with a mail-order Roman collar) are held equal in the eyes of the law.

With all due respect for the separation of church and state, I submit that this determination is nonsense. One does not have to be a theologian to spot a hustle, and the fact that an entrepreneurial enterprise operates behind the facade of religion is irrelevant. To take a parallel, anyone who started passing out medical degrees by mail would be instantly and justly in the toils of the law. Legally there are perfectly adequate precedents for enforcing the police power on religious sects. The Mormons were the most outstanding recipients of the long arm of Federal law. When "celestial marriage" or polygamy was banned, the poor Mormans (who were decent, hard-working people who just wanted to be left alone) tried to invoke religious freedom. The Supreme Court found no constitutional protection for "crime masquerading as religion" (1879).

Similarly the courts have generally taken a dim view of religious efforts to frustrate public health measures (vaccinations, fluridation of water) and, in a singularly complex series of cases, ruled that parents who rejected medicine on religious grounds could not impose their views on doctors treating their children. (The Christian Scientists have raised some of these cases, but the real fight has come from Jehovah's Witnesses who, for example, utterly reject blood transfusions.)

ON THE other side of the ledger, however, there is a classic opinion (U.S. v. Ballard, 1944) giving freedom of religion a wide scope. The Ballard family organized a religion, the "I AM" movement, which allegedly cured the incurable and in the process took in a good deal of money. They were indicted for mail fraud, and at the trial the truth or falsity of their convictions was excluded from discussion. The judge put it this way to the jury: "Did these defendants honestly and in good faith believe these things? If they did they should be acquitted." The jury convicted them and the case went up on appeal.

To make a long story short, the Supreme Court sent the case back for retrial on technical grounds, but Justice William O. Douglas took the opportunity to deliver a free lecture (which was irrelevant to the holding) in which he went so far as to say that courts, and by implication legislatures, had no right whatsoever to explore the merits of an alleged religious belief. "Men may believe what they cannot prove." he said, and, "They may not be put to the proof of their religious doctrines or beliefs." It will be interesting to see whether the Burger Court opts for the police power, or follows Douglas into the realm of absolutes.

FRIDAY, JUNE 28

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Vigorous Mars influences encourage your most worthwhile ambitions and stimulate your will to achieve them, so don't waste time on unproductive activities. Forward!

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
Be extremely careful to discriminate between rumor and fact, not to accept hearsay as accurate information. Some deceptive trends prevail.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
Some challenges possible, but face them—unafraid. With the Geminian's ingenuity and foresightedness, you should solve all situations handily.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
You have instinctive know-how in many areas, but may tend to get off the track now, unwisely go off on tangents. Be alert — and avoid!

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
Pull up the reins rather than dash down blind alleys. You could get into trouble if you use the wrong tactics.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
Excitement or anxiety could be detrimental to top achievement. Be contained. Direct energies constructively. Familiarize yourself with new trends.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Stepping out of the picture is now way to avert difficulty or tension. Step right in there with your good will and ingenuity, and you can conquer all.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Study trends, good resources for tapping. Develop your top-flight faculties and you can make this day one to remember.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Stellar aspects now suggest the revival of old projects if still feasible or the launching of new ones — either to better your course and outlook. Choose wisely, noting all potentials.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
A day for building up double strength in certain areas. Tighten up your schedule, eliminate flaws, loopholes for error. Thus "battened down," you can steer your course more successfully.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
From out of the nowhere may come an "odd" suggestion. No harm in glancing at its possibilities: It may pave the way to a broader avenue toward success.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
If you tried and did not attain, review well before trying the same thing again. A new method could turn the trick. Don't become discouraged.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely conservative and ideaslistic individual. Too sensitive at times, however, you are easily hurt and may be inclined to carry grudges. Try to curb! You have a lively imagination and, no matter what your occupation, conceive brilliant ideas for furthering progress. In executing them, however, you may be a little too meticulous about details — driving other people crazy. Don't be such a fussbudget. You are extremely versatile and, properly educated, of course, will find many fields suited to your talents. Outstanding among them: medicine (especially of the research variety), the law, writing, music and the state. You would also make an excellent detective.

Dental hygienists have no worries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Although they have been cleaning teeth for years, Ohio's dental hygienists may begin work today without worrying about skating close to the law.

A law enacted by the 1974 General Assembly, effective today, clarifies the hygienists' right to perform certain surgical procedures required in cleaning teeth.

Sen. Clara E. Weisenborn, R-5 Dayton, introduced the enabling legislation after legal spokesmen for the dental profession pointed up the dilemma.

They testified at legislative hearings that, although the law was not enforced, hygienists, when cleaning teeth, were performing "a surgical procedure on hard and soft tissues within the oral cavity."

They also testified that cleaning teeth would come under "an intra-oral procedure that contributes to or results in an irremediable alteration to the oral anatomy."

Both procedures were expressly forbidden by law. If enforced, the statutes could have brought a fine of $50 to $500 for a first offense and a fine of $500 and 10-90 days in jail for subsequent offenses.

Mrs. Weisenborn's bill, aside from bringing the law into compliance with actual practice, also contains a new prohibition for dental hygienists. It forbids them from making final impressions for dentures.

The bill also adds a new category of dental assistant called qualified professionals. The State Dental Board is required under the new law to adopt rules governing those things the new assistants may do. The one statutory limitation is that they may not perform those duties "which require the professional competence of a hygienist."

Dentists may not employ the new type of assistant until after the board formally adopts the rules. However, another provision in the bill permits them to employ two instead of only one hygienist.

An attorney general's opinion held that while the law allowed a dentist to employ two hygienists, he could not have both in his office at the same time. The law changes this.

Existing law spells out requirements for hygienists. They must be at least 18, of good moral character and a graduate of an accredited mental hygiene school.

Successful completion of a state examination also is required.

Marilyn Monroe's book ghost-written

NEW YORK (AP) — Marilyn Monroe's forthcoming "autobiography" entitled "My Story" was ghost written by the late Ben Hecht, the book's publisher says.

Sol Stein, president of the publishing firm of Stein and Day, said Tuesday that Hecht originally wrote the manuscript for Doubleday in the mid-1950s on the basis of interviews with the late film star. But Doubleday never published the book.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: BEING MIDDLE-AGED IS A NICE CHANGE FROM BEING YOUNG.—DOROTHY CANFIELD FISHER

(© 1974 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How important is sex in marriage?

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a fellow (I'll call him David) for about three months. He's been giving me a big rush. David is one of the nicest fellows I've ever met. He is a successful professional man, good-looking, just the right age for me, treats me like a queen, and everyone who has met him thinks he'd be ideal for me.

The problem: David doesn't kiss very well. To be perfectly honest, it's more serious than that. When he kisses me, nothing (but absolutely nothing!) happens. Abby, I'm 25 and experienced (but I'm no tramp), and I am not all that difficult to turn on.

Don't tell me to teach him. If he can't even turn me on, I'm not about to give him kissing lessons.

What should I do? I hate to give him up because he is by far the most eligible man I've ever dated, except for this one fault.

How important do you think sex is in marriage?

LIBRA

DEAR LIBRA: How important I think it is doesn't matter. It's how important YOU think it is that counts. No one can (or should) make that decision for you. List your priorities in order of their importance and you'll have the answer.

DEAR ABBY: I am 38. My wife is 36. We have been married for 15 years and have two children, ages 13 and 1.

Ten months ago, my wife got a telephone call at about 7:30 p.m. She talked for a few minutes, and after she hung up she said a girl friend of hers was in town and she was going to drive over and see her for awhile.

I don't know why, but I didn't believe her, so I left the kids and followed her. I found the "girl friend" was a man I knew. When they recognized my car, they went in different directions. After my wife returned home, we had a few words, but there was no big scene.

Since that night our marital relations have been very unsatisfactory. Either she desn't feel well, she's too tired, too sleepy or it's, "Please don't bother me." If she lets me touch her, she doesn't participate.

Please answer before I do something foolish.

FED UP IN OREGON

DEAR FED: Either you didn't have enough words, or they weren't the right ones.

Level with each other. If she's emotionally involved with another man, you're both better off dealing with it. If it's only a case of the "guilties," that should be dealth with. An infected wound doesn't just heal up and disappear. It erupts sooner or later. And the sooner the better.

DEAR ABBY: You will probably think I am some kind of nut for writing about this problem, but I trust your judgment, and know you have ways of finding out such things, so here goes:

Following a car accident and complications, my mother had her leg amputated about five years ago. Since then, she insists that the leg she had amputated pains her constantly.

Abby, I keep telling her it is all in her head because there is nothing there to hurt. She insists the pain is real.

I am at a loss to understand how this can be so. Can it?

FOOLISH QUESTION

DEAR QUESTION: (No question is foolish if it is sincere.) The "pain" about which your mother complains about is called "phantom pain," and it is very real indeed. Obviously it only seems to be in the amputated limb because the nerve endings at the point of amputation have "set up" those sensations. Your mother should tell her doctor. He may be able to correct the situation.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, June 27, the 178th day of 1974. There are 187 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1950, President Harry S. Truman ordered the U.S. Air Force and Navy to help repel an invasion of the Republic of Korea by North Korea.

On this date —

At 3 p.m. Tuesday, preschoolers will hear the story "Bears of the Air" and a filmstrip on "Danny the Dinosaur."

First, second and third graders will observe Independence Day in their program Wednesday. Included will be a story, crafts and a filmstrip about our flag.

Blind angler still loves fishing

CINCINNATI (AP) — "You give me good friends, a fishing pole and plenty of water and I'm happy," says 66-year-old Merrill Cook.

In that respect, Cook differs little from the nation's army of 70 million anglers. What distinguishes the aging outdoorsman as a breed apart from his colleagues is his blindness.

While the exhilaration of seeing his finned quarry fight the line is gone, the loss of sight has not diminished his love of the sport.

"I thank God that fishing has always been my favorite hobby. I appreciate it more now than ever because of my great friends," said the Lebanon, Ohio, native.

Cook, a body shop operator until disabled by an eye disease in 1971, lost his sight while on a grouse-hunting venture in southern Ohio.

The spunky oldtimer's lifelong pursuit of fishing a razorsharp memory has helped him locate many of his favorite haunts.

"I used to fish seven days a week, but now I can only make twice a week. But I still have a mental picture of my best spots. I should. I spent enough time at them. I tell my friends the way I remember it—if there's stump nearby or a big rock. It's just like a professional golfer. You never forget some things," said Cook.

One of his companions says Cook's years of fishing allow him to transcend his handicap.

Casting problems are quickly overcome with some advice from his friends.

"After a couple of casts he can hit that shoreline as well as you or I without fouling the bait, something those so-called experts can't even do," says fishing mate Bob Peach.

The rest of it is reduced to angling instincts and the "feel" technique.

His favorite fish: "The black bass is the sportiest fish in these parts," says Cook.

He uses a lighter rod equipped with an automatic fly reel that retrieves the line by pressing a lever. Cook says it allows him to play a fish better and let out more line if he hooks a larger one.

Cook's idea of a hearty meal is a frying pan full of sizzling fish filets. Even the tricky problem of cooking has been met by the tanned outdoorsman.

Peach remembers the first time Cook's appetite won out over a fear of burning himself.

"He called me to come over during lunch and cook the fish, but I couldn't get away," remembers Peach.

"So Cookie cooked his own fish and ate them. How did he do it? Well, he told me he just put them in the skillet and counted up to 180, which he figured was three minutes of cooking time and then turned off the stove," said Peach.

Business indicators up slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's index of business indicators increased two-tenths of one per cent in May, pointing to slight economic growth in months ahead, the Commerce Department said today.

It also reported that a recalculation showed the April index had been stable, with no change, instead of the decline of seven-tenths of one per cent announced earlier.

The index of business indicators is considered a measure of future economic performance in the economy. However, some economists have questioned its value in the last year because of distortions in the figures caused by inflation.

Five of the eight business indicators showed gains in May. These were average work week, unemployment insurance, new orders for durable goods, the price-labor ratio and orders for plant and equipment.

On the negative side were stock prices, industrial materials prices and building permits.

Jeffersonville Methodist Church is setting for wedding

The Jeffersonville United Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage June 14 of Miss Pamela Jane Pratter and Randy Lloyd Hammond. The Rev. Eugene Griffith performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar enhanced with vases of rainbow colored carnations, daisies and gladioli, and candelabra entwined with greenery and bows. The bride was given in marriage by her parents.

Mrs. Ruth Dorn, organist, presented a prelude of wedding selections.

Miss Pratter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Pratter, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, and Mr. Hammond is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hammond, of Jeffersonville.

The bride chose a bridal gown of white silk organza trimmed with lace and ruffles. The empire waist was accented with a V-shaped lace trimmed bodice with ruffled stand-up collar. Her bishop sleeves were accented with wide cuffs which ended in ruffles with pearl button trim. The skirt was gathered and flowing also with lace and ruffles. Her chapel-length mantilla was edged in matching lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath with satin showers.

Miss Phyllis Pratter was maid of honor for her sister. The bridesmaids were Miss Patsy Pratter, sister of the bride, Miss Belinda Hammond, sister of the groom, and Miss Vivian Teets. The honor attendant wore a formal length gown of lavender and white knit with short puff sleeves, scoop neckline with white collar with sash in the back. She wore a matching floppy hat and carried lavender carnations on a white Bible. The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor, except in yellow, pink, blue and matching floppy hats. Each carried carnations which matched her dress on a white Bible.

Cindy Pratter was the flower girl and Jay King the ring bearer.

Pete Pierce served as best man. Seating wedding guests were Phillip Pratter, the bride's brother, Tommy Smith of Jamestown, and Terry Gladman of Springfield, cousins of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a formal length pale green dress with white bodice, sleeveless, with stand-up collar, with accessories of beige and white. The groom's mother chose a light blue seersucker dress with matching jacket and white accessories.

Hostesses for the reception held at the church were Miss Donna Finley of Fairborn, and Mrs. Robert Severt, Union, aunts of the bride, Miss Cindy Davis of Dayton, and Mrs. Terry Gladman of Springfield, cousins of the groom. Kindra and Mandy Petitt presided at the guest book.

Following a brief wedding trip, the couple is residing in Jeffersonville.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pratter are 1973 graduates of Miami Trace High School. The bride is employed by the Jamestown Bank and her husband is employed by Morris Bean.

The groom's parents were hosts at the Jefferson Inn for the rehearsal dinner.

Hickory Lane Fellowship

The Ladies Fellowship of Hickory Lane Church of Christ met in the church. Members read Scripture containing the word 'husband or wife.'

Mrs. Keith Wooley gave devotions concerning the home and family relationships, and read from the Book of Ephesians.

During the business meeting, it was decided that the missionary offerings will go toward sending a child to Butler Springs Christian camp.

The next meeting will be July 15 at the church with Mrs. Willard Bainter and daughter, Susan, as hostesses. Mrs. Robert Johnson will be in charge of devotions.

Mrs. Merlin Kaser closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshents were served to Mrs. Dan Ford, Mrs. Kaser and daughters, Mrs. Fred Tracy, Mrs. Larry Baker, Mrs. Wooley, Mrs. George Pierce, Mrs. Bertha Riley, Mrs. Bainter, Miss Georgeanna Pierce, Mrs. Ethel Long, Miss Susan Bainter, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Larry Huffman by Mrs. Gary Kinzer and Mrs. Frank Kinzer.

Esther Circle has picnic

Mrs. Virginia Shoemaker was hostess to seven members and two guests of the Esther Circle of the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church, when they gathered at her home for a noon picnic.

Following the meal, Mrs. Clyde Rings conducted a brief business meeting when reports were heard and approved.

Mrs. Emma Roush gave a history of famous hymns., The three she spoke of were "I Need Thee Every Hour," "Sweet Hour of Prayer," and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Readings pertaining to the program theme were also read. The group will meet again in September at the home of Mrs. Rings.

Silver Belles Grandmothers meet at the Sulky

The Sulky Restaurant was the setting Tuesday for the meeting of the Silver Belles Grandmothers Club. There were 14 members and two guests present.

Members were Mrs. Oliver Brookover, Mrs. Jean Warner, Mrs. Lillian Ervin, Mrs. Florence Bethards, Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, Mrs. Florence Toops, Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. Minnie Smith, Mrs. Philip Ford, Mrs. Eunice Draper, Mrs. Verna Grim, Mrs. Ted Merritt, Mrs. William Rockhold and Mrs. Esther Edwards. Guests were Mrs. Dorothy West and little Amy McCray.

The business session was conducted by Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Ted Merritt presented devotions. The salute to the American and Christian flags was made and Mrs. Bethards read the poem "The Golden Age."

It was announced that the group will not meet in July. Flag pins were favors and reports were heard.

Mrs. West showed a collection of apple head dolls which she had made.

Cards were signed for Mrs. Pauline Toops, Mrs. Zoe Follis, and Mrs. Olive Brookover assisted.

Miss Johns completes wedding plans

Miss Stephanie (Stacy) Lyn Johns, bride-elect of Joe Banks, has completed plans for their marriage. The marriage will take place at 6 p.m. July 8 in Rodgers Chapel AME Church with the Rev. Leroy Stills officiating.

Miss Johns has asked Mrs. Dale Butler to be her maid of honor and the Misses Toni Smith, a cousin, and Robin Johns, sister of the bride-elect, to be bridesmaids. Miss Toya Smith will be the flower girl.

Mr. Butler will serve as best man for Mr. Banks, and Master James Smith III will be the ringbearer. Seating the wedding guests will be Cecil Smith, cousin of the prospective groom, and James Woodson Jr., cousin of Miss Johns.

Hostesses for the reception to follow will be Mrs. James Woodson Sr., Mrs. James Smith Jr. and Mrs. Edward Poindexter.

Miss Newland guest of honor at shower

Miss Terry Ann Newland, bride-elect of Greg Ellenberger, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given recently by Mrs. Robert English and Mrs. Lee Cummins in the English home.

During the social hour contest were enjoyed and prizes won by Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. David Smith and Mrs. Albert Ellenberger, and all presented the gifts to the honor guest.

A bride figurine centered the gift table and colors of pink and white prevailed. After Miss Newland opened many lovely gifts, she thanked all present.

Refreshments of cake and ice cream with punch were served to Mrs. Albert Ellenberger, Miss Alberta Ellenberger, Mrs. Monna Williams, Mrs. Kenneth Arnold, Mrs. James Lucas, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Molly Combs, Miss Teresa Combs, Mrs. Starley Knedler, Miss Debbie Lawrence, Miss Janie Bondurant, Miss Diane Combs, Miss Joy Burns, Mrs. Lena Hamilton, Mrs. David Lucas, Mrs. D. Dana Hyer named to zoning board

The fifth seat on the Washington C. H. Zoning Board of Appeals was filled during the regular meeting of City Council Wednesday night.

In addition to filling one vacant spot on the zoning board, the city's legislators heard Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, a candidate for a seat in the Ohio House of Representatives, point out several items he is vitally concerned with in regard to local government operations.

Council members unanimously adopted a resolution confirming the appointment of Dana Hyer, 1006 Briar Ave., to the City Zoning Board of Appeals.

Hyer will fill the unexpired term of Carl R. Elberfeld, who resigned along with four other members of the zoning board at the last Council meeting. Hyer's term will end in 1977.

Joining Hyer on the zoning board are Lawrence J. Lehman, John F. Morris and Harold R. Ross. All were appointed at the last Council meeting.

The only remaining member of the board is Horace L. Jacobs, who was reappointed to a three-year term two weeks ago.

RESIGNING at the last Council meeting were Elmer N. Reed, Denzil L. Leggett, Lee Lynch and Elberfeld. Three of the four cited personal reasons in their resignations, while Lynch was forced to resign since he is being transferred to Texas to assume a position at a new Armco Steel Corp. plant.

Dumford, 44, of 635 Warren Ave., who will be matched against Republican Robert McEwen, of Hillsboro, in the November election, briefly outlined his background and commented on a number of areas concerning him.

He said he hopes to see legislation which would provide at least a two per cent increase in the county's share of money from state income tax funds. The local political candidate also touched on items such as state assistance for cities such as Washington C. H. facing the burden of staggering police and fire pension fund debts, continued state assistance for solid waste and sewage disposal projects, a proposal being considered for transportation funding and his views on the controversial recommendation for changing the county engineer from an elected official to an appointed office.

In other matters, Council members complimented Bill Duncan, superintendent of the city street department, for clearing various streets and the installation of right turn signs in the downtown area.

Chester Hamulak, 1028 Center St., requested the repair of a clogged sewer near his home and questioned whether or not a decision has been reached to remove a street light at the intersection of Elm and Olive streets at Eastside Elementary School. Council said no decision has been reached.

Robert Lutz, 523 E. Temple St., questioned Council on the status of a request two weeks ago by the local news media to meet with the city legislators in an attempt to iron out some apparent problems. He was informed a meeting would be scheduled.

Board reviews CAC programs

The govening board of the Fayette County Community Action Commission held its monthly meeting Wednesday at Grace United Methodist Church. Sixteen members were present, including Jack Hagerty, CAC director, who reviewed balances in each program account.

Hagerty reported that approximately 90 area youths had been placed in jobs through the summer job program.

John Borrowman. CAC planner, reported that the Senior Nutrition Program had averaged 55-60 participants daily, 10 per cent more than anticipated. He stated that the CAC will be applying for funds to expand the program's capactiy.

In other action, the board accepted the resignation of Hugh Rea and appointed Lewis Parrett to fill the vacancy on the board. The group expressed its deep gratitude to Rea for his service since the CAC was organized in 1966.

The first use of lenses to form a telescope is attributed to Roger Bacon of England, who died in 1292.

Name being sought for tech district

The board of trustees for the new general-technical college is seeking assistance from area residents in finding a name for the new district. The name for the new district is high on the board's priority list and a name for the district is expected to be adopted soon.

The trustees urge persons to submit their choice of names either on postcards or letters to Francis Henderson, 300 E. 8th St., Manchester, Ohio 45144. The board would like a short statement including with each name listing the reasons or background for their selection. More than one name may be submitted and each name submitted will be considered by the board. The deadline is July 12.

Cancer drive tops last year's total

The 1974 cancer crusade topped last year's total by a 15 per cent margin.

The Fayette County Unit of the American Cancer Society announced that a total of $16,543.43 was collected by volunteer workers during the April crusade. Paul Johnson and Tom Mark, crusade co-chairmen, said $11,989.14 was collected during the 1973 drive.

A breakdown of the total discloses $4,121.03 in the rural residential drive; $3,099.88 in the Washington C. H. residential drive; $5,220.45 from major group contributors such as industries, businesses and clubs and organizations, and $4,102.07 from special projects and events.

MRS. CHARLES CUNNINGHAM, unit president, has requested that all special events chairmen evaluate their projects to determine the need for any changes.

A total of 418 persons were examined last April 28 at the free colon cancer detection clinic held at the Medical Arts Building in Washington C. H.

Dr. Byers W. Shaw reports that all but 18 persons have returned the slide samples for examination. He said 142 letters have been sent to persons who had positive tests. The Washington C. H. surgeon noted that one malignant rectal polyp has been detected as a result of the project.

Some intersting statistics disclose 177 men and 241 women participated. Ages for men ranged from 32 to 84 and for women from 30 to 81. Average age for men was 56.6 years and 55.6 for women.

The Fayette County unit was the first in the Ohio division to sponsor such a project.

Unit officers for 1974-75 are Mrs. Cunningham, president; Bart Mahoney, vice president; Mabel Rolfe, secretary, and Donna Jean Johnson, treasurer. Serving on the nominating committee for the new slate of officers are Helen June Waddle, Robert Minshall and Dr. Charles Pfersick.

Seek detente with Nixon on cities

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The new president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors has invited President Nixon to establish a reconciliation with city leaders and create "a domestic detente" on the urban front.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, a Democrat, said the problems of the cities demand as much attention from the President as do international affairs.

Alioto took over leadership of the conference Wednesday from Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin Jr., also a Democrat, at the conclusion of the organization's 42nd annual meeting.

New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu was named vice president and Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., was elected chairman of the advisory board, putting him third in line for the presidency.

If tradition is followed, Gibson will take over in 1976 as the conference's first black president.

The 350 mayors also asked both Nixon and the Congress to continue the New Federalism by re-enacting general revenue sharing at least a year before its expiration in 1976.

They called for an end to impoundment by the President of congressionally appropriated funds and sought quick passage of an $11.3 billion housing and community development act and $18 billion in transit subsidies over the next five years.

Administration emissaries to the conference said that was more money than the cities were likely to get in view of the battle against inflation through federal budget restraints.

Knothole manager ousted from post

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Willie Howard, 30, of Cincinnati, deposed manager of a Class D Knothole Baseball team, learned Wednesday that the umpire really is always right.

Howard was fined $50 in court for assault for the June 15 chest-bumping of umpire Lee Lucas following a close play in a game which his team lost 10-2.

In addition to the conviction in criminal court, Howard was also suspended from managing by the league.

AIRPORT NEWS

By SANDY WOODMANSEE

Bill Binzel successfully completed his provate flight test this past week. Congratulations, Bill! He took his father, Dr. Philip Binzel, for a ride on Tuesday. Bill wanted him to be his very first passenger. By the way, Bill is John's fourth student passing his flight test. Bob Smith flew his son Randy to a school in Indiana on Tuesday also. Randy has been taking flying lessons under John's instruction and is doing real well. Randy hopes to continue flying on his return in August.

Otis Hess and his wife, Hallie, flew to Dayton and Cincinnati last week and John and I were able to go along. Beautiful evening for a flight. John took a quick charter trip to Bolton Field in Columbus and picked up some freight for Conchemco, Inc., Sabina.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Loyd flew to Madison, Ind., on June 23 and were amazed at the flooding they saw on the way.

On June 18 a twin-engine Beech landed with passengers from Akron. On June 22 a Lockheed Lodestar stopped with personnel of Webber Products. Also on the 22nd, Bill Gressinger from Palm Beach, Fla., landed in his J-3 cub. He got weathered in Washington C. H. and spent the night here. He was on his way to the Akron area and his home there. A Cessna 414 landed with passengers for Conchemco, Inc., in Sabina.

See you next week if we haven't floated away by then.

Flood control project nears in Chillicothe

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. — The Huntington district office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced that the final environmental impact statement for a local flood protection project in Chillicothe has been filed with the Council on Environmental Quality. The statement is required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The project will consist of about 7,300 feet of levee and 250 feet of concrete wall along the north edge of the city, extending from U.S. 35-50 bypass embankment to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad embankment. The levee will then extend northwesterly along the riverside of the B&O Railroad embankment for a distance of about 3,200 feet.

The primary purpose of the project is to provide flood protection to parts of Chillicothe from Scioto River floods as high as the 1913 flood of record. Another purpose is to provide certain recreational opportunities which are compatible with flood control facilities.

Fayette Countian a self-made zookeeper

Man's hobby is 'monkey business'

WHAT'S UP DOC? — Bob Huff holds one of his two domestic rabbits. Although these rabbits are common pets and sold in many pet stores, they should not be handled too frequently. They can get neurotic and die easily.

By MARK THELLMANN

Although it all started as a hobby, Bob Huff is rapidly becoming a self-made zookeeper.

Huff, 27, Mark Road, is by occupation a livestock breeder and trader, specializing in horses and cattle. He had business dealings with Bob Louderback, of Xenia, whose interests extended to all sorts of other animals and before long, Huff too, was hooked.

Huff first purchased a male and female Rhesus monkey at $100 apiece from Louderback. Soon to come were a male and female red fox, a female Civet Cat from Asia, a male and female domestic white rabbit, a male and female Kinkajou, a male Scottish Highlander bull, a male and female squirrel monkey, a Texas Longhorn Cow and a Brahman bull.

HUFF HAS on order a male and female Sica deer, due to arrive this weekend and wants to get a bear if he can find one.

Also running around the Huff farm are six dogs and six cats, about 20 head of horses, some cattle and an Appaloosa stallion named "Little Herman."

Huff is not alone with his zoological interests. His wife, Reva, takes care of most of the animals since Huff's livestock dealings require him to be on the road frequently.

"My wife is a real animal lover," Huff exclaimed, "she even has names for most of them."

The Rhesus monkeys Huff owns have their hereditary roots in northern India. They are famous for their space flights and other scientific experiments, since they possess many of man's characteristics; such as suffering from the same parasites man does.

Huff's monkeys are golden-gray in color, around 22 inches in length and are equipped with a 10-inch tail. They can possess the intelligence level of a four-year-old child.

Huff explained he had kept the monkeys caged for a time on his "compound" and then decided to give them their freedom.

"They're real good about hanging around the farm and when dinner time comes, they're ready and waiting like faithful dogs," Huff said.

The reason for this could be the monkeys think they are faithful dogs, along with the rest of the menagerie. Huff feeds most of his animals dog food and they love it!

An animal which must be denied its freedom is the red fox, for it is a native to the area with an ability to run at a speed of 40 miles per hour.

"They're sly and cunning and if the cage door was ever unlatched, they'd be gone like a bullett," Huff admitted.

Huff's foxes are rusty-red in color and have long bushy tails, tipped in white. They are animals which are thought by many zoologists to choose a mate for life. The pair Huff has sharing the cage seem to verify this hypothesis-they get along just fine.

The female Civet cat from Asia, which Huff's wife has named "Lady," has a small slender body and comes from Africa and Southern Asia.

A relative is the common Mongoose from India and its scent glands are used to make perfume.

When the term "Civet cat," is used in reference to a North American animal, get your nose plugs! The North American Civet cat is a spotted skunk! Lady is worth $150.

Huff's two domestic white rabbits are common pets. They cost about $10 apiece and can be purchased in almost any pet shop. They are docile and can be handled easily, but too much handling can make them neuortic.

Making its home in Mexico, South America and Central America, is the Kinkajou. This little animal is a relative of the raccoon and generally has a gentle disposition, although Huff's female Kinkajou cannot be handled because it was never handled as a baby and now as an adult, can't adapt to handling.

The Kinkajou is a noctural animal which Mother Nature has equipped with what is termed a "prehensile" tail. This means the tail can be used to grip and wrap around things, acting much like a fifth leg.

COOCHY COOCHY KINKAJOU — Bob Huff is shown petting his male Kinkajou. The Kinkajou is a relative of the raccoon and is a nocturnal creature, sleeping in trees during the day and hunting small animals during the night.

PEEK-A-BOO — Bob Huff's red foxes look inquisitively into the camera lense. The red fox is found in this area and can attain a running speed of 40 miles per hour.

HIPPY BULL — "Hey man, like who turned out the lights?" This hairdo is characteristic of the Scottish Highlander bull, as is its ability to stand extreme changes in temperature. The Highlander bull's sweat glands are so well developed it can stand the heat of summer.

Church demands woman minister

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago Methodist congregation that wants a woman pastor has rejected its bishop's appointment of a man.

A member of the Parish of the Holy Covenant explained Wednesday that the congregation "felt we had to take a stand because women are not getting support" from the Methodist Church.

But United Methodist Bishop Paul A. Washburn says the congregation can't refuse the appointment because "the act is not provided for in the law of the Methodist Church."

And the Rev. Charles Peterson, named to the position three weeks ago but yet to assume it, says he's marking time until the dispute is "worked out between the dispute is "worked out between the bishop and the church."

For the past two weeks, congregation members have taken over the Sunday worship services and daily functions of the parish, says the Rev. Donald Elmer, a minister member of the congregation not assigned to the church.

He says the parish first requested a woman minister this spring when its pastor of 14 years announced his retirement.

"We had good experiences with several women seminarians over the past two years, and we decided having a woman pastor now would encourage women in the church," said the Rev. Mr. Elmer, whose wife is a codirector of a national Methodist group to advance women's rights in society and the church.

He said the congregation "wanted someone with experience —not a woman just for the sake of having a woman." He said women, who make up less than 1 per cent of Methodist pastors, "have traditionally been placed in the smaller, rural churches where they have little career mobility."

But the Rev. Mr. Elmer said that instead of taking the congregation's request seriously the church "kept coming up with rules and regulations" and didn't even try to find a woman pastor.

Bishop Washburn maintains he "appointed the Reverend Peterson and that's where things stand."

"We're at a standoff now," the Rev. Mr. Elmer said. "We've been told it's none of our business and that it's the bishop's business. We think that's wrong, but we don't want a confrontation. We want to work this out within the church."

Mindszenty continues U.S. tour

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Former Hungarian primate, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty said the purpose of his 20-city tour of the United States is to help former Hungarians and their descendents preserve their 1,000-year-old culture.

The cardinal, who now lives in Vienna, Austria after having been relieved of his duties by Pope Paul VI, is visiting Pittsburgh, Pa. today.

He blamed assaults by Russia, both in the 19th century and 1956, for having scattered Hungarians throughout the world.

Speaking through an interpreter, the anti-communist said he did not approve of any rapproachment between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

He referred to the "Godless and humanless system of the Soviets." Any appeasement, he said, can only bring new Godlessness and inhumanity.

The cardinal was jailed by communists in 1919, tortured by Nazis during World War II for aiding Jews to escape, and imprisoned again by communists following a post-war takeover. He was freed by the revolution briefly in 1956 but then took refuge in the American embassy when the revolt was crushed and he remained there until 1972 when he was permitted to leave the country.

He said that a more important question should be settled—the liberation of all under Soviet rule in Middle and Eastern Europe.

Weather warning system readied

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Approximately 200 amateur radio operators completed training in recognizing tornados Wednesday night in what is hoped to be the beginning of an instant weather warning system in Hamilton County.

Paul Dailey, chief meteorologist for the National Weather Service here was the principal speaker in the twohour program held at Civil Defense Headquarters.

The weather network will provide severe weather information to the National Weather Service and Civil Defense Emergency Operation Center.

Hotel books band for performance

A country and western band will be appearing tonight at the Washington Inn Restaurant.

Proprietor Art Thompson said Dick Wolford and the Rangers would be featured from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. There will be no cover charge.

Jim Reynolds and the Country Rogues will be returning for an additional performance Saturday night.

Contract awarded

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— E.C.I. Co. has been awarded a $2,705,666 contract for construction of the principal phase of the Central Riverfront elevated walkway.

Traffic Court

A Jeffersonville man pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and was fined in Municipal Court Wednesday. He was also found guilty of reckless operation to which he had pleaded no contest.

Cary J. Prater, 38, of Jeffersonville, was fined a total of $250, sentenced to 30 days in jail (of which 27 were suspended) and lost his operator's license for a period of 30 days.

Prater was arrested by Sheriff's deputies. Acting Judge John P. Case presided at the hearing.

Five other cases were scheduled for hearing.

POLICE

Fined:

Gertrude M. Butler, 54, of 711 S. Main St., $25, backing without due regard for safety.

Bond forfeitures:

Thomas E. Rodgers, 19, of 1119 N. North St., $50 raised bumper (second offense).

Kevin A. Jones, 20, of 414 East St., $25, raised bumper.

Dorothy A. Smith, 38, Sabina, $25, failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

Blanche M. Ashbaugh, 64, of 508 Gregg St., $18, stop sign.

2 Greenfield men receive stiff fines at hearings

Two Greenfield residents appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday on charges of assault which had been filed on private warrants and were found guilty by acting Judge John P. Case.

Paul A. Litteral, 32, of Greenfield, was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail after he was found guilty of assault. Judge Case suspended $100 of the fine and all of the jail sentence.

Litteral, who had pleaded not guilty, had been arrested by city police.

Steven Allison, 35, Rt. 3, Greenfield, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and was fined $100 and sentenced to 10 days in jail. The jail term was suspended. He was also arrested by city police.

Charles R. Carter, 108 Willard St., who had been found guilty of intoxication earlier this month, appeared Wednesday for sentencing. The judge fined him $50 but suspended all of the fine. Carter had been arrested by Sheriff's deputies.

Lloyd E. Burlile, 36, of Bloomingburg, appeared on a charge of disorderly conduct, but the charge was dismissed for lack of prosecution. He had been arrested on a private warrant.

Two persons had been slated for hearing on charges filed by Jerry F. Cremeans, state game protector. Both forfeited bond.

Allen R. Keller, 30, of Columbus, forfeited $25 for fishing without a license.

Mervin L. Law, 24, of Sabina, forfeited $60 for taking a frog out of season.

Hot plate blaze fatal to child

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Firemen blamed children playing with an electric hot plate for an apartment fire that killed one child and seriously injured two others Wednesday.

Fire investigators said the hot plate burned through a living room floor. Flames then spread through the apartment of Mrs. Lana Turner.

She was outside at a barbeque with friends and did not discover the fire upstairs immediately.

Her daughter, Cynthia, 22 months, died. William Turner, 2½, and Monroe Wiley Jr., nine months, were hospitalized. The Wiley child was in critical condition at the Shrine Burn Unit at Cincinnati General Hospital with burns over 40 per cent of his body.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge John W. Keefe, after hearing of the tragedy, released the children's father, Monroe, from jail to be with his family.

On Monday Keefe had sentenced the father to 1-15 years in prison for burglary.

Neighbors broke through a chain-locked door to rescue the children.

'Monkey business' found on farm

Highlander bull, one can't help but wonder how the animal can see. Its long hair falls over its eyes, much like a sheep dog's does.

THE BULL is a golden color and survives well in versatile climates, having well-developed sweat glands to cool it in the summer heat and long hair to keep it warm in the winter cold.

Inside Huff's house are two caged squirrel monkeys. These agile creatures come from the forests of Central and South America and from Costa Rica to Paraguay. They are often seen in their native habitat, jumping 20 feet into the air, from tree-to-tree.

Huff's Texas Longhorn cow and Brahman bull were not around to be seen. Huff explained they were out to pasture and would be rounded up by him in a couple days to be checked on.

The Brahman bull was brought to the United States from India in 1849. Like the Scottish Highlander bull, it too has well-developed sweat glands and can adapt to a versatile climate. The novelty of the Brahman bull is its long drooping ears.

Although Appaloosa stallions are not uncommon in the United States, it is interesting to note it was the Spaniards who first brought them to North America. The Ney Perce' Indians of Idaho and Washington kept these horses in the Palouse River region; hence the name.

Huff's horse, like all others of its kind, is splashed with dark brown or black leopard spots on a roan background.

Maybe Bob Huff missed his calling, but it's not too late to abandon the horse and cattle business. At the rate he's going, "the Bob Huff zoo of Fayette County," could give the one in Columbus some competition!

Pending SEC suit topic for Friday NFO meeting

A pending suit filed by the Securities and Exchange against the National Farmers Organizations will be discussed during a zone meeting of NFO chapters from five counties Friday night.

David Carr, president of the Fayette County NFO chapter, said the meeting will be held at the Five Points Methodist Church, located five miles east of Mount Sterling on Ohio 56. The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

The SEC contends the NFO broke and lied to its members when it borrowed more than $7 million from the commission. The farmers group has been charged with fraud, false statements and failure to disclose information about its financial condition. The NFO says it is not guilty of fraud, but that it does not have enough back membership fees collected.

The suit filed in Des Moines, Iowa, and announced in Washington, came one day after the farm organization's board, in an emergency meeting, unanimously approved a resolution denying any fraud and requesting that the commission make a more thorough investigation.

The SEC suit was explained in detail during an area NFO meeting held Wednesday night at Miami Trace High School, according to Carr.

Nearly 400 persons, representing all NFO chapters in southern Ohio, attended the meeting. Tom Conrad, of Pickaway County, a national NFO director, conducted the meeting.

Firemen receive new equipment

Knowledge of medical equipment and its use doesn't mean a thing when it comes to saving lives, if the necessary equipment isn't available.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department was in desperate need of replacing its old equipment with many of the new inventions medical science has devised.

A $500 check from the South Central Ohio Lung Association made this possible. The last of the new equipment purchased with the money arrived at the fire station Wednesday and Mrs. Robert Goodson, program associate for the association, and Mrs. George Finley, past president of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association (which merged with the South Central Ohio Lung Association) made the formal presentation to the firemen.

The $500 came from Christmas Seal contributions and was used to obtain a resuscitator and aspirator, an airway kit, an esophagal airway, two Kelly hemostats, a cardio-pulmonary-resuscitator board, a jaw spreader, a sphygmomanometer, a stethoscope and other miscellaneous items such as gauze and bandages.

MRS. GOODSON explained Christmas Seal money is always used to promote lung care and this was one of many outlets for the money. She also commented on the merge of the Fayette County TB and Health Association into the South Central Ohio Lung Association.

"Under this new set-up, six counties are covered. They are Fayette, Pickaway, Ross, Pike, Jackson and Lawrence. The main office is in Chillicothe and Mrs. John Summers serves as executive director," she stated.

Nine members of the Washington C.H. Fire Department are certified emergency medical technicians. They are Lt. Cecil Seaman, Lt. John Rockhold, Lt. Bill Smith, and firemen Jay Smith, Darrell Michael, Pat Denen, E.J. Helt and Ronnie Cox.

Certification required a 60-hour course which was held from August through November.

Ned Kinzer, operator of Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home, initiated the training program when he found out about a bill on President Nixon's desk requiring all ambulance personnel to be qualified medical technicians.

Kinzer had six persons to be certified and the maximum class load was set at 20, so he opened the remaining places to firemen, Fayette County Sheriff's deputies and Washington C.H. police officers. Police officers could not participate because of their involvement with the Ohio Revised Code classes, that they were attending at night.

Kinzer footed the bill for textbooks and the instructor's fee which amounted to hundreds of dollars.

Rea to head Demolay here

Mark Rea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Rea, 132 E. Paint St., has been installed as the master councilor of the Fayette Chapter Order of Demolay.

Installing officer was state master councilor Pat King Jr. and he was assisted by Tony Charlie, Jim McGee, Bob Garrison, Chuck Burgoon and Brian Daubenmire.

Other officers installed were Galen Bock, senior councilor, Steve Baughn, junior councilor, Michael Pope, senior deacon, Kevin Earp, junior deacon, Ronnie Vance, senior steward, Jerry Brickles, junior steward, Dan Lowe, scribe, Steve Six, treasurer, John Rhoads, chaplain, and Jim Woods, almoner.

During the ceremony, awards were presented to several members of the chapter and a reception was held following the program in the Masonic Temple.

Horse show set near Leesburg

LEESBURG — The Bar-None Riding Club will sponsor a horse show at the Producers Livestock Association Stockyards, U.S. 62-S, July 4.

Rain or shine there will be seven competitive events during the morning session, beginning at 10 a.m. After a short lunch break, there will be 12 events slated in the afternoon.

There will be trophies and ribbons for the winners and some of the events will have cash awards. Many of the competitions are limited to certain age brackets and four of the events are limited to 4-H members.

Gate admission is $1 and children under 12 years of age will be admitted free.

Firemen douse tiller blaze

A report of a fire at Stitt Greenhouse, 625 Lewis St., which actually turned out to be a blazing roto-tiller, was reported to the Washington C.H. Fire Department at 4:02 p.m. Wednesday.

Wayne McAllister had attempted to start the tiller, not knowing there was a gasoline leak which had saturated magneto.

Firemen extinguished the fire with water and estimated damage at $250, or nearly a total loss.

The greenhouse is owned by Billy Welsh, Bloomingburg.

Rhoads, Gilligan seek coal plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Ohio Gov. John Gilligan and his Republican challenger, former Gov. James Rhodes, both were in the nation's capital Wednesday to seek location of a federal coal conversion plant in the Buckeye State.

They were on separate missions, with Gilligan promoting use of the Old Ben Coal Co. facility near Toledo and Rhodes, acting for his development company, supporting a Belmont County site.

Gilligan accompanied Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to a meeting with officials of the Interior Department's Coal Research Office.

Afterward, they told newsmen they were dismayed with the agency's decision to go for competitive bidding for choosing a company for a coal conversion demonstration.

Metzenbaum said the decision would delay starting the operation until next spring, while the Old Ben plant is ready now to begin demonstration conversion of coal to other energy fuels.

The senator said he had talked to John Sawhill, head of the Federal Energy Office, and Sawhill promised to look into the matter and report back in a few days.

George Fumich of the coal research office said competitive bidding was necessary because tax dollars have been used in developing technology for coal conversion.

Fumich said his office probably will issue a call for bids this week. Companies will have 90 days in which to respond. Fumich said a decision on a company could be reached by spring.

He pointed out that even with demonstration plants converting coal, it would be four to five years before any operation could go full scale.

Rhodes met with Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton to ask for assurances that Ohio would get full consideration and enough time to prepare the agreements necessary for such a large undertaking.

"The catch is that the feasibility studies for the operation were done by a California firm with the arbitrary assumption that the plant would be located in Southern Illinois," Rhodes said.

"Ohio is the best place for both the production and use of coal," he added.

Rhodes said Belmont County officials have identified potential sites which meet the known federal criteria for the plant.

He noted that the county provides the access to both water and rail bulk cargo transport which would make the site equally available to the coals of West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Cycle rider hurt in rural accident

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported visible signs of injury to a Bloomingburg man involved in a motorcycle accident at 10:10 a.m. Wednesday.

Deputies said Jeffrey Lynn Wilson, 16, of Bloomingburg, was traveling northwest on Bloomingburg - New Holland Road, two-tenths of a mile southeast of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad track, when he lost control of the motorcycle he was riding and went down.

Although Wilson did show visible signs of injury, it is not known whether or not he was treated.

The motorcycle incurred moderate damage in the mishap.

Washington C. H. police officers also reported an accident involving a motorcyclist, along with three other traffic mishaps.

Police said a motorcycle driven by Stanley East Jr., 22, of 224 Draper St., was struck in the rear by a car driven by Stephen D. Terrell, 27, Bloomingburg, at the Elm and Cedar street intersection at 2:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Slight damage was reported to East's motorcycle and there were no injures.

A Fayette County man was forced to steer his car into a tree to prevent a collision with oncoming traffic when his brakes failed at 1 p.m. Wednesday on the Oakland Avenue bridge, city police reported.

Robert W. Thompson, 27, was uninjured in the mishap. His car was slightly damaged.

An accident in the Borden Burger parking lot involving cars driven by David R. Parker, 19, London, and Lillian F. Penn, 41, New Vienna, occurred at 12:02 p..m. Wednesday. City police reported slight damage to the Penn auto.

A car owned by Delbert G. West, 637 Bellaire Ave., incurred slight damage when struck in the rear by an unidentified driver, while parked at Washington Square Plaza, Columbus Avenue, between 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday police reported.

Nostalgia hits hard facts

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Toledo's bid to revive a couple of nostalgic forms of transportation is having trouble getting on the track.

The Toledo, Lake Erie & Western Railway has put a diesel on in place of its ancient steam engine, for use on excursion trips. The railroad said the diesel will do the job while repairs are made to leaky flues on the steam engine.

And the Waterfront Electric Railway, Inc., a nonprofit railway planning to operate an electric trolley along the waterfront, says its trolley apparently is sitting on a dock in Portugal.

The railway said bought the trolley from the city of Oporto, Portugal, but the shipper in Oporto has had trouble getting space on a Great Lakes-bound ship.

The longest hunger strike recorded was one of 94 days by nine inmates of Cork Prison, Ireland, from Aug 11 to Nov. 12, 1920.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Impeachment is a matter which weighs heavily on the minds of many Americans today. Because I may one day have to vote on this most serious issue should the House Judiciary Committee report out articles of impeachment, I have refrained, and will continue to refrain, from making any comments or judgments on it until all the facts are in.

What I will not refrain from commenting on, however, is the irresponsible and deplorable manner in which a lot of the facts and fabrications considered behind the closed doors of committee hearings are being leaked to the press. This is a travesty of justice and the perpetrators of these leaks, at the very least, should not be permitted to continue in their positions on the committee staff. After all, Charles Colson was prosecuted, convicted and sentenced to prison for the very same thing.

THE COMMITTEE has been conducting this phase of its impeachment investigation in closed session primarily because the material involved is often relevant to other cases either in court now or pending court action. If the material were to be made public, it would jeopardize these cases and the whole issue of fairness by which we solidly base our judicial system.

Furthermore, the evidence being leaked is selective in nature and not often accurate, nor are the sources totally impeccable. For example, one aide to a committee member, who certainly has made his opposition to the President known many times over, is the author of several memos about evidence damaging to the President. Yet, this same aide was also on the campaign staff of Senator McGovern during the 1972 presidential elections when Watergate occurred. One could infer that there is a possiblity of bias on the part of the person interpreting the evidence, but the trouble is, whether they are accurate or not, the memos he wrote receive almost instant authenticity and credibility once they hit the news media. Few, if any, have the proper means of verifying them, too.

What I strongly object to is the double standard this also involves. Here we have people involved in the prosecution of others for abusing the duties and responsibilities of a particular office, yet they are doing the exact same thing. Where is there own sense of ethics that they would peddle secret testimony or evidence on such a highly sensitive and critical national matter as the impeachment of the President of the United States? It is time the staff members involved in the Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings also take an oath of secrecy as the committee members have done. They should then be discharged from their duties if they break it.

I DO NOT consider this a minor matter. Nor do I think the press has acted in any commendable way by publishing these leaks. Some headline mongers have used the argument of the "public's right to know" without so much as a thought to the equally important "rights of the accused". Considering the implications of the Judiciary Committee's task, responsible reporting and discretion certainly would have been the better part of valor.

Eventually, the public will know the truth, and I believe we are ever coming nearer to the time when we will have all the facts and when we will have an end to Watergate and the terrible problems it has caused. The investigation of the wrong doings should not be turned into a witch hunt or a lynch mob, nor should the constitutionally based impeachment process be belittled and degraded by such shoddy activities. Continued leaks from the Judiciary Committee until its hearings are opened to the public are not only grossly unfair to the President who is under investigation for possible impeachment, but also to the entire country whose future hangs heavily in the balance.

Taft blasts Gov. Gilligan on flooding

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Warren County communities continued cleanup operations in the aftermath of weekend floods and U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, chided Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan for not yet declaring the communities a disaster area.

"At this point in time," Taft said in a release from his Washington office, "delaying each succeeding day only increases the loss to individuals who have suffered damage.

"I am urging the governor to ask for President Nixon's declaration of a disaster based on preliminary information and will seek the earliest possible Presidential declaration and consideration," said Taft.

Officials in Franklin, where a levee burst flooding 104 homes, hoped to have the levee repaired today.

In Lebanon, city officials predicted restoration of full electric power today. Floods damaged the municipal power company.

About half the city of 8,200 was without power after the Saturday storm which dumped 7.2 inches of rain on the area.

The city has been using portable generators plus temporary lines from the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. Part of an alternate power plant has been restored, but City Manager Charles Guard estimated it would take a month or two to repair the main plant.

Taft said Gilligan could proceed on the basis of partial information compiled by federal disaster agencies, which estimated $2.3 million damage as a result of the weekend storms.

He said enough information has been gathered for the Small Business Adminstration to grant funds.

Senior Citizens band wins award

There is rhythm after 60!

Is there rhythm after 60?

The Senior Citizens of Fayette County proved that's when it really begins, by taking the first place trophy in the LeSourdsville Lake Amusement Park talent contest, last week.

Twenty of the 39 participants in the trip to Lesourdsville Lake comprised the band. All of their instruments were homemade and their outfits consisted of meatcutter hats donated by Neil Helfrich, of Helfrich's Super Market and red scarves fashioned from red cloth they had purchased.

Before the band stole the show and walked away with the trophy during the talent contest at 1:30 p.m., there were games to play from 10 a.m. until noon, then a lunch to eat and dancing in the ballroom.

Floyd Dowler, 92, performed a specialty dance number with Cora Fultz, 74, and Pauline Richardson performed a solo dance number. The dance numbers were accompanied by the band.

Dowler was selected as the recipient of the Lesourdsville Lake Amusement Park "Oldest Man 1974" trophy.

U.S. taxes may hurt lottery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— John Kirkland, executive director of the Ohio Lottery, says federal gambling tax regulations could cost the state 10 per cent of its lottery revenue and create problems for the Lottery Commission.

If the state has to meet the federal regulations, $12 million of the expected annual lottery receipts of $120 million would go for taxes.

Kirkland said Wednesday Ohio has joined eight other states in fighting the Internal Revenue Service regulations.

He said problems could arise if the 9,000 lottery ticket sales agents have to buy gambling licenses.

There might be problems "especially in large supermarkets where technically each clerk that sells tickets would have to be licensed," the director said.

Federal law requires owners of games of chance to pay 10 per cent of the receipts in excise taxes, and those who operate the games must buy annual $50 gambling stamps.

Representatives of Ohio and the other states met earlier this week with IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander in Washington. Alexander has said that state lotteries, as they are now structured, come under the federal gambling laws.

Woman fights to save homestead

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

WAYNE, W. Va. (AP) — Ethel Carson says she has given up on the federal government and has begun relying solely on God to save her family homestead.

"I'm just praying that God will keep their hands off me until He finds me another place to go to," the 66-year-old widow said as she sat on the porch of the old frame farmhouse her father built at the turn of the century.

Mrs. Carson lives on Miller's Fork Road in rural Wayne County.

It's a land of overgrown fields and weed-choked driveways leading to houses no longer there. The road is rutted. Humped groundhogs laze boldly along the roadway and a passing automobile sends scores of rabbits springing off in every direction.

Once scores of farm families lived along the road, but no longer. Almost everyone has left, except for Mrs. Carson, Pearl Blankenship—a widow who lives down the road and is in the process of moving out— and a few others.

The Miller's Fork exodus began three years ago when the federal government came in and began condemnation proceedings in preparation for the Beech Fork Lake project.

"They're all gone now," Mrs. Carson observed one day last week. She grew up on Miller's Fork, left when she was 18 and returned nine years ago to take care of her aged father. "And them federals have told me to leave, too, three different times. Now they say I've got to be gone by July 1st."

Mrs. Carson said she accepted the government's final offer of $15,000 for her house and surrounding six-acre bottom, but that more than $2,000 of that money went for attorneys' fees and her father's funeral expenses.

"Now I've just got $13,000 left and I can't find a place for that," she said. "I'd leave if they'd treat me right but I can't find no place for $13,000. I can't go into debt, all I got coming in is $111 a month from Social Security.

"The government people tell me to get out and move into one of them projects but I've got to have some land for a garden. That's food, you know."

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office at Huntington said of all the land condemnation cases his office had handled throughout southern West Virginia, Mrs. Carson's was one of the most perplexing.

"We've never had a situation that's gone beyond a writ of assistance," he said. "But sooner or later we're going to have to take her out bodily. Right now we're trying to get her son to reason with her."

Back on Miller's Fork Mrs. Carson sat on her porch and fanned away a fly.

"Some of those govenment men told me they'd set me out in the yard," she said, flicking at the insect. "And I told them go right ahead. I told them I can die and go to heaven out in the yard as well as anyplace else ... and believe me, that's my goal."

OFBF sets campaign on prices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation has launched a campaign to fight low farm prices by identifying retail stores charging the highest food prices.

The theory is that if retail prices can be forced down, consumption will be stimulated, pumping more money into farm prices.

The plan was formulated at a meeting here of all of the state's 86 county farm bureau presidents.

Mike Lafferty, a spokesman for the farm bureau, said the county officials agreed that "farm prices have been down long enough, retail prices have been up long enough and it's time they got back in line."

Local farm bureaus will begin policing retail stores, identifying those with the highest and lowest prices and any found engaging in price gouging, Lafferty said.

The survey reports will be available in county offices for public inspection, either in person or by telephone.

Lafferty said it was possible that the survey results might be published if the initial plan doesn't result in a drop in retail prices.

Lafferty said the prices paid farmers for their products have dropped 12 per cent since the first of the year, while retail prices have risen.

Jehovah's Witnesses open Cincy meet

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Some 32,000 delegates from Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia are expected for the opening of a four-day convention of Jehovah's Witnesses today at Riverfront Stadium.

The assembly, called "Divine Purpose," is one of 85 such gatherings planned by the sect this summer in the United States and Canada.

Day Camps set

4-H Roundup

By CATHY WHITE
4-H Program Assistant

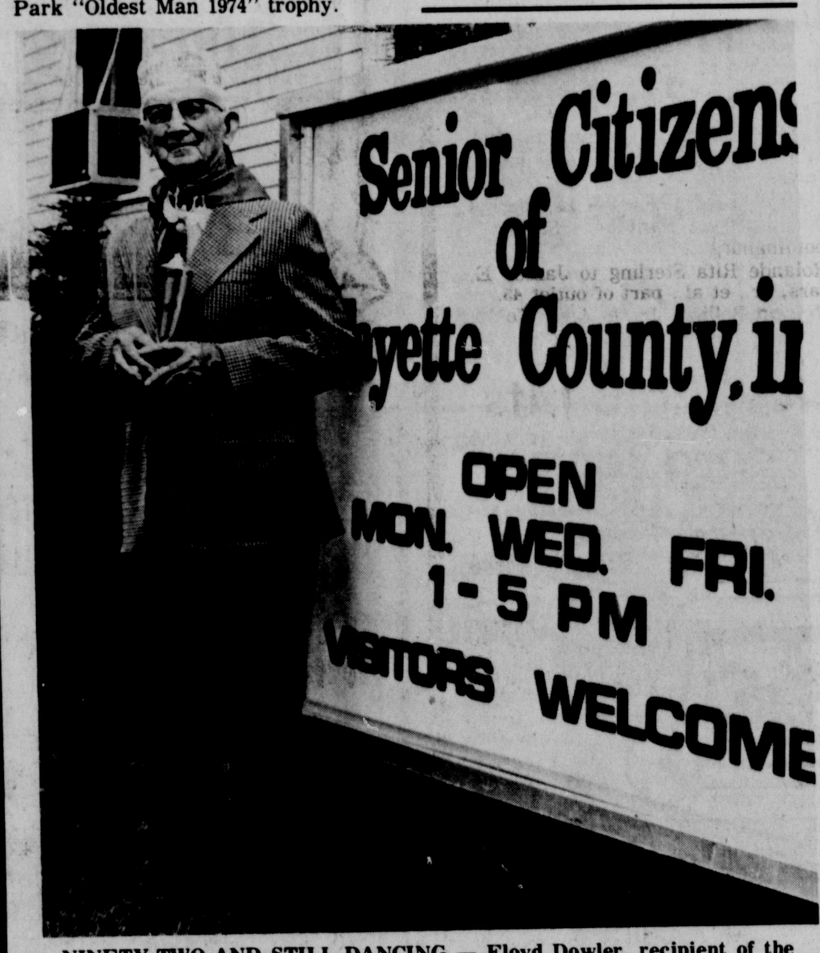
Most of you may think that this is a busy time for 4-H because of the fair coming up next month. That isn't the only reason 4-H is busy this time of year Another big event is coming up - 4-H Day Camp 1974 is just around the corner for all youth 9-11 years old.

There will be three camps this year lasting eight days each. The first camp will be at Good Shepherd Church, 1003 N. North St., July 8-11 and July 15-18. The last two camps will both be at Eastside Elementary School. One will take place July 29 - August 1 and August 5 - 8, and the other will be August 12 - 15 and August 19 - 22. The time for each day of camp for every Day Camp will be from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The cost of Day Camp will be 50 cents per child for the entire eight days of Day Camp. There will be a discount if there are several children in the family. A morning snack, lunch and medical insurance will be provided for each camper.

A choice of a mini 4-H project consisting of bicycle, sewing, cooking, or woodworking will be offered to each camper. Along with his or her chosen project such things as games, physical fitness, movies, ecology and music will be offered to all campers; not to mention the special programs and visitors coming to Day Camp this year.

Any additional information about Day Camp 1974 can be obtained by calling the Fayette County Extension Office (335-1150) or stopping in at the office, 319 S. Fayette St. Just ask for one of the camp directors. They are Janelle Donahue and Cathy White.



NINETY-TWO AND STILL DANCING — Floyd Dowler, recipient of the LeSourdsville Lake Amusement Park "Oldest Man 1974" trophy, did a specialty dance number with Cora Fultz, 74, and also performed in the Fayette County Senior Citizens band, which took first place in the talent show, recently at LeSourdsville Lake.

Norman holds Astros to five hits

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Fred Norman likes those pressure situations like Wednesday night's 9-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Since the Reds scored six of their runs in the ninth inning, it was more of a pressure situation for the 5-foot-8 lefty, who improved his record to 8-5.

"I do like the pressure," said Norman after holding the Astros to five hits. "I wasn't getting the ball where I wanted it tonight and it was a matter of concentration. Pressure makes you concentrate."

Norman's ground ball in the fifth inning and Astros' left fielder Bob Watson's solo home run in the fourth made for a 1-1 deadlock until Dave Concepcion's home run put Cincinnati ahead for good in the seventh.

Third baseman Dan Driessen made it 3-1 in the eighth with another home run, and the bottom fell out for Houston in the ninth inning.

Driessen's homer and a walk to Merv Rettenmund chased Houston starter and loser Don Wilson, and two Astros' relievers, Mike Cosgrove and Fred Scherman, were treated harshly by the Reds in the ninth.

Cosgrove issued three hits and two walks before leaving and Scherman wild-pitched home a run and walked in another run with the bases loaded.

Former Astro Joe Morgan doubled home two runs and Rettenmund and Darrel Chaney each singled home runs.

"I've had to live with pressure all my life because of my size," Norman said. "Coaches have told me all along that I'd have to go twice as hard because I'm small."

"But I think the best thing I've got going for me now is confidence. I think I can get any one of four pitches over at any time.

"I let them (opposing hitters) chase me. I have so many pitches that they have to seek me out."

Elsewhere in the NL, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Atlanta Braves 5-4; the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 12 innings; the Montreal Expos blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates pounded the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2, and the San Diego Padres dropped the San Francisco Giants 4-0.

The smaller the lead, the better Norman thinks he pitches.

It was a pressure-packed game until the Reds' big bats roughed up two Houston pitchers in the ninth.

Jim Reeves signs with Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Reeves, a 20-year-old outfielder for the University of Texas, signed Wednesday night with the Cincinnati Reds and will report Saturday to Tampa of the Florida State League.

Reeves, selected fourth by Cincinnati in the free agent draft, signed after his team completed play in the college world series.

Cincinnati has now signed 22 of 25 players selected and 14 of the top 15 selections.

Angels blanked on two hits by Oakland's Dave Hamilton

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Dave Hamilton is finding his touch, but he's still suspicious about it. Bill Lee is losing his, but isn't worried.

Hamilton has been assured by Oakland Manager Alvin Dark that he's part of the A's starting rotation. If Dark needed any assurance that Hamilton belongs in it, he got it Wednesday, when the left-hander two-hit the California Angels 5-0.

Lee, the southpaw ace of Boston's staff, was pounded for 11 hits by Milwaukee, but he didn't seem too concerned, and neither did Manager Darrell Johnson after the Brewers' 7-1 rout of the Red Sox.

In Wednesday's other American League games, Kansas City edged Chicago 2-1 in 12 innings, Baltimore nipped Detroit 5-4, Cleveland beat New York 3-2 and Minnesota mauled Texas 9-4.

Hamilton, with the first shutout of his major league career, raised his record to 5-1.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 1

"He threw all right, but he made some bad pitches," Johnson said of Lee. "He's been making some mistakes lately and also has been bothered by a blister, but he'll be all right ...."

And Lee said with a shrug: "I had good stuff, but it just wasn't in the cards for me to win. I didn't have that fine control."

Ed Sprague had it. He checked Boston on four hits, including Carlton Fish's double and Rico Petrocelli's single in the fifth.

Royals 2, White Sox 1

Paul Splittorff went all 12 innings against Chicago, giving up just six hits.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Ross Grimsley pitched a five-hitter for Baltimore—not exactly the kind to write home about, though. Two of the Tigers' hits were homers by Mickey Stanley and Ed Brinkman.

Fortunately for the Orioles, Paul Blair, Don Baylor and Jim Fuller belted homers, too. But it took Andy Etchebarren's tie-breaking single in the ninth inning to beat Detroit.

Indians 3, Yankees 2

Right-hander Steve Arlin, acquired from San Diego about two weeks ago, blanked the Yankees until the sixth, when consecutive singles by Gene Michael, Elliott Maddox and Chris Chambliss chased him.

Twins 9, Rangers 4

Tony Oliva drove in four runs, three of them with a homer that highlighted the Twins' 14-hit attack.

Youth leagues

Girls softball

Center Pizza and Weekly Advertisers came up with softball victories in the Girls' Softball League, Wednesday evening. Center Pizza defeated Jeff Royal Blue 24-20, as Nancy Binzel cracked a home run and a triple for the winners. Advertisers downed Jeff Royal Blue 15-6. Terri Williams was the winning pitcher.

Washington Little League

While Wilson Field is still being readied for Major League play, the Minor League continued its action with Sagars handing the Elks a 9-6 loss and Bumgarners stopping 1st Federal 9-7.

Seven errors proved very costly to the Elks. Ken Eddlemon, who was the winning pitcher, struck out 10 batters.

Although Bumgarners only collected three hits, 1st Federal collected a 9-7 triumph. Tony Marti doubled twice for the losers. Kearns was the winning pitcher.

Strike may eliminate NFL exhibition games

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike that could eliminate the National Football League exhibition season appeared probable today after NFL owners and players reached a major impasse in new contract negotiations.

The NFL Players Association has said the union will strike Monday unless its 63 demands, including the so-called "freedom demands," are met.

The contract talks were broken off Wednesday after two hours of discussions, midway through a scheduled three-day meeting that began Tuesday. Federal mediator James Scearce said the negotiations had reached a point "where we cannot be constructive."

Scearce said the two parties have agreed to meet upon his call but both owners and players agreed the strike will take place Monday, two days before San Diego is to open the first of the 26 NFL training camps.

"The gauntlet is down," declared Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, NFLPA president. "There is going to have to be a power play. We're going to have to conduct a strike."

The players' union declined to estimate how long the impending strike might last but said the organization planned to set up picket lines around the annual College All-Star game in Chicago July 26 and the training sites of the two teams involved, including the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins.

John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, said the owners attempted to explain Wednesday the report made public several weeks ago showing that each team made a pretax profit of $940,000 last season. The union claims the owners made approximately $2.3 million apiece.

After the morning session, the two sides broke for lunch. When they returned, however, Scearce met with the players after talking to the owners and said it would be better to recess the negotiations.

Russia—U.S. track competition slated

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — International socializing will turn into on-the-field competition Friday when United States and Russian teen-agers begin seeking track and field victories for themselves and their countries.

The competition is restricted to men 19 or younger and women 18 or younger.

It will be third annual junior meet involving the men. The Soviets won the first meet in 1972 at Sacramento, Calif., 124-108, and the United States won last year at Odessa, USSR, 123-108.

Reiber's return ruined by three unearned runs

Post 25 hands Portsmouth 3-2 win

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

PORTSMOUTH — Although Randy Reiber finally made his long-awaited debut on the mound for Post 25; it was the Portsmouth jinx which won out in the end. Taking a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the seventh frame. Portsmouth scored one run with the aid of a hotly contested balk and came up with another in the bottom of the eighth frame for a 3-2 victory.

By scoring a run in both the seventh and eighth frames, it maked the third time Portsmouth had snatched victory from the grasp of Court House. In the last trip to Portsmouth, Post 25 also carried leads into the final inning; but they came out on the losing note in 7-6 and 5-4 decisions.

Once again, the winning run was scored by means of an error. Tied 2-2 going into the bottom of the eighth inning, Reiber walked Barry Sparks. However, Sparks was thrown out when Brian Bays hit into a fielder's choice.

Singles by Randy Ratcliff and Andy Vetter filled the bases; but in an attempt to throw Ratcliff out at second, Post 25 catcher Paul England threw the ball wildly into centerfield and the winning run crossed the plate.

Court House had taken a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the final inning. With one out and the score tied 1-1, England smashed a curve ball over the left-center field wall for a solo home run.

Post 25's lead was short-lived. In the bottom of the seventh inning, Portsmouth's Mike Stapleton singled to center and Jeff Miller came in to run for him. Jeff Cattle sacrificed him to second and Miller advanced to third on a questionable balk. Scott Sturgill singled to right field to score Cottle with the tying run.

Despite jamming his shoulder early in the season, Reiber was in top form in his debut on the mound. Yielding a pair of hits in both the seventh and eighth innings, Reiber gave up a total of six hits and no earned runs during the night. He struck out eight batters and walked just two.

Portsmouth starter Dave Bush lasted seven innings. He gave up a total of two runs and five hits. Bush struck out 11 in five innings and walked seven. Relief pitcher Bob Adkins picked up the victory, as he struck out two batters.

Portsmouth took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. After being hit by a pitch, Sparks was advanced to second on a sacrifice by John Newberry. A single to left field by Ratcliff, scored Sparks.

With Portsmouth leading 1-0, Washington Court House came up with a run in the third frame. With one out, first baseman Allan Coppock reached base on an error. Walks to Reiber and Tom Riley loaded the bases with two outs. Second baseman Mark Scherer delivered a single to tie the score.

For the remainder of the game, Reiber and Bush were locked in a pitcher's duel. Although he did not strike out anyone and ran into control problems in the first couple of innings, Bush finally settled down and struck out 11 batters in the final five innings.

Saturday afternoon, Post 25, which is now 3-5 in South Central Ohio League play, travels to Chillicothe Post 62 for a 1 p.m. doubleheader. On Sunday, Hillsboro arrives to the Washington Senior High diamond for a 2 p.m. doubleheader.

Archeological treasures found in Greek Museum's stock rooms

By PAUL ANASTASIADES

ATHENS (AP) — Greece's National Archeological Museum, the world's richest in ancient Greek and Roman art, has discovered further treaures under its very nose—in fact, in its huge basement.

In a lecture given by Nicholas Yalouris, the museum's director, it was revealed that "wondrous archeological pieces of art, almost priceless, have been discovered in the basement of our museum."

Yalouris explained that, following quiet excavations over the past 25 years in the museum basement stock rooms, he decided to reveal that a rich collection of antiquities was discovered, ranging from pre-historic to post-Roman times and including stone, metal and clay works.

He said they were found "in layers stacked on top of each other," some crates with antiquities still unopened since being taken from their excavation sites in the 19th and earlier 20th centuries.

Paintings, charts or serial numbers explaining the origins of the antiquities had been destroyed by insects and rats, or faded by time. In many cases the museum had the original antiquity on exhibit, but with a part of it broken off and missing—the head of a warrior, for example. The missing parts, which when added sharply increase the over-all value of the work, were often found among "the pieces left downstairs."

Many of the antiquities unearthed from the museum basement were from the museum basement were from the Mycenean period, including an elephant ivory model of a war galleon and a warrior's helmet.

There was also armored plating for a warrior's heel found in a Mycenean tomb, a revelation which added further credibility to the "Achilles heel" concept and the belief that a warrior was conpletely neutralized when wounded in the hell. The heel shielding in the museum cell is the oldest in the world yet to be discovered, Yalouris said. An ornately engraved ivory comb and a compass further revealed the Mycenean finer tastes in life.

Amidst the immeasurable treasures found—copper and stone seals and vases of 15th century B.C. depicting Greek gods and legends, jewelry, house ornaments, weaponry—one item stood out above all else.

It was the engraving of the head of a sea monster dating back to the 5th century B.C., which after extensive matching was found to belong to the western pediment of the Parthenon on the Acropolic—the country's No. 1 world-renowned archeological gem.

Engraving of the sea monster's back and body had already been found and preserved at the Acropolis museum, and when put together fit under the feet of the Goddess Amphitrite, who can be seen on the Parthenon's upper western pediment.

In the spring and fall, hordes of students crowd the more popular temple grounds and gardens of Kyoto. Tourist buses jamn narrow streets.

In 1972, commercial honey production in the United States reached 106,050,000 pounds, up 13 per cent from 1971.

Meat quota unlikely to resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are strong signals that the Nixon administration soon will decide against reimposing meat import quotas to help U.S. cattlemen and will cite figures showing shipments from foreign suppliers are dropping substantially of their own accord.

Meantime, there still is no apparent breakthrough in negotiations to let U.S. cattle and beef begin entering Canada, a market that has been shut off since April 9 because of Canadian fears that some products might be tainted with DES, a controversial livestock growth hormone.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Bell was dispatched last week to New Zealand, Australia and Japan to check on the foreign meat situation, particularly on reports that foreign supplies were being held back from the U.S. and other world markets.

Bell reportedly said in Australia that he felt the United States was not likely to reimpose beef import quotas nor insist on "voluntary restraint" agreements to hold down shipments the remainder of this year.

Assistant Secretary Clayton K. Yeutter told a reporter Wednesday he believed Bell had found assurance that Australian meat shipments were being reduced substantially. He said Bell had filed earlier reports showing similar cutbacks in New Zealand.

Together the two countries provide about 70 per cent of the quota-type meat, mostly low grade beef, imported by the U.S.

Earlier, Agriculture Secrrtary Earl L. Butz had estimated total imports this calendar year would be a record 1.575 billion pounds.

But last week Butz said he expected that figure to be shaved at least 200 million pounds when new figures are available. A new estimate based for the most part on Bell's findings will be issued soon, possibly this week.

The Canadian situation remains sticky. Congress and the administration are caught up in a swirl of efforts to help U.S. livestock producers recover from a severe financial crunch and want to reopen the $100 million Canadian beef market.

Yeutter said he believed, however, the Canadians want to delay settling the dispute until after their national elections July 8. He said talks are continuing in the administration on possible counter measures, including the possibility of curbing Canada's exports to the United States.

"Certainly, we would rather resolve the matter by negotiations," Yeutter said. "But if that's impossible, we certainly need to look at all the options and that is one of them."

If melted at a uniform rate, the Antarctic icecap would yield about six million cubic miles of water — enough to feed the Mississippi River for 50,000 years, all United States rivers for 17,000 years or all rivers in the world for 750 years.

Opening lead - two of spades.

A defender seldom deliberately paints a false picture of his hand. Bridge is a partnership game, and to transmit false messages to partner would strike at the very core of successful defense.

But there are isolated hands where you don't care a tinker's dam whether partner is fooled or not, and in such cases it may be possible to perform wondrous things by deceiving partner. Here is such a case.

Assume you're East and partner leads a spade on which declarer plays the eight from dummy. Undoubtedly the normal play is the ten, forcing declarer's ace.

If you now put yourself in declarer's shoes for a moment, you can see that he will inevitably make six hearts. He draws three rounds of trumps, cashes four clubs discarding a spade from dummy, and takes a diamond finesse. When it succeeds, he is home free. His only loser is a spade.

Now let's go back to trick one and play the king of spades instead of the ten! This play may make your partner unhappy, for he will think South has the A-Q-10, but his grief will be only temporary.

When you play the king, declarer is almost certain to think your partner led from Q-10-x-x, and, if he does, he is sure to go down. He will draw trumps and sooner or later play a spade to the J-9, expecting to establish a spade trick and render the diamond finesse unnecessary.

It is almost inconceivable that he would first cash four clubs in order to discard a spade from dummy, because that would compel him to rely on a diamond finesse for the slam.

By playing the king you offer declarer the illusory chance to discard a diamond from dummy on the fourth club. South is almost certain to avail himself of this offer, and thus encompass his own destruction.

Close Look at Boxing

Our 15-year-old boy is big and strong and an excellent athlete. His high school coach wants him to try out for the boxing team. Because I strongly object, it has caused much unpleasantness in our home. How do you feel about this sport?

Mrs. H.B., Ill.

Dear Mrs. B.:

It is difficult for me to be totally objective about boxing.

The so-called manly art of boxing is fraught with possible dangers. In amateur and professional fights noses are broken, jaws are fractured and cauliflower ears are not uncommon.

The boxing literature is filled with evidence of permanent brain damage, the result of hemorrhages in the brain, following a fight.

There will be those, of course, who will deny that this is a dangerous sport and say that it is no more hazardous than others. This may be true, but in many contact sports head gear and protective devices can prevent injuries.

If the point system were used exclusively in professional and amateur boxing, then protective headgear could be worn to insure complete safety.

Whenever I ask my doctor what the prognosis is about my condition, he seems to avoid the answer. If the diagnosis can be made, why not the prognosis, too?

Mr. S.M., Wash.

Dear Mr. M.:

Diagnosis is a very specific conclusion which the doctor arrives at after a complete evaluation of the patient's condition.

Laboratory tests, X-rays and a physical examination are made in individual cases. Complete evaluation pinpoints the cause of disease.

Prognosis is a prediction of how a disease will progress and how soon it might terminate.

Doctors often avoid forecasting specific details about how long a condition will last.

In some instances, of course, it is possible for the doctor to anticipate time with a reasonable amount of certainty. In other instances, it may be impossible to predict the course of an illness or its duration.

Blue Cross to fight new rules

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There appears to be little doubt that the Department of Insurance's proposed rules for state regulation of the seven Ohio Blue Cross plans will be challenged in court.

Testimony opposing and supporting the rules was presented at a departmental hearing Wednesday.

Blue Cross spokesmen labeled them unconstitutional. Backers said Blue Cross had cozy relationships with hospitals and failed to respond to the needs of subscribers.

Insurance Director Kenneth E. DeShetler, who conducted the hearings, said a review of the testimony would be made in the next few weeks.

Twenty days will be given for submission of proposed changes and additions. The rules are expected to be filed within 30 days.

"That is if the Blue Cross systems don't go to court trying to stop us," said Robert V. McDavitt, public relations director for the department.

Kiehner Johnson, an attorney for Blue Cross, said the proposed rules violated constitutional requirements that a state agency could assume only powers given it by the legislature.

Johnson said attempts to regulate contracts between Blue Cross and hospitals was "an unconstitutional exercise of legislative authority that takes away the right of private corporations to manage their own affairs."

The chief witness for the department was Sylvia Law, a professor of law at New York University and author of the book, "Blue Cross: What Went Wrong?"

The insurance department hosted Miss Law and her book later in the day at a downtown hotel. The press was invited by a department news release.

Miss Law contended, upon questioning by DeShetler, that Blue Cross should keep "an arms length" from the hospitals it serves.

One of the provisions in the rules is that two-thirds of the trustees of Blue Cross be comprised of subscribers. Miss Law said subscribers went unnoticed in Blue Cross operations.

"Blue Cross plans should be controlled by the subscribers, not the hospitals," she said. She suggested purchasing agents for hospitals be required to get competitive bids for insurance plans.

"The issue at stake is not just controlling hospital costs," she said. "It is really a question of democracy..."

Earl Kammer of Cincinnati, president of Blue Cross of Southwest Ohio, said the proposed rules ignored what Blue Cross had done was an attempt to "magnify the deficiencies."

Jeff Masons honor Owens

JEFFERSONVILLE — To live 65 years is an accomplishment in itself, but to be a Mason 65 years, having joined at the age of 21, is really something!

Justin L. Owens was honored in his home in Jeffersonville Wednesday for doing just that.

Owens has been a member of the Jeffersonville Lodge No. 468 F&AM during his 65-year membership.

Owens attained the degree of master Mason in 1909 and became master of the Jeffersonville Lodge in 1926. He has a son, Robert Owens, who became master of the Jeffersonville Lodge in 1946 and a grandson, David Owens, who is an active Mason and another grandson, Richard Owens, who is presently pursuing his degree work with the lodge.

Justin Owens has received gold pins for 50 years, 60 years and now, 65 years of active involvement in the Masons. He still attends the semi-monthly lodge meetings which require him to climb three flights of stairs.

The Jeffersonville Lodge has two other 65-year members. They are Glenn Brock and Fred W. Conner. The lodge itself, founded in 1873, is in its 101st year of existence.

Authorities look other way as beach nudity increases

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — The lifeguard strolled out of his station 200 yards from the cresting waves, glanced around at about 200 naked men and women and sighed, "Yep, it's going to be a fun summer."

It has been that way all year for Randy Steigely, a guard for six years on the heavily used beach in this Los Angeles district. The guys and gals have been taking off their clothes and authorities have been looking the other way.

"We've told the police that if the activity is pure nudity and nothing else ... we don't feel there's any violation of state law and we have no desire to make arrests," said Asst. Los Angeles City Atty. Dave Perez.

Steigely, 23, said Wednesday that more than 10,000 bathers and sightseers flocked last Sunday to his stretch of Venice sands, a flat, open beach adjacent to a residential area.

"Yeah, it was wall-to-wall people from this station to that one, over there," he said, gesturing 400 yards north. "I'd say about 4,000 of 'em were naked."

An attractive 17-year-old girl, also sans clothing, said:

"I've always wanted to take my clothes off at the beach because I like the feeling. But where I'm from, Queens, N.Y., you wouldn't think of doing such a thing.

Car damaged

An unidentified male threw a can at a car driven by Sylvia June Jones, Old Chillicothe Road, as she drove from the Washington Square Plaza parking lot and onto Elm Street, at 3:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Washington C.H. police officers reported the incident caused the chrome stripping on the top of her car to come loose.

Partial atom ban sought

Nixon arrives in Moscow for talks with Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon arrived in Moscow today for his third summit meeting with Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. The President hoped his visit would produce a partial ban on underground nuclear weapons tests and a slowdown on nuclear arms development by the two superpowers.

Brezhnev was at the VIP Vnukovo Airport, decked with American and Soviet flags, to welcome the President. Two years ago when Nixon arrived in Moscow for their first summit, Brezhnev did not go to the airport to greet him. His presence today was seen as a sign of regard for the American president.

The President, with Mrs. Nixon on his right, smiled and waved as he walked down the ramp of the blue and white presidential jet under bright, sunny skies. A crowd of about 400 persons was at the airport to greet Nixon.

Nixon first reviewed an honor guard, which hailed him with the cheer, "We wish you health." He then heard a military band play the Soviet and American national anthems. Then he and his wife shook hands with some persons in the crowd, who were waving small American and Soviet flags.

Brezhnev and Nixon smiled frequently and chatted with each other as they walked through the crowd, and Nixon waved several times to the well-wishers, who included a contingent from the American Embassy.

Nixon then watched a brief military parade, headed into the airport lounge and prepared to motor into the city.

At the President's first Moscow summit, in May 1972, the Soviets accorded Nixon a cooly correct welcome and Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny was the chief greeter.

U.S. won't accept atom disadvantage

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Nixon administration, in a presummit tactic, has put Soviet leaders on notice that it will not accept a nuclear disadvantage and is prepared to continue the arms race "as long as we must."

At the same time, the administration has taken the precaution of notifying the American people that they shouldn't expect too much in the way of weapons controls from President Nixon's Kremlin talks with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The double set of signals was flashed at a Brussels news conference Wednesday night by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The United States probably retains an over-all weapons advantage because of its edge in deployed warheads and delivery systems, Kissinger said. But there has been a technological explosion since the 1972 interim nuclear arms treaty that puts pressure on both the big powers.

On the Soviet side, missiles with multiple independently targetable (MIRV) warheads may soon be deployed, Kissinger reported. But he added, "at what rate they will deploy them, it is not yet fully possible to foretell."

The secretary said that unless Washington and Moscow can agree on limitations within the next 18 months, it will be almost impossible to reverse the development of Soviet arms.

"It becomes harder with every passing six-month period," he noted glumly. "One reason, obviously, is the high cost of setting up a MIRV system."

Kissinger said the differences between the two governments on how to calculate their strengths to reach an agreed standoff are so great that a ban on offensive systems "will certainly not be completed in the form of any permanent agreement on this visit."

Moreover, he said, "it is impossible that there will be an extension of the interim agreement unless it is tied to some substantial agreement on multiple warheads, and that probably will also not be fully achieved at the summit."

He said an agreement in principle could emerge from Nixon's third annual meeting with Brezhnev, as well as a ban on some underground tests.

THE WIND will definitely be a factor in future tests of the disaster alert siren mounted atop the roof of the Courthouse building. . .

Washington C. H. Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen reported to City Council members Wednesday night on the test conducted last Friday. . . He said that at the time of the test there was a wind of between five and eight miles per hour. . . The wind affected the siren blast in such a manner that it was only heard in the vicinity of the Kroger Co. complex on the west end of the city, but as far as Bloomingburg to the east. . .

The disaster alert siren will be sounded on the first day of every new season. . . The tests are conducted at 12 noon. . .

REPORTS indicate that a surprisingly large number of parents have purchased or ordered copies of the fast-selling book "Down Through the Golden Years" for their children. . .

Author B.E. Kelley said many others are buying the book for birthday or Christmas gifts for friends and relatives. . . The author said the largest single sale to date was 12 copies. . .

Nearly all of the 500 copies from the first printing have been purchased, with the exception of some on reserve, and about all of the 250 copies from the second printing have either been pledged or purchased, according to Kelley. . . .The book, priced at $15.60, can be purchased at the Fayette County Museum from 2 until 6 p.m. daily. . .

Parking meter fines hiked

Legal counsel to collect unpaid city income taxes

Washington C.H. City Council Wednesday night agreed to employ legal counsel to prepare proceedings for the collection of delinquent city income taxes.

Council members also approved legislation to increase parking meter fines and accepted an application for the annexation of a tract of land into Washington C.H.

The city's legislators withdrew a piece of legislation pertaining to the posting of gasoline prices at Washington C.H. service stations, tabled an ordinance dealing with the closing of an alley, reviewed two liquor permit applications and discussed a new street lighting proposal for Columbus Avenue.

AN EMERGENCY ordinance employing Hess and Simpson attorneys, 226 E. Market St., as legal counsel to begin preparations for the collection of three-year-old city income taxes was unanimously approved.

The Washington C.H. law firm will be seeking the payment of delinquent income taxes from approximately 200 city residents. The city income tax was levied in 1971.

The fee charged by the law firm will be $3,300. The money to pay the fee will be derived from the unpaid taxes which are collected, according to a provision in the ordinance.

City Manager Dan Wolford said a total of 500 delinquent tax cases have been shaved to under 200 as early last year the city contacted many of those who had not paid and collected on 333 of the cases.

Additional coverage of Wednesday night's City Council meeting can be found on page 8 of today's edition.

The remaining delinquent taxpayers have been notified at least three times by mail, according to Wolford.

The city has been attempting to collect the remaining unpaid taxes, but has been stalled by personnel changes in the city solicitor's office and an overloaded court docket.

Wolford said all of the cases fall within the statute of limitations for prosecution. He said the city has six years to prosecute those failing to file or those who filed fraudulent tax returns.

Prior to action on the measure, Council chairman John E. Rhoads said the Sugar Creek Packing Co., located in the city's Industrial Park, paid "a substantial amount" of delinquent income taxes Wednesday.

Council member Bertha McCullough questioned whether the firm had any advanced knowledge that the ordinance would be appearing on Wednesday's agenda. Rhoads assured Mrs. McCullough the company did not.

FOLLOWING a lengthy discussion concerning the present parking meter fine structure, Council members agreed to increase the penalties for violations.

Presently, there are seven parking violations. The standard meter violation is established by the city; the others are determined in Municipal Court.

The present fine structire is 50 cents for the first 24 hours; $1 if the fine is paid within 10 days; $2 for the payment of a fine after 10 days, and $5 after the violator has been notified by the city.

After a suggestion by Councilman Billie Wilson, the fine structure was established as $1 within the first 24

HHH manager, fund scheme linked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Senate Watergate committee says it has evidence Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's former campaign manager helped engineer a scheme to funnel $137,000 in illegal corporate aid to Democrats, including Humphrey.

The campaign manager, Minneapolis attorney Jack L. Chestnut, refused to testify under oath about the affair on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself, the staff said in a confidential report.

A former top campaign aid to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, Joe P. Johnson, also invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify about apparently illegal aid to Mills' brief 1972 presidential campaign, the report said.

It said Humphrey's 1972 presidential campaign got $25,000 in apparently illegal corporate aid from the nation's largest dairy cooperative, Associated Milk Producers, Inc. The $25,000 was part of $137,000 in illegal AMPI contributions, the report said.

And, in separate donations, it said, Mills' presidential effort got corporate aid of $75,000 from the milk producers and $1,000 from a sister dairy co-op, Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.

Also, both Humphrey and Mills received previously undisclosed campaign gifts of $1,000 each from Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, Co., the report said.

A spokeswoman for Humphrey said he had not seen the report and "he won't want to comment on it until it is in its final form."

Mills could not be reached for comment.

The report said both Humphrey and Mills had been asked to submit to interviews with one of the committee's members, but that neither had complied with the request.

Humphrey sent a letter saying that he knew nothing about the matters being investigated. Mills, after being asked twice to cooperate with the committee, sent word through a lawyer that he would do so at some later time, but so far hasn't arranged a meeting.

Humphrey also failed to produce all the documents sought by committee investigators, the report said, indicating failure of Mills and Humphrey to cooperate fully hindered the investigation.

The report, a copy of which The Associated Press obtained, was circulated to committee members Wednesday but hasn't been adopted.

One section of the two-volume report focuses on Chestnut's role in the payment of $137,000 to a Minneapolis computer-mail firm for lists of potential Democratic voters used by Humphrey and other Democrats in 1971.

The report cited no evidence that Humphrey or the others who benefited from the arrangement were aware themselves that corporate money was paying for the lists, which were compiled for use in Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas and South Dakota.

Ehrlichman trial jury being picked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among the likely witnesses in the trial of John D. Ehrlichman and three others accused in the plumbers case are a former president of Cuba, a former Treasury secretary and two policemen from California.

The four were among 57 listed as likely to appear in the trial that began with jury selection Wednesday and continues today.

They are Dr. Carlos Prio Socarra, Cuban president from 1948 to 1952, ex-Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Michael Haigwood and Clinton Brickley of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Former and present CIA officials, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Rep. Guy Vanderjagt, R-Mich., also are expected to appear.

Some may be called to testify to the character of one of the defendants. For example, Vanderjagt lived two doors from Ehrlichman before the White House aide resigned more than a year ago.

Ehrlichman, G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio L. Martinez are accused of violating the rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Dr. Lewis Fielding's Beverly Hills, Calif., office was broken into Sept. 3, 1971, in a fruitless search for Ellsberg's files. Fielding's name also appears on the prospective witness list.

The defendants are accused of conspiring to obtain the psychiatric files of Ellsberg, former Pentagon analyst who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

St. Clair request rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney James D. St. Clair is opening President Nixon's impeachment defense before a House Judiciary Committee that has rejected his request that six witnesses be called on Nixon's behalf.

The committee agreed Wednesday to call two witnesses suggested by St. Clair and said the others may be called if staff interviews indicate they have pertinent information to provide.

An effort to win approval of St. Clair's full list of witnesses failed on a 19-19 tie vote that produced a sharp partisan split in the committee and may have influenced some Republicans to vote against impeachment.

Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., who offered the losing motion to expand the witness list, said he still was undecided about how to vote. "But if I don't hear from the witnesses I want to hear I'll never vote for impeachment," he said.

Rep. Thomas F. Railsback, R-Ill., also undecided on impeachment, said he thought the committee had made "a very bad mistake" in rebuffing St. Clair.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—Former Nixon aide John D. Ehrlichman and three White House plumbers went on trial in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

—A confidential staff report of the Senate Watergate committee said former top campaign officials for Hubert H. Humphrey and Wilbur D. Mills have refused to testify about apparently illegal campaign donations.

The Judiciary Committee named five witnesses who definitely would be called and listed five others to be interviewed by the staff to see if their testimony is wanted.

To be called starting next Tuesday are John W. Dean III, former White House counsel; Frederick C. LaRue, a former White House and Nixon re-election campaign aide; Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer; Alexander P. Butterfield, former presidential appointment secretary who now heads the Federal Aviation Administration, and Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen.

On the waiting list are former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and Charles W. Colson, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Paul O'Brien, former lawyer for the re-election campaign committee and William O. Bittman, lawyer for convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Dean and LaRue were St. Clair's choices, as were those on the waiting list except Colson.

In a letter to the committee St. Clair said all six witnesses he wanted could provide information on the March 21, 1973, conversation, in which Nixon discussed making payments to Hunt to keep him quiet, and a subsequent $75,000 cash payment to Bittman.

St. Clair described them "as critical witnesses to this inquiry on this issue."

Jurors read trial coverage

Judge declares mistrial

Fayette County Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman Wednesday declared a mistrial in the proceedings against Jay D. Gordon, 21, Staunton-Sugar Grove Rd., who is charged with kidnapping and extortion in connection with the alleged abduction of a Washington C. H. man Feb. 19.

The judge sustained a motion for mistrial which had been filed by Gordon's defense counsel, John C. Bryan and Conrad A. Curren, after it was determined that the jurors had been exposed to news media coverage of the trial.

ELEVEN OF the 12 jurors admitted that they had read coverage of the trial which appeared in Tuesday's Record Herald, in spite of the fact that they had been instructed by the judge not to allow themselves to be exposed to reports by the media or discussion of the case, even amongst themselves.

In granting the motion, the judge indicated that the jurors might be influenced by what they had read.

The article stated that Jack L. Gordon, younger brother of the defendant, was being sought as a witness for the prosecution and was necessary to the state's case. It further stated that the younger Gordon had been charged Tuesday with contempt of court and that a bench warrant had been issued for his arrest. It also contained a detailed account of testimony from the alleged victim, John A. Whiteside, 21, Snowhill Rd.

The case, which had been recessed Tuesday for continuance until after Jack Gordon had been located was continued Wednesday in spite of his absence.

During Wednesday's abbreviated session, Judge Coffman revoked Jay Gordon's recognizance bond and ordered that the defendant post $5,000 cash bond or $10,000 property bond. The property bond was posted Wednesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, efforts to locate Jack Gordon to serve him with a summons to appear in the case or to execute the bench warrant have been fruitless.

Judge Coffman had earlier granted a request by county prosecutors James A. Kiger and John H. Roszmann for immunity from prosecution for the younger Gordon.

According to the newly modified Ohio Revised Code, immunity may be granted with or without the consent of a witness if his testimony is shown to be

A change for the better in Ohio's weather has been promised by the National Weather Service as a high pressure area exerts its influence stretching from New York State to Illinois. The high will continue its dominance tonight and Friday as it pushes southward.

Some cloudiness may continue over southern Ohio as a result of low pressure which is moving northward from Florida.

During the night the worst weather experienced in Ohio was just patchy dense fog, but skies were clear otherwise. Toledo was the last station in Ohio to report rain and that occurred early in the night.

Temperatures at dawn were between 50 degrees at Mansfield and 55 degrees at Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Akron-Canton and the Chesapeake area.

Temperatures in the upper 60s to the mid 70s have been promised for today with the lower end of that range occurring near Lake Erie. Lows tonight will be in the 50s and highs on Friday will climb into the mid 70s to low [illegible].

Warm with a chance of showers Saturday or Sunday. Fair and a little cooler Monday. Highs Saturday in the mid to upper 80s. Highs Monday in the low 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Heavy rain, flooding hit Florida

By The Associated Press

Flooding had caused at least $12 million damage in the St. Petersburg-Tampa area alone as downpours continued into a fourth day today along central Florida's Gulf Coast.

Thunderstorms also dampened the rest of the Eastern Seaboard while fair weather prevailed over most of the nation west of the Appalachians.

More than 8 inches of rain fell on St. Petersburg during a 24-hour period Wednesday and McDill Air Force Base near Tampa recorded 10 inches in the same period. Two tornadoes were sighted near St. Petersburg.

After surveying the areas of worst flooding in Pinellas County, Gov. Reubin Askew said he was fairly confident the area would be declared a disaster area.

To the north, Greenville, S.C., had more than 2 inches of rainfall Wednesday night, and cloudy skies covered the remainder of the Atlantic Coast.

Lightning storms, meanwhile, have caused an outbreak of forest fires in the Gila National Forest and private lands in New Mexico since Monday. The largest, a grass fire, burned 900 acres southwest of Cimarron.

A few thundershowers sprinkled areas from eastern North Dakota into Minnesota. Mostly cloudy skies prevailed over Washington and Oregon, with rain near the coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 46 at Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich., to 100 at Blythe, Calif.

David A. Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Arnold, Bradford, Tenn., formerly of Washington C. H., was named to the dean's list for the spring quarter at the University of Tennessee, Martin, Tenn., where he is enrolled in pre-pharmacy.

Ferguson, Donahey fight transfer to new offices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's possible that everyone and everything scheduled for transfer from Ohio's Statehouse soon will be out—with the exception of two impregnable vaults and 82-year-old State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

A Legislative Service Commission study committee was told Wednesday that Treasurer Gertrude W. Donahey wants to keep her vaults, and that Ferguson, a veteran of 50 years in public office, intends to stay put in his present "corner."

The committee's deliberations involve completion of occupancy of a new 41-story State Office Tower across the street, and how to divide among legislators the space departing officials leave behind. The latter includes the Statehouse annex which will get some temporary new occupants before being torn down eventually.

Everyone but the governor and lieutenant governor received moving orders. Some have complied, others are in the process, and still others are packing up to move in late August.

But the peppery Ferguson told the Associated Press Wednesday: "I'm going to use every effort within my power to remain and have an administrative office in this corner of the Statehouse, even if it means going to court to do it."

He admitted his present space is not adequate, and indicated he will not stand in the way of most of his operations being transferred. "I'm not going to let anything stop us from issuing state checks on time," he said.

Ferguson said he thinks the Statehouse "was built for the purpose of housing elected state officials" and asserted the decision to move them out was not made according to law "but by a bureaucratic executive secretary who since has lost his job."

The auditor referred to George W. Busch, recently let go as executive director of the Ohio Building Authority after assuming that post late in a former state administration.

Mrs. Donahey was out of town Wednesday and could not be reached, but Dicksie Bradford, a public relations aide, said the treasurer doesn't want to move state securities and other documents out of the existing heavy vaults.

Miss Bradford said there "is not enough space" in vaults already built in the new $60 million building and added "I know very little about it, but I don't see how you'd ever tear out the vaults we have now anyway."

Roland A. Nesslinger, director of public works, confirmed that Mrs. Donahey may have less vault space in the new building but added he was "not sure." Although the new ones have less floor space, he said they probably are designed for more efficient space use.

The public works director indicated he had trouble understanding Mrs. Donahey's reluctance to accept the new vaults. "They are very fine, very modern, with television cameras, air imput if someone is trapped, communications to the outside. They really are ultra-secure," he said.

Nesslinger said the Statehouse vaults—one on the first floor and the other in the basement—have 430 and 1,236 square feet of floor space, respectively. The new vaults have a total of 1,296 square feet, he said.

The LSC committee, headed by House Speaker Pro Tem Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, told Nesslinger and other state officials a panel of legislators will meet with Ferguson and Mrs. Donahey to try to resolve differences.

At the request of Riffe, the panel directed that the annex— to be vacated in late August by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown and the Ohio Supreme Court—should be prepared for temporary occupancy by legislators while the Statehouse is being remodeled.

Senators, House members, and their staffs are to move into space made available by the exit of the auditor and treasurer along with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown who already is set up on the 14th floor of the new building.

The committee authorized Nesslinger, Administrative Services Director Joseph J. Sommer, and State Architect Carl Bentz to go ahead with plans, entering into contracts if necessary, to determine lawmakers' space requirements and devise proposals for their allocation.

hours; $3 after the first 24 hours, but within 10 days, and $5 after 10 days of a mailed notice.

In another parking meter-related action, Council agreed to purchase new parking meter supplies. The cost of the supplies will be approximately $2,000..

An ordinance which will provide for an 0.94-acre tract of land in Union Township to be annexed into Washington C.H. was deemed an emergency, placed on second and third readings and approved by title only.

Larry Christman, of Washington C.H., owns the tract of land, which is located on the east side of N. North Street between Gibbs and Earl avenues. The Fayette County Board of Commissioners approved the annexation application March 25.

The annexation action apparently involves the development of a business. Two representatives of the Lawson Dairy Co. attended the Council meeting two weeks ago when the measure was placed on a first reading.

A proposed ordinance which would require posting gasoline prices on pumps at Washington C.H. service stations was withdrawn for various reasons.

Mrs. McCullough said she felt the ordinance was drafted "too hastily" while other Council members were concerned about the legality of the proposal. Wilson objected since he felt it would be discriminating, while Councilman Hugh S. (Bud) Patton said he would be in favor if it dealt with large oil companies only.

The proposed legislation was prepared by city solicitor Gary Smith and was patterned after a similar ordinance recently enacted in Columbus.

Two liquor permit applications were reviewed by Council. No formal objections were voiced.

The Kroger Co., has filed an application to have its present C-2 liquor permit transferred from its Main Street address to 548 Clinton Ave. Washington Beverage Centers, Ind., doing business as the Sagar Dairy Depot, 1302 Washington Ave., has submitted an application for a new C-2 permit.

Rhoads relayed an objection to Council from the pastor at the Washington Avenue House of Prayer over the Sagar Dairy application.

A ORDINANCE pertaining to closing an alley off Rawlings Street was tabled until city officials investigate utility company easements in the area.

The city has received a petition from property owners in the area requesting that the alley located between lots 566 and 567 in the Stevens Addition on Rawlings Street be vacated.

Wolford said the alley, which is located off Rawlings Street between Lewis and Wilson streets, has not been used recently and is covered with grass.

The Dayton Power and Light Co. has furnished the city with a new lighting proposal for Columbus Avenue, which has become heavily-commercialized recently. In the survey, the company has eight new lights for Columbus Avenue between Elm Street and Glenn Avenue. The cost estimate is $114 per light or $912 per year.

The matter was referred to Council's service and safety committees for further study.

Urge veto by Congress on President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee is being asked to recommend a congressional veto power over every presidential order, directive or proclamation.

The recommendation, an attempt to end so-called "presidential law making" under the president's emergency powers, was proposed to the committee by Dr. Arthur Miller, its consultant on issues raised by the Watergate scandal.

The report advised that the committee recommend enactment of a law "that will require the submission of every president's order or directive, by whatever name called, to be submitted to the Congress prior to its promulgation."

The report, made available to The Associated Press by sources close to the committee, proposed this for the committee's final report:

"The Select Committee further recommends that no such order or directive can have the force of law until both houses of Congress approve it by majority vote."

Since hundreds and even thousands of such directives are issued in any given year, the report recommended that Congress set up an office with the responsibility of approving routine orders.

"Congress could then devote itself to consideration of only those orders of the greatest importance or impact," the report said.

necessary to the prosecution's case. Under the provisions of the code, once immunity is granted the witness cannot refuse to testify by seeking protection under the Fifth Amendment, and a refusal in court to testify against his brother could result in Jack Gordon's imprisonment until he did testify. The new code became effective Jan. 1, 1974.

LATE WEDNESDAY afternoon, Bryan filed a request to be excused as defense counsel for Jack Gordon. The action was taken when the grant of immunity created a situation for Bryan where remaining as counsel for both parties could constitute a conflict of interest.

The declaration of mistrial has left the status of Jack Gordon's immunity and contempt charge in a state of limbo. Attorneys on both sides are involved in researching precedents concerning these points of law.

The trial dates for the Gordon's and Kenneth Haley, 22, of 1135 E. Paint St., who was indicted on the same charges, were not released. Haley is being defended by Robert Renshaw, of Springfield.

Walter Williams dies at Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)— Services for Walter L. Williams, 81, director of the Lebanon Production Credit Association for 27 years, will be held Friday.

He was also a charter member of the Clinton County Farm Bureau Co-op and State Farm Bureau Co-Op.

Williams died Tuesday.

Sovereign immunity claim turned down

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The City of Bowling Green may not use sovereign immunity as a defense against state claims for pollution damages in the Portage River, Ohio's Supreme Court has ruled.

Such a defense is "inapplicable" in Atty. Gen. William J. Brown's attempts to recover damages for fish killed in the north branch of the river as a result of discharges from a city sewage plant, the court said.

Wednesday's 6-1 decision, with Justice J.J.P. Corrigan dissenting, agreed with a ruling of the 6th Sixth District State Court of Appeals, which in turn had reversed Wood County Common Pleas Court.

The majority decision said the state not only had the right to bring suit against Bowling Green, but also to recover damages resulting from operation of the plant.

In another case, the Supreme Court ordered reopening of hearings into the case of a convicted felon turned down when he sought to take the Ohio Bar Examination.

Frederick E. Davis Jr. of Columbus was rejected by the Columbus Bar Association and the court's own Commissioners on Character and Fitness as a result of his guilty plea to a grand larceny charge.

Davis, who obtained a law degree at Ohio State University after his 1969 plea had resulted in probation, claims to have been rehabilitated.

In its 5-2 ruling, the court said in part that "the absence of good moral character in the past is secondary to the issue of existence of good moral character in the present." Justices Frank D. Celebreeze and William B. Brown disagreed with the decision.

In other action the court:

—Invalidated a zoning amendment that permitted construction of privately owned condominiums in the Brynwyck development of Monclova Township, Lucas County. The decision favored Edward W. Gray and other residents of the community against township trustees who approved the amendment in 1971.

—Reversed the robbery conviction of Terry L. Gallagher in the holdup of a Seven-Eleven Food Store in Dayton in May 1972. The court upheld defense claims that certain evidence was erroneously admitted at Gallagher's Montgomery County Common Pleas Court trial.

—Upheld a Knox County jury award of $55,000 to Merle and Janet Snow of Mount Vernon whose car struck a pony on a highway at night April 9, 1969. The court held defendants William G. Courtwight and Producers Livestock Association "failed to properly maintain the animal's enclosure."

The jury award in common pleas court had been reversed by the Fifth District State Court of Appeals.

Last 25,000 Army draftees to be leaving service soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is down to its last 25,000 draftees.

This represents only about 3 per cent of the Army's strength.

Draftees will be completing their two-year service and leaving the Army at the rate of about 5,000 a month during the summer and fall. Only a few will be left in uniform after that. But the last 85 draftees will not be discharged until June of next year.

Legal authority to induct men into the armed services died almost a year ago, July 1, 1973, but the Pentagon stopped issuing mass draft calls six months earlier than that.

In the last half year before the induction authority expired, virtually the only men drafted were reservists who had failed to meet their obligations.

Only the Army drew on the draft for manpower in recent years, although some of those who enlisted in the Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force were considered draft-motivated.

After a tough, uphill struggle, the Army topped its monthly enlistment goal in May and manpower officials say they believe it can continue to do so without sacrificing quality.

The Marines, however, have been unable to attract enough high school graduates to meet congressional requirements.

Because of the Marine problem, Pentagon officials said that total U.S. military manpower will fall about 6,000 short of the 2,174,121 figure planned for the end of the fiscal year that ends Sunday.

Some congressmen remain skeptical that the all-volunteer concept will work over the long term. But Congress has helped the Pentagon reach its all-volunteer goal by cutting the size of the armed forces to its smallest level since before the Korean War.

With the high school year ended, the Pentagon is looking for a surge of enlistments in the summer months. For June alone, it raised its goal to 44,520, up by more than 50 per cent over May.

Stocks again give ground

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground again today under the persistent pressure of rising interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off almost a point, and losers took a 2-1 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was subdued as a quarter-point increase in banks' prime lending rates, to 11¾ per cent, continued to spread in the banking industry.

Analysts noted fears that a further rise to an unprecedented 12 per cent might be in the offing.

Prices on the Big Board today included MGIC Investment, down ⅛ at 16¾; Ponderosa System, down ½ at 15; Combustion Engineering, off ¾ at 40½, and Cold Industries, up ½ at 24.

In Wednesday's trading the Dow Jones industrial average fell 11.89 points to 816.96, all but erasing the technical advance of 12.52 points it had recorded the day before.

Losers outpaced gainers by a 3-1 margin in continued slow trading on the NYSE.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .65 to 80.39.

Steel firms given fines in price fix

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Four major steel companies were fined $50,000 apiece Wednesday after pleading no contest to charges of violating anti-trust laws in Louisiana.

The companies were Armco Steel Corp of Middletown, Ohio; the Ceco Corp of Chicago; H.K. Porter Co. Inc., of Pittsburgh, and Laclede Steel Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

Charles F. Jones, Porter's steel division sales manager, also pleaded no contest and was fined $5,000 and given a suspended prison sentence.

The defendents were indicted several months ago and accused of fixing the price of reinforcing steel bars in Louisiana.

U.S. Dist. Judge James A. Comiskey said one company was selected to submit the low bid on public and private contracts while other companies refrained from bidding or deliberately bid high.

The judge said this paralyzed competition.

Steel prices rise again

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Price increases announced by U.S. Steel Corp. for a wide range of products might foreshadow higher consumer prices for automobiles and appliances.

The company's second price hike this month, announced Wednesday and effective Monday, also affects rails and plate steel used in construction. The company said the price boosts averaged 15 per cent. U.S. Steel had boosted prices 8 per cent on June 11.

The firm refused to say what precipitated the price hike, which averages 5.5 per cent over the total product line.

A spokesman also refused to say what effect the price increases might have on prices for consumer goods. But the nation's largest steelmaker said the revised prices "remain generally below those now being charged by competition."

Bethlehem, the No. 2 steelmaker, increased prices by about the same amount on Monday.

Glenn Turner seeks office

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Promoter Glenn W. Turner, saying he is "the only candidate who has been indicted before he runs," is campaigning for the U.S. Senate.

Turner, who has been indicted on federal mail fraud charges, is one of nine persons seeking nomination in the Democratic primary on Sept. 10. The winner will challenge Republican incumbent Edward J. Gurney.

Turner is scheduled to stand trial Aug. 5 for the second time for allegedly conspiring to defraud "persons too numerous to mention." He and seven former associates are accused of selling distributorships in Turner-controlled cosmetics and motivational firms without supplying necessary merchandise. The first trial ended in a hung jury.

Turner, 39, said he would campaign against big government, special interests and deal-making politicians.

Ex-Senator Gruening dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. Ernest Gruening of Alaska, one of the earliest and strongest congressional opponents of the Vietnam war, is dead.

Gruening, 87, died Wednesday night in a Washington hospital of cancer of the colon.

He was one of two senators to vote against the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution, which President Lyndon B. Johnson used as a functional declaration of war in Southeast Asia.

"All Vietnam is not worth the life of a single American boy," Gruening once said.

The resolution, approved by Congress two days after Johnson requested it, authorized in advance the President's using "all necessary steps, including the use of armed force" in Vietnam.

The resolution was approved unanimously by the House. Former Sen. Wayne L. Morse, D-Ore., was the only other Senate dissenter.

Gruening voted against all appropriations to the war effort until his defeat in the Democratic primary in 1968.

He crusaded for various causes, including population control and statehood for Alaska, during careers as journalist and public official.

A New York native, he was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1912 but he never practiced medicine. Instead he worked 22 years as editor and reporter for various newspapers and magazines, among them the liberal magazine, The Nation, for which he was managing editor.

THANK YOU

We wish to express our sincere thanks to Drs. Gebhart and Heiny, Morrow Funeral Home, pallbearers, friends and neighbors, the Hahn sisters, and Rev. Glen Williams for their kindness during the death of my husband, Lowell Browning.

Slower production means higher prices

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If the world's leaders appear puzzled about rising prices, the man in the street can be excused if no longer he seeks to understand inflation any more than he does his teen-age kid.

"It's a phase," he says, suggesting to himself that it will pass.

But here's an observation about life in an inflated economy that might help you understand why prices are rising all over the world, and why they're likely to continue rising for a long time to come.

First, what messages did you receive today from the media, your family or friends? Think about it for a moment and you'll probably find many of them fall into a category called consumption, such as:

Eat your breakfast. Get all your vitamins. Fill up the gasoline tank. Pick up the paper while you're at the store — and get me a carton of cigarettes too. Let's take in a show tonight. Why not vacation in Europe? Big sale on suits.

All day long the typical American is exhorted to consume, to spend, to acquire, to experience, to do. It is a consumption society; by means of appealing voices, fluttering pennants, sexual suggestion, visual displays and dozens of other techniques you are urged to buy, to consume.

The intensity of the message was once considered typically American, but what once was called the American way of life is now quite likely the life style of the Brazilian and the Frenchman too.

In contrast, how often are you exhorted to produce? Efforts by government officials to bring attention to lagging productivity have been relatively unsuccessful, a situation that an economist might deplore but which a psychologist can understand.

As most of us know, consumption is usually more comfortable than production, at least over the short run. Eventually, however, if production isn't maintained, consumption costs more or becomes impossible.

Thus, rising prices and shortages.

State hikes outlays for nursing homes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state is increasing from $10.27 to $12.75 its minimum daily payment to nursing homes for care of welfare recipients.

The new rate goes into effect July 1. Welfare Director Charles Bates said it was established on the basis of cost reports submitted to the department by about two-thirds of Ohio's 1,100 nursing homes.

TV Viewing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-guitarist Jerry Reed graduated from country to national stardom because of network TV, but his Music Row headquarters here is still just a plain, white wood frame house.

You need the address to find it. There's no sign outside.

The proprietor, a regular this spring on NBC's since-canceled "Music Country U.S.A.," is equally surprising in the flesh.

Where some top performers here might cite only old-time country artists as their main musical influences, Reed, a fine guitarist, readily claims the late jazz guitarist Django Reinhardt as one of his.

Mention Lenny Breau, an obscure, legendary Canadian known mainly to plectrum pros, and Reed lights up like Christmas: "Greatest guitar player I've ever heard, and I've heard some guitar players."

In short, Reed, a tanned, wiry native of Decatur, Ga., is among what Glen Campbell calls the "new breed" of country performers — artists equally at home not only in country music, but also jazz, blues and pop.

Like Campbell, who gave him his first network break on CBS in 1969, Reed is what you'd call a "crossover," a country performer accepted by country and noncountry music fans alike.

Surprisingly, Reed doesn't want a weekly country music show of his own on network TV.

"I don't like people to see it every time they want to see it,' Reed said, sipping a cola drink in the small, eight-track office recording studio he uses to try out new song ideas or hear those of others.

"I like to keep it important. Put it on network TV week in, week out, you're overdoin' it. The name of the ball game is going out and visiting those people. Fairs, concerts, that's where it's at."

Starring in specials is another matter, he said: "Now you're gettin' down to the nittygritty, talkin' my kind of language."

However, he laughed, "if I do a show, I'm going to call the shots because I'm the one who stands to lose the battle, the war. It'll be my head that'll roll or my career that'll suffer.

"The network'll always get another horse to ride."

State allocates school funding

Some $42,261,525 has been distributed to Ohio's 614 city, exempted village and local school districts by the state auditor's office in June.

Local revenue totaled $153,502.18. Washington C.H. city schools received $54,657.45 for basic operations and transportation, $1,927 for school employes retirement, $11,945 for teachers retirement, $135 for the school board.

Miami Trace schools received $57,626.25 for operations and transportation, $7,315 for the board of education, $15,381 for teachers retirement, and $4,414 for school employes retirement.

Opinion And Comment

Step toward the goal

The White House has understandably sought to foster a euphoric sense of great things accomplished on President Nixon's journey to the Middle East. Press Secretary Ronald Zieglerset the tone on the flight back to Washington when he set forth the President's views as follows: "The diplomacy on this trip has opened the door to peace in the Middle East and the nations in the area now have an opportunity to walk through that door."

Much that occurred offers general support of this assessment. Though some claim to believe the venture was in the main a public relations ploy meant to distract Americans' attention from Mr. Nixon's impeachment difficulties, it cannot be dismissed so cavalierly. The trip did have beneficial results, if only in symbolizing a major shift in United States Middle Eastern policy.

This shift was signaled by the President's overtures to Arab countries. These overtures herald a significant modification, perhaps even an end, of the very special relationship Washington has maintained with Israel. The Israelis, while reassured as to our continuing security guarantees, are being urged to make some concessions which might lead to a permanent Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

Arab leaders made it plain that, barring such concessions, there will be no permanent settlement. There is a new acceptance of Israel as a permanent state in the area, yet at the same time the Arabs seem adamant about certain points. Notable among these are the restoration of Palestinian rights, the return of Jerusalem to the Arabs, the return to Syria of territory now under Israeli occupation.

King Hussein of Jordan spoke for many observers when he declared that all concerned "must keep within our vision the final goal that is still many milestones away." President Nixon's journey was less an opening of the door to peace than a step - with many steps yet to come - toward that final goal.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Every man a Bishop!

Some years ago I spotted an ad in the paper which so intrigued me that I carried it around in my wallet for ages. "Start Your Own Church!" it urged, and provided an address to which one could write, enclosing a "free will offering," receiving in return ecclesiastical credentials. What tickled me was the thought of converting my family into a religious sect and claiming exemption from the town property tax. Doubless the Selectmen of the town of Weston would take a dim view of such a caper, but what a lovely lawsuit it would make! For openers, what right would a secular court have to evaluate the legitimacy of a church? It would clearly seem to violate the First Amendment doctrine of the separation of church and state.

I never followed this up, in part because I knew that the first thing that would occur in the Roche Church would be a schism: I could only muster one vote for Bishop while my wife and daughter (second and third generation women's liberationists respectively) would consolidate against me. Also I wondered at what point the courts of the Commonwealth would ask, "When is a religion not a religion?" And answer: "When it is a fraud." In short, it struck me as a non-starter.

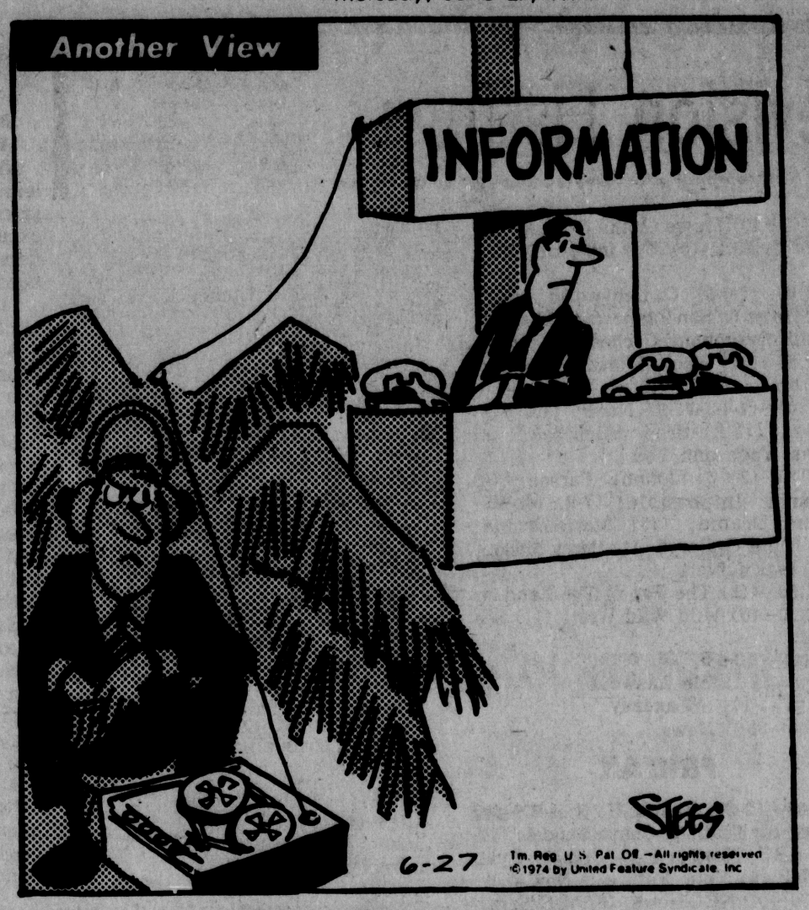
NOW, HOWEVER, I read that an outfit in California, which dealt in mail-order ordinations, has successfully repelled an effort by the state to close down its operations. The summary of the decision indicated that the judge felt that a court had no right, under the doctrine of separation, to distinguish "legitimate" religions from "illegitimate." Or, as a cynic might put it (and an atheist surely would), the judiciary is not in the business of assessing the merits of comparative superstitions. Essentially, a Cardinal-Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church, a Methodist Bishop, a Jewish Rabbi and a self-styled Patriarch of Potsdam (with a mail-order Roman collar) are held equal in the eyes of the law.

With all due respect for the separation of church and state, I submit that this determination is nonsense. One does not have to be a theologian to spot a hustle, and the fact that an entrepreneurial enterprise operates behind the facade of religion is irrelevant. To take a parallel, anyone who started passing out medical degrees by mail would be instantly and justly in the toils of the law. Legally there are perfectly adequate precedents for enforcing the police power on religious sects. The Mormons were the most outstanding recipients of the long arm of Federal law. When "celestial marriage" or polygamy was banned, the poor Mormans (who were decent, hard-working people who just wanted to be left alone) tried to invoke religious freedom. The Supreme Court found no constitutional protection for "crime masquerading as religion" (1879).

Similarly the courts have generally taken a dim view of religious efforts to frustrate public health measures (vaccinations, fluridation of water) and, in a singularly complex series of cases, ruled that parents who rejected medicine on religious grounds could not impose their views on doctors treating their children. (The Christian Scientists have raised some of these cases, but the real fight has come from Jehovah's Witnesses who, for example, utterly reject blood transfusions.)

ON THE other side of the ledger, however, there is a classic opinion (U.S. v. Ballard, 1944) giving freedom of religion a wide scope. The Ballard family organized a religion, the "I AM" movement, which allegedly cured the incurable and in the process took in a good deal of money. They were indicted for mail fraud, and at the trial the truth or falsity of their convictions was excluded from discussion. The judge put it this way to the jury: "Did these defendants honestly and in good faith believe these things? If they did they should be acquitted." The jury convicted them and the case went up on appeal.

To make a long story short, the Supreme Court sent the case back for retrial on technical grounds, but Justice William O. Douglas took the opportunity to deliver a free lecture (which was irrelevant to the holding) in which he went so far as to say that courts, and by implication legislatures, had no right whatsoever to explore the merits of an alleged religious belief. "Men may believe what they cannot prove." he said, and, "They may not be put to the proof of their religious doctrines or beliefs." It will be interesting to see whether the Burger Court opts for the police power, or follows Douglas into the realm of absolutes.



Ohio Perspective

Dental hygienists have no worries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Although they have been cleaning teeth for years, Ohio's dental hygienists may begin work today without worrying about skating close to the law.

A law enacted by the 1974 General Assembly, effective today, clarifies the hygienists' right to perform certain surgical procedures required in cleaning teeth.

Sen. Clara E. Weisenborn, R-5 Dayton, introduced the enabling legislation after legal spokesmen for the dental profession pointed up the dilemma.

They testified at legislative hearings that, although the law was not enforced, hygienists, when cleaning teeth, were performing "a surgical procedure on hard and soft tissues within the oral cavity."

They also testified that cleaning teeth would come under "an intra-oral procedure that contributes to or results in an irremediable alteration to the oral anatomy."

Both procedures were expressly forbidden by law. If enforced, the statutes could have brought a fine of $50 to $500 for a first offense and a fine of $500 and 10-90 days in jail for subsequent offenses.

Mrs. Weisenborn's bill, aside from bringing the law into compliance with actual practice, also contains a new prohibition for dental hygienists. It forbids them from making final impressions for dentures.

The bill also adds a new category of dental assistant called qualified professionals. The State Dental Board is required under the new law to adopt rules governing those things the new assistants may do. The one statutory limitation is that they may not perform those duties "which require the professional competence of a hygienist."

Dentists may not employ the new type of assistant until after the board formally adopts the rules. However, another provision in the bill permits them to employ two instead of only one hygienist.

An attorney general's opinion held that while the law allowed a dentist to employ two hygienists, he could not have both in his office at the same time. The law changes this.

Existing law spells out requirements for hygienists. They must be at least 18, of good moral character and a graduate of an accredited mental hygiene school.

Successful completion of a state examination also is required.

Marilyn Monroe's book ghost-written

NEW YORK (AP) — Marilyn Monroe's forthcoming "autobiography" entitled "My Story" was ghost written by the late Ben Hecht, the book's publisher says.

Sol Stein, president of the publishing firm of Stein and Day, said Tuesday that Hecht originally wrote the manuscript for Doubleday in the mid-1950s on the basis of interviews with the late film star. But Doubleday never published the book.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How important is sex in marriage?

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a fellow (I'll call him David) for about three months. He's been giving me a big rush. David is one of the nicest fellows I've ever met. He is a successful professional man, good-looking, just the right age for me, treats me like a queen, and everyone who has met him thinks he'd be ideal for me.

The problem: David doesn't kiss very well. To be perfectly honest, it's more serious than that. When he kisses me, nothing (but absolutely nothing!) happens. Abby, I'm 25 and experienced (but I'm no tramp), and I am not all that difficult to turn on.

Don't tell me to teach him. If he can't even turn me on, I'm not about to give him kissing lessons.

What should I do? I hate to give him up because he is by far the most eligible man I've ever dated, except for this one fault.

How important do you think sex is in marriage?

LIBRA

DEAR LIBRA: How important I think it is doesn't matter. It's how important YOU think it is that counts. No one can (or should) make that decision for you. List your priorities in order of their importance and you'll have the answer.

DEAR ABBY: I am 38. My wife is 36. We have been married for 15 years and have two children, ages 13 and 1.

Ten months ago, my wife got a telephone call at about 7:30 p.m. She talked for a few minutes, and after she hung up she said a girl friend of hers was in town and she was going to drive over and see her for awhile.

I don't know why, but I didn't believe her, so I left the kids and followed her. I found the "girl friend" was a man I knew. When they recognized my car, they went in different directions. After my wife returned home, we had a few words, but there was no big scene.

Since that night our marital relations have been very unsatisfactory. Either she desn't feel well, she's too tired, too sleepy or it's, "Please don't bother me." If she lets me touch her, she doesn't participate.

Please answer before I do something foolish.

FED UP IN OREGON

DEAR FED: Either you didn't have enough words, or they weren't the right ones.

Level with each other. If she's emotionally involved with another man, you're both better off dealing with it. If it's only a case of the "guilties," that should be dealth with. An infected wound doesn't just heal up and disappear. It erupts sooner or later. And the sooner the better.

DEAR ABBY: You will probably think I am some kind of nut for writing about this problem, but I trust your judgment, and know you have ways of finding out such things, so here goes:

Following a car accident and complications, my mother had her leg amputated about five years ago. Since then, she insists that the leg she had amputated pains her constantly.

Abby, I keep telling her it is all in her head because there is nothing there to hurt. She insists the pain is real.

I am at a loss to understand how this can be so. Can it?

FOOLISH QUESTION

DEAR QUESTION: (No question is foolish if it is sincere.) The "pain" about which your mother complains about is called "phantom pain," and it is very real indeed. Obviously it only seems to be in the amputated limb because the nerve endings at the point of amputation have "set up" those sensations. Your mother should tell her doctor. He may be able to correct the situation.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, JUNE 28

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Vigorous Mars influences encourage your most worthwhile ambitions and stimulate your will to achieve them, so don't waste time on unproductive activities. Forward!

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Be extremely careful to discriminate between rumor and fact, not to accept hearsay as accurate information. Some deceptive trends prevail.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Some challenges possible, but face them—unafraid. With the Geminian's ingenuity and foresightedness, you should solve all situations handily.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

You have instinctive know-how in many areas, but may tend to get off the track now, unwisely go off on tangents. Be alert — and avoid!

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Pull up the reins rather than dash down blind alleys. You could get into trouble if you use the wrong tactics.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Excitement or anxiety could be detrimental to top achievement. Be contained. Direct energies constructively. Familiarize yourself with new trends.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Stepping out of the picture is now way to avert difficulty or tension. Step right in there with your good will and ingenuity, and you can conquer all.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Study trends, good resources for tapping. Develop your top-flight faculties and you can make this day one to remember.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Stellar aspects now suggest the revival of old projects if still feasible or the launching of new ones — either to better your course and outlook. Choose wisely, noting all potentials.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A day for building up double strength in certain areas. Tighten up your schedule, eliminate flaws, loopholes for error. Thus "battened down," you can steer your course more successfully.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

From out of the nowhere may come an "odd" suggestion. No harm in glancing at its possibilities: It may pave the way to a broader avenue toward success.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

If you tried and did not attain, review well before trying the same thing again. A new method could turn the trick. Don't become discouraged.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely conservative and ideaslistic individual. Too sensitive at times, however, you are easily hurt and may be inclined to carry grudges. Try to curb! You have a lively imagination and, no matter what your occupation, conceive brilliant ideas for furthering progress. In executing them, however, you may be a little too meticulous about details — driving other people crazy. Don't be such a fussbudget. You are extremely versatile and, properly educated, of course, will find many fields suited to your talents. Outstanding among them: medicine (especially of the research variety), the law, writing, music and the state. You would also make an excellent detective.

Hemlock timber has many unfavorable commercial qualities but its cheapness makes it useful as coarse lumber and rough dimension stock.

At 3 p.m. Tuesday, preschoolers will hear the story "Bears of the Air" and a filmstrip on "Danny the Dinosaur."

First, second and third graders will observe Independence Day in their program Wednesday. Included will be a story, crafts and a filmstrip about our flag.

Blind angler still loves fishing

CINCINNATI (AP) — "You give me good friends, a fishing pole and plenty of water and I'm happy," says 66-year-old Merrill Cook.

In that respect, Cook differs little from the nation's army of 70 million anglers. What distinguishes the aging outdoorsman as a breed apart from his colleagues is his blindness.

While the exhilaration of seeing his finned quarry fight the line is gone, the loss of sight has not diminished his love of the sport.

"I thank God that fishing has always been my favorite hobby. I appreciate it more now than ever because of my great friends," said the Lebanon, Ohio, native.

Cook, a body shop operator until disabled by an eye disease in 1971, lost his sight while on a grouse-hunting venture in southern Ohio.

The spunky oldtimer's lifelong pursuit of fishing a razorsharp memory has helped him locate many of his favorite haunts.

"I used to fish seven days a week, but now I can only make twice a week. But I still have a mental picture of my best spots. I should. I spent enough time at them. I tell my friends the way I remember it—if there's stump nearby or a big rock. It's just like a professional golfer. You never forget some things," said Cook.

One of his companions says Cook's years of fishing allow him to transcend his handicap.

Casting problems are quickly overcome with some advice from his friends.

"After a couple of casts he can hit that shoreline as well as you or I without fouling the bait, something those so-called experts can't even do," says fishing mate Bob Peach.

The rest of it is reduced to angling instincts and the "feel" technique.

His favorite fish: "The black bass is the sportiest fish in these parts," says Cook.

He uses a lighter rod equipped with an automatic fly reel that retrieves the line by pressing a lever. Cook says it allows him to play a fish better and let out more line if he hooks a larger one.

Cook's idea of a hearty meal is a frying pan full of sizzling fish filets. Even the tricky problem of cooking has been met by the tanned outdoorsman.

Peach remembers the first time Cook's appetite won out over a fear of burning himself.

"He called me to come over during lunch and cook the fish, but I couldn't get away," remembers Peach.

"So Cookie cooked his own fish and ate them. How did he do it? Well, he told me he just put them in the skillet and counted up to 180, which he figured was three minutes of cooking time and then turned off the stove," said Peach.

Business indicators up slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's index of business indicators increased two-tenths of one per cent in May, pointing to slight economic growth in months ahead, the Commerce Department said today.

It also reported that a recalculation showed the April index had been stable, with no change, instead of the decline of seven-tenths of one per cent announced earlier.

The index of business indicators is considered a measure of future economic performance in the economy. However, some economists have questioned its value in the last year because of distortions in the figures caused by inflation.

Five of the eight business indicators showed gains in May. These were average work week, unemployment insurance, new orders for durable goods, the price-labor ratio and orders for plant and equipment.

On the negative side were stock prices, industrial materials prices and building permits.

Jeffersonville Methodist Church is setting for wedding

The Jeffersonville United Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage June 14 of Miss Pamela Jane Pratter and Randy Lloyd Hammond. The Rev. Eugene Griffith performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar enhanced with vases of rainbow colored carnations, daisies and gladioli, and candelabra entwined with greenery and bows. The bride was given in marriage by her parents.

Mrs. Ruth Dorn, organist, presented a prelude of wedding selections.

Miss Pratter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Pratter, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, and Mr. Hammond is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hammond, of Jeffersonville.

The bride chose a bridal gown of white silk organza trimmed with lace and ruffles. The empire waist was accented with a V-shaped lace trimmed bodice with ruffled stand-up collar. Her bishop sleeves were accented with wide cuffs which ended in ruffles with pearl button trim. The skirt was gathered and flowing also with lace and ruffles. Her chapel-length mantilla was edged in matching lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath with satin showers.

Miss Phyllis Pratter was maid of honor for her sister. The bridesmaids were Miss Patsy Pratter, sister of the bride, Miss Belinda Hammond, sister of the groom, and Miss Vivian Teets. The honor attendant wore a formal length gown of lavender and white knit with short puff sleeves, scoop neckline with white collar with sash in the back. She wore a matching floppy hat and carried lavender carnations on a white Bible. The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor, except in yellow, pink, blue and matching floppy hats. Each carried carnations which matched her dress on a white Bible.

Cindy Pratter was the flower girl and Jay King the ring bearer.

Pete Pierce served as best man. Seating wedding guests were Phillip Pratter, the bride's brother, Tommy Smith of Jamestown, and Terry Gladman of Springfield, cousins of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a formal length pale green dress with white bodice, sleeveless, with stand-up collar, with accessories of beige and white. The groom's mother chose a light blue seersucker dress with matching jacket and white accessories.

Hostesses for the reception held at the church were Miss Donna Finley of Fairborn, and Mrs. Robert Severt, Union, aunts of the bride, Miss Cindy Davis of Dayton, and Mrs. Terry Gladman of Springfield, cousins of the groom. Kindra and Mandy Petitt presided at the guest book.

Following a brief wedding trip, the couple is residing in Jeffersonville.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pratter are 1973 graduates of Miami Trace High School. The bride is employed by the Jamestown Bank and her husband is employed by Morris Bean.

The groom's parents were hosts at the Jefferson Inn for the rehearsal dinner.

Hickory Lane Fellowship

The Ladies Fellowship of Hickory Lane Church of Christ met in the church. Members read Scripture containing the word 'husband or wife.'

Mrs. Keith Wooley gave devotions concerning the home and family relationships, and read from the Book of Ephesians.

During the business meeting, it was decided that the missionary offerings will go toward sending a child to Butler Springs Christian camp.

The next meeting will be July 15 at the church with Mrs. Willard Bainter and daughter, Susan, as hostesses. Mrs. Robert Johnson will be in charge of devotions.

Mrs. Merlin Kaser closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshents were served to Mrs. Dan Ford, Mrs. Kaser and daughters, Mrs. Fred Tracy, Mrs. Larry Baker, Mrs. Wooley, Mrs. George Pierce, Mrs. Bertha Riley, Mrs. Bainter, Miss Georgeanna Pierce, Mrs. Ethel Long, Miss Susan Bainter, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Larry Huffman by Mrs. Gary Kinzer and Mrs. Frank Kinzer.

Esther Circle has picnic

Mrs. Virginia Shoemaker was hostess to seven members and two guests of the Esther Circle of the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church, when they gathered at her home for a noon picnic.

Following the meal, Mrs. Clyde Rings conducted a brief business meeting when reports were heard and approved.

Mrs. Emma Roush gave a history of famous hymns., The three she spoke of were "I Need Thee Every Hour," "Sweet Hour of Prayer," and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Readings pertaining to the program theme were also read. The group will meet again in September at the home of Mrs. Rings.

Silver Belles Grandmothers meet at the Sulky

The Sulky Restaurant was the setting Tuesday for the meeting of the Silver Belles Grandmothers Club. There were 14 members and two guests present.

Members were Mrs. Oliver Brookover, Mrs. Jean Warner, Mrs. Lillian Ervin, Mrs. Florence Bethards, Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, Mrs. Florence Toops, Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. Minnie Smith, Mrs. Philip Ford, Mrs. Eunice Draper, Mrs. Verna Grim, Mrs. Ted Merritt, Mrs. William Rockhold and Mrs. Esther Edwards. Guests were Mrs. Dorothy West and little Amy McCray.

The business session was conducted by Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Ted Merritt presented devotions. The salute to the American and Christian flags was made and Mrs. Bethards read the poem "The Golden Age."

It was announced that the group will not meet in July. Flag pins were favors and reports were heard.

Mrs. West showed a collection of apple head dolls which she had made.

Cards were signed for Mrs. Pauline Toops, Mrs. Zoe Follis, and Mrs. Olive Brookover assisted.

Miss Johns completes wedding plans

Miss Stephanie (Stacy) Lyn Johns, bride-elect of Joe Banks, has completed plans for their marriage. The marriage will take place at 6 p.m. July 8 in Rodgers Chapel AME Church with the Rev. Leroy Stills officiating.

Miss Johns has asked Mrs. Dale Butler to be her maid of honor and the Misses Toni Smith, a cousin, and Robin Johns, sister of the bride-elect, to be bridesmaids. Miss Toya Smith will be the flower girl.

Mr. Butler will serve as best man for Mr. Banks, and Master James Smith III will be the ringbearer. Seating the wedding guests will be Cecil Smith, cousin of the prospective groom, and James Woodson Jr., cousin of Miss Johns.

Hostesses for the reception to follow will be Mrs. James Woodson Sr., Mrs. James Smith Jr. and Mrs. Edward Poindexter.

Miss Newland guest of honor at shower

Miss Terry Ann Newland, bride-elect of Greg Ellenberger, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given recently by Mrs. Robert English and Mrs. Lee Cummins in the English home.

During the social hour contest were enjoyed and prizes won by Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. David Smith and Mrs. Albert Ellenberger, and all presented the gifts to the honor guest.

A bride figurine centered the gift table and colors of pink and white prevailed. After Miss Newland opened many lovely gifts, she thanked all present.

Refreshments of cake and ice cream with punch were served to Mrs. Albert Ellenberger, Miss Alberta Ellenberger, Mrs. Monna Williams, Mrs. Kenneth Arnold, Mrs. James Lucas, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Molly Combs, Miss Teresa Combs, Mrs. Starley Knedler, Miss Debbie Lawrence, Miss Janie Bondurant, Miss Diane Combs, Miss Joy Burns, Mrs. Lena Hamilton, Mrs. David Lucas, Mrs. D. Dixon, Mrs. Ed Williams, Mrs. Tom Ellis, Mrs. Ruth Longberry and Mrs. Walter Henk.

Dana Hyer named to zoning board

The fifth seat on the Washington C. H. Zoning Board of Appeals was filled during the regular meeting of City Council Wednesday night.

In addition to filling one vacant spot on the zoning board, the city's legislators heard Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, a candidate for a seat in the Ohio House of Representatives, point out several items he is vitally concerned with in regard to local government operations.

Council members unanimously adopted a resolution confirming the appointment of Dana Hyer, 1006 Briar Ave., to the City Zoning Board of Appeals.

Hyer will fill the unexpired term of Carl R. Elberfeld, who resigned along with four other members of the zoning board at the last Council meeting. Hyer's term will end in 1977.

Joining Hyer on the zoning board are Lawrence J. Lehman, John F. Morris and Harold R. Ross. All were appointed at the last Council meeting.

The only remaining member of the board is Horace L. Jacobs, who was reappointed to a three-year term two weeks ago.

RESIGNING at the last Council meeting were Elmer N. Reed, Denzil L. Leggett, Lee Lynch and Elberfeld. Three of the four cited personal reasons in their resignations, while Lynch was forced to resign since he is being transferred to Texas to assume a position at a new Armco Steel Corp. plant.

Dumford, 44, of 635 Warren Ave., who will be matched against Republican Robert McEwen, of Hillsboro, in the November election, briefly outlined his background and commented on a number of areas concerning him.

He said he hopes to see legislation which would provide at least a two per cent increase in the county's share of money from state income tax funds. The local political candidate also touched on items such as state assistance for cities such as Washington C. H. facing the burden of staggering police and fire pension fund debts, continued state assistance for solid waste and sewage disposal projects, a proposal being considered for transportation funding and his views on the controversial recommendation for changing the county engineer from an elected official to an appointed office.

In other matters, Council members complimented Bill Duncan, superintendent of the city street department, for clearing various streets and the installation of right turn signs in the downtown area.

Chester Hamulak, 1028 Center St., requested the repair of a clogged sewer near his home and questioned whether or not a decision has been reached to remove a street light at the intersection of Elm and Olive streets at Eastside Elementary School. Council said no decision has been reached.

Robert Lutz, 523 E. Temple St., questioned Council on the status of a request two weeks ago by the local news media to meet with the city legislators in an attempt to iron out some apparent problems. He was informed a meeting would be scheduled.

Board reviews CAC programs

The govening board of the Fayette County Community Action Commission held its monthly meeting Wednesday at Grace United Methodist Church. Sixteen members were present, including Jack Hagerty, CAC director, who reviewed balances in each program account.

Hagerty reported that approximately 90 area youths had been placed in jobs through the summer job program.

John Borrowman. CAC planner, reported that the Senior Nutrition Program had averaged 55-60 participants daily, 10 per cent more than anticipated. He stated that the CAC will be applying for funds to expand the program's capactiy.

In other action, the board accepted the resignation of Hugh Rea and appointed Lewis Parrett to fill the vacancy on the board. The group expressed its deep gratitude to Rea for his service since the CAC was organized in 1966.

The first use of lenses to form a telescope is attributed to Roger Bacon of England, who died in 1292.

Name being sought for tech district

The board of trustees for the new general-technical college is seeking assistance from area residents in finding a name for the new district. The name for the new district is high on the board's priority list and a name for the district is expected to be adopted soon.

The trustees urge persons to submit their choice of names either on postcards or letters to Francis Henderson, 300 E. 8th St., Manchester, Ohio 45144. The board would like a short statement including with each name listing the reasons or background for their selection. More than one name may be submitted and each name submitted will be considered by the board. The deadline is July 12.

Cancer drive tops last year's total

The 1974 cancer crusade topped last year's total by a 15 per cent margin.

The Fayette County Unit of the American Cancer Society announced that a total of $16,543.43 was collected by volunteer workers during the April crusade. Paul Johnson and Tom Mark, crusade co-chairmen, said $11,989.14 was collected during the 1973 drive.

A breakdown of the total discloses $4,121.03 in the rural residential drive; $3,099.88 in the Washington C. H. residential drive; $5,220.45 from major group contributors such as industries, businesses and clubs and organizations, and $4,102.07 from special projects and events.

MRS. CHARLES CUNNINGHAM, unit president, has requested that all special events chairmen evaluate their projects to determine the need for any changes.

A total of 418 persons were examined last April 28 at the free colon cancer detection clinic held at the Medical Arts Building in Washington C. H.

Dr. Byers W. Shaw reports that all but 18 persons have returned the slide samples for examination. He said 142 letters have been sent to persons who had positive tests. The Washington C. H. surgeon noted that one malignant rectal polyp has been detected as a result of the project.

Some intersting statistics disclose 177 men and 241 women participated. Ages for men ranged from 32 to 84 and for women from 30 to 81. Average age for men was 56.6 years and 55.6 for women.

The Fayette County unit was the first in the Ohio division to sponsor such a project.

Unit officers for 1974-75 are Mrs. Cunningham, president; Bart Mahoney, vice president; Mabel Rolfe, secretary, and Donna Jean Johnson, treasurer. Serving on the nominating committee for the new slate of officers are Helen June Waddle, Robert Minshall and Dr. Charles Pfersick.

Seek detente with Nixon on cities

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The new president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors has invited President Nixon to establish a reconciliation with city leaders and create "a domestic detente" on the urban front.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, a Democrat, said the problems of the cities demand as much attention from the President as do international affairs.

Alioto took over leadership of the conference Wednesday from Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin Jr., also a Democrat, at the conclusion of the organization's 42nd annual meeting.

New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu was named vice president and Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., was elected chairman of the advisory board, putting him third in line for the presidency.

If tradition is followed, Gibson will take over in 1976 as the conference's first black president.

The 350 mayors also asked both Nixon and the Congress to continue the New Federalism by re-enacting general revenue sharing at least a year before its expiration in 1976.

They called for an end to impoundment by the President of congressionally appropriated funds and sought quick passage of an $11.3 billion housing and community development act and $18 billion in transit subsidies over the next five years.

Administration emissaries to the conference said that was more money than the cities were likely to get in view of the battle against inflation through federal budget restraints.

County 4-H delegates in Washington

Four Fayette County 4-H'ers are participating in the 1974 Citizenship Short Course at the National 4-H Center in Washington D.C. this week.

The four include Cindy Davis, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Davis, Peele Road; Julie Frost, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frost, White Oak Road; Marlene Braun, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Braun, Hess Road, and Mary Ann Wilson, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wilson, Washington C. H..

While in Washington for six days the 4-H'ers will be developing citizenship ideas and activities as well as touring the many historical sites in the Nation's Captiol. Citizenship activites are developed through assemblies and workshops held with delebates from other States including California, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nibraska, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Dakota nand Tennessee.

THE 4-H'ERS participated in two workshops selcted from international relations, music and art, economics, careers, community development, values, law, ecology and conservation, energy, heritage and government.

In addition, the Fayette County delegates had the opportunity to visit with Congressman William Harsha and Senators William Saxbe and Robert Taft. A special tour of the Capitol included viewing the Congress in action.

One special highlight was the boat trip up the Potomac River to Mount Vernon, home of George Washington. The delegates also tour the FBI, the U.S. Department of Agriculture., the Supreme Court, the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the White House and other government facilities and memorials.

Also, attending as group leaders were Joyce McDowell, Adams County Home Economics Agent, and Hank Bartholomew, County Extension Agent, 4-H Miami County. Two other Fayette Countians, Deidre Lange and Kim Fleming, will attend the short course July 14-20. Fees for the Fayette County delegates were paid by the Junior Leadership Club.

Knothole manager ousted from post

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Willie Howard, 30, of Cincinnati, deposed manager of a Class D Knothole Baseball team, learned Wednesday that the umpire really is always right.

Howard was fined $50 in court for assault for the June 15 chest-bumping of umpire Lee Lucas following a close play in a game which his team lost 10-2.

In addition to the conviction in criminal court, Howard was also suspended from managing by the league.

AIRPORT NEWS

By SANDY WOODMANSEE

Bill Binzel successfully completed his provate flight test this past week. Congratulations, Bill! He took his father, Dr. Philip Binzel, for a ride on Tuesday. Bill wanted him to be his very first passenger. By the way, Bill is John's fourth student passing his flight test. Bob Smith flew his son Randy to a school in Indiana on Tuesday also. Randy has been taking flying lessons under John's instruction and is doing real well. Randy hopes to continue flying on his return in August.

Otis Hess and his wife, Hallie, flew to Dayton and Cincinnati last week and John and I were able to go along. Beautiful evening for a flight. John took a quick charter trip to Bolton Field in Columbus and picked up some freight for Conchemco, Inc., Sabina.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Loyd flew to Madison, Ind., on June 23 and were amazed at the flooding they saw on the way.

On June 18 a twin-engine Beech landed with passengers from Akron. On June 22 a Lockheed Lodestar stopped with personnel of Webber Products. Also on the 22nd, Bill Gressinger from Palm Beach, Fla., landed in his J-3 cub. He got weathered in Washington C. H. and spent the night here. He was on his way to the Akron area and his home there. A Cessna 414 landed with passengers for Conchemco, Inc., in Sabina.

See you next week if we haven't floated away by then.

Flood control project nears in Chillicothe

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. — The Huntington district office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced that the final environmental impact statement for a local flood protection project in Chillicothe has been filed with the Council on Environmental Quality. The statement is required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The project will consist of about 7,300 feet of levee and 250 feet of concrete wall along the north edge of the city, extending from U.S. 35-50 bypass embankment to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad embankment. The levee will then extend northwesterly along the riverside of the B&O Railroad embankment for a distance of about 3,200 feet.

The primary purpose of the project is to provide flood protection to parts of Chillicothe from Scioto River floods as high as the 1913 flood of record. Another purpose is to provide certain recreational opportunities which are compatible with flood control facilities.

Fayette Countian a self-made zookeeper

Man's hobby is 'monkey business'

WHAT'S UP DOC? — Bob Huff holds one of his two domestic rabbits. Although these rabbits are common pets and sold in many pet stores, they should not be handled too frequently. They can get neurotic and die easily.

By MARK THELLMANN

Although it all started as a hobby, Bob Huff is rapidly becoming a self-made zookeeper.

Huff, 27, Mark Road, is by occupation a livestock breeder and trader, specializing in horses and cattle. He had business dealings with Bob Louderback, of Xenia, whose interests extended to all sorts of other animals and before long, Huff too, was hooked.

Huff first purchased a male and female Rhesus monkey at $100 apiece from Louderback. Soon to come were a male and female red fox, a female Civet Cat from Asia, a male and female domestic white rabbit, a male and female Kinkajou, a male Scottish Highlander bull, a male and female squirrel monkey, a Texas Longhorn Cow and a Brahman bull.

HUFF HAS on order a male and female Sica deer, due to arrive this weekend and wants to get a bear if he can find one.

Also running around the Huff farm are six dogs and six cats, about 20 head of horses, some cattle and an Appaloosa stallion named "Little Herman."

Huff is not alone with his zoological interests. His wife, Reva, takes care of most of the animals since Huff's livestock dealings require him to be on the road frequently.

"My wife is a real animal lover," Huff exclaimed, "she even has names for most of them."

The Rhesus monkeys Huff owns have their hereditary roots in northern India. They are famous for their space flights and other scientific experiments, since they possess many of man's characteristics; such as suffering from the same parasites man does.

Huff's monkeys are golden-gray in color, around 22 inches in length and are equipped with a 10-inch tail. They can possess the intelligence level of a four-year-old child.

Huff explained he had kept the monkeys caged for a time on his "compound" and then decided to give them their freedom.

"They're real good about hanging around the farm and when dinner time comes, they're ready and waiting like faithful dogs," Huff said.

The reason for this could be the monkeys think they are faithful dogs, along with the rest of the menagerie. Huff feeds most of his animals dog food and they love it!

An animal which must be denied its freedom is the red fox, for it is a native to the area with an ability to run at a speed of 40 miles per hour.

"They're sly and cunning and if the cage door was ever unlatched, they'd be gone like a bullett," Huff admitted.

Huff's foxes are rusty-red in color and have long bushy tails, tipped in white. They are animals which are thought by many zoologists to choose a mate for life. The pair Huff has sharing the cage seem to verify this hypothesis-they get along just fine.

The female Civet cat from Asia, which Huff's wife has named "Lady," has a small slender body and comes from Africa and Southern Asia.

A relative is the common Mongoose from India and its scent glands are used to make perfume.

When the term "Civet cat," is used in reference to a North American animal, get your nose plugs! The North American Civet cat is a spotted skunk! Lady is worth $150.

Huff's two domestic white rabbits are common pets. They cost about $10 apiece and can be purchased in almost any pet shop. They are docile and can be handled easily, but too much handling can make them neuortic.

Making its home in Mexico, South America and Central America, is the Kinkajou. This little animal is a relative of the raccoon and generally has a gentle disposition, although Huff's female Kinkajou cannot be handled because it was never handled as a baby and now as an adult, can't adapt to handling.

The Kinkajou is a noctural animal which Mother Nature has equipped with what is termed a "prehensile" tail. This means the tail can be used to grip and wrap around things, acting much like a fifth leg.

PEEK-A-BOO — Bob Huff's red foxes look inquisitively into the camera lense. The red fox is found in this area and can attain a running speed of 40 miles per hour.

HIPPY BULL — "Hey man, like who turned out the lights?" This hairdo is characteristic of the Scottish Highlander bull, as is its ability to stand extreme changes in temperature. The Highlander bull's sweat glands are so well developed it can stand the heat of summer.

Church demands woman minister

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago Methodist congregation that wants a woman pastor has rejected its bishop's appointment of a man.

A member of the Parish of the Holy Covenant explained Wednesday that the congregation "felt we had to take a stand because women are not getting support" from the Methodist Church.

But United Methodist Bishop Paul A. Washburn says the congregation can't refuse the appointment because "the act is not provided for in the law of the Methodist Church."

And the Rev. Charles Peterson, named to the position three weeks ago but yet to assume it, says he's marking time until the dispute is "worked out between the dispute is "worked out between the bishop and the church."

For the past two weeks, congregation members have taken over the Sunday worship services and daily functions of the parish, says the Rev. Donald Elmer, a minister member of the congregation not assigned to the church.

He says the parish first requested a woman minister this spring when its pastor of 14 years announced his retirement.

"We had good experiences with several women seminarians over the past two years, and we decided having a woman pastor now would encourage women in the church," said the Rev. Mr. Elmer, whose wife is a codirector of a national Methodist group to advance women's rights in society and the church.

He said the congregation "wanted someone with experience —not a woman just for the sake of having a woman." He said women, who make up less than 1 per cent of Methodist pastors, "have traditionally been placed in the smaller, rural churches where they have little career mobility."

But the Rev. Mr. Elmer said that instead of taking the congregation's request seriously the church "kept coming up with rules and regulations" and didn't even try to find a woman pastor.

Bishop Washburn maintains he "appointed the Reverend Peterson and that's where things stand."

"We're at a standoff now," the Rev. Mr. Elmer said. "We've been told it's none of our business and that it's the bishop's business. We think that's wrong, but we don't want a confrontation. We want to work this out within the church."

Mindszenty continues U.S. tour

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Former Hungarian primate, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty said the purpose of his 20-city tour of the United States is to help former Hungarians and their descendents preserve their 1,000-year-old culture.

The cardinal, who now lives in Vienna, Austria after having been relieved of his duties by Pope Paul VI, is visiting Pittsburgh, Pa. today.

He blamed assaults by Russia, both in the 19th century and 1956, for having scattered Hungarians throughout the world.

Speaking through an interpreter, the anti-communist said he did not approve of any rapproachment between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

He referred to the "Godless and humanless system of the Soviets." Any appeasement, he said, can only bring new Godlessness and inhumanity.

The cardinal was jailed by communists in 1919, tortured by Nazis during World War II for aiding Jews to escape, and imprisoned again by communists following a post-war takeover. He was freed by the revolution briefly in 1956 but then took refuge in the American embassy when the revolt was crushed and he remained there until 1972 when he was permitted to leave the country.

He said that a more important question should be settled—the liberation of all under Soviet rule in Middle and Eastern Europe.

Weather warning system readied

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Approximately 200 amateur radio operators completed training in recognizing tornados Wednesday night in what is hoped to be the beginning of an instant weather warning system in Hamilton County.

Paul Dailey, chief meteorologist for the National Weather Service here was the principal speaker in the twohour program held at Civil Defense Headquarters.

The weather network will provide severe weather information to the National Weather Service and Civil Defense Emergency Operation Center.

Traffic Court

A Jeffersonville man pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and was fined in Municipal Court Wednesday. He was also found guilty of reckless operation to which he had pleaded no contest.

Cary J. Prater, 38, of Jeffersonville, was fined a total of $250, sentenced to 30 days in jail (of which 27 were suspended) and lost his operator's license for a period of 30 days.

Prater was arrested by Sheriff's deputies. Acting Judge John P. Case presided at the hearing.

Five other cases were scheduled for hearing.

POLICE

Fined:

Gertrude M. Butler, 54, of 711 S. Main St., $25, backing without due regard for safety.

Bond forfeitures:

Thomas E. Rodgers, 19, of 1119 N. North St., $50 raised bumper (second offense).

Kevin A. Jones, 20, of 414 East St., $25, raised bumper.

Dorothy A. Smith, 38, Sabina, $25, failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

Blanche M. Ashbaugh, 64, of 508 Gregg St., $18, stop sign.

2 Greenfield men receive stiff fines at hearings

Two Greenfield residents appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday on charges of assault which had been filed on private warrants and were found guilty by acting Judge John P. Case.

Paul A. Litteral, 32, of Greenfield, was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail after he was found guilty of assault. Judge Case suspended $100 of the fine and all of the jail sentence.

Litteral, who had pleaded not guilty, had been arrested by city police.

Steven Allison, 35, Rt. 3, Greenfield, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and was fined $100 and sentenced to 10 days in jail. The jail term was suspended. He was also arrested by city police.

Charles R. Carter, 108 Willard St., who had been found guilty of intoxication earlier this month, appeared Wednesday for sentencing. The judge fined him $50 but suspended all of the fine. Carter had been arrested by Sheriff's deputies.

Lloyd E. Burlile, 36, of Bloomingburg, appeared on a charge of disorderly conduct, but the charge was dismissed for lack of prosecution. He had been arrested on a private warrant.

Two persons had been slated for hearing on charges filed by Jerry F. Cremeans, state game protector. Both forfeited bond.

Allen R. Keller, 30, of Columbus, forfeited $25 for fishing without a license.

Mervin L. Law, 24, of Sabina, forfeited $60 for taking a frog out of season.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— E.C.I. Co. has been awarded a $2,705,666 contract for construction of the principal phase of the Central Riverfront elevated walkway.

Hot plate blaze fatal to child

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Firemen blamed children playing with an electric hot plate for an apartment fire that killed one child and seriously injured two others Wednesday.

Fire investigators said the hot plate burned through a living room floor. Flames then spread through the apartment of Mrs. Lana Turner.

She was outside at a barbeque with friends and did not discover the fire upstairs immediately.

Her daughter, Cynthia, 22 months, died. William Turner, 2½, and Monroe Wiley Jr., nine months, were hospitalized. The Wiley child was in critical condition at the Shrine Burn Unit at Cincinnati General Hospital with burns over 40 per cent of his body.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge John W. Keefe, after hearing of the tragedy, released the children's father, Monroe, from jail to be with his family.

On Monday Keefe had sentenced the father to 1-15 years in prison for burglary.

Neighbors broke through a chain-locked door to rescue the children.

Highlander bull, one can't help but wonder how the animal can see. Its long hair falls over its eyes, much like a sheep dog's does.

THE BULL is a golden color and survives well in versatile climates, having well-developed sweat glands to cool it in the summer heat and long hair to keep it warm in the winter cold.

Inside Huff's house are two caged squirrel monkeys. These agile creatures come from the forests of Central and South America and from Costa Rica to Paraguay. They are often seen in their native habitat, jumping 20 feet into the air, from tree-to-tree.

Huff's Texas Longhorn cow and Brahman bull were not around to be seen. Huff explained they were out to pasture and would be rounded up by him in a couple days to be checked on.

The Brahman bull was brought to the United States from India in 1849. Like the Scottish Highlander bull, it too has well-developed sweat glands and can adapt to a versatile climate. The novelty of the Brahman bull is its long drooping ears.

Although Appaloosa stallions are not uncommon in the United States, it is interesting to note it was the Spaniards who first brought them to North America. The Ney Perce' Indians of Idaho and Washington kept these horses in the Palouse River region; hence the name.

Huff's horse, like all others of its kind, is splashed with dark brown or black leopard spots on a roan background.

Maybe Bob Huff missed his calling, but it's not too late to abandon the horse and cattle business. At the rate he's going, "the Bob Huff zoo of Fayette County," could give the one in Columbus some competition!

Pending SEC suit topic for Friday NFO meeting

A pending suit filed by the Securities and Exchange against the National Farmers Organizations will be discussed during a zone meeting of NFO chapters from five counties Friday night.

David Carr, president of the Fayette County NFO chapter, said the meeting will be held at the Five Points Methodist Church, located five miles east of Mount Sterling on Ohio 56. The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

The SEC contends the NFO broke and lied to its members when it borrowed more than $7 million from the commission. The farmers group has been charged with fraud, false statements and failure to disclose information about its financial condition. The NFO says it is not guilty of fraud, but that it does not have enough back membership fees collected.

The suit filed in Des Moines, Iowa, and announced in Washington, came one day after the farm organization's board, in an emergency meeting, unanimously approved a resolution denying any fraud and requesting that the commission make a more thorough investigation.

The SEC suit was explained in detail during an area NFO meeting held Wednesday night at Miami Trace High School, according to Carr.

Nearly 400 persons, representing all NFO chapters in southern Ohio, attended the meeting. Tom Conrad, of Pickaway County, a national NFO director, conducted the meeting.

Firemen receive new equipment

Knowledge of medical equipment and its use doesn't mean a thing when it comes to saving lives, if the necessary equipment isn't available.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department was in desperate need of replacing its old equipment with many of the new inventions medical science has devised.

A $500 check from the South Central Ohio Lung Association made this possible. The last of the new equipment purchased with the money arrived at the fire station Wednesday and Mrs. Robert Goodson, program associate for the association, and Mrs. George Finley, past president of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association (which merged with the South Central Ohio Lung Association) made the formal presentation to the firemen.

The $500 came from Christmas Seal contributions and was used to obtain a resuscitator and aspirator, an airway kit, an esophagal airway, two Kelly hemostats, a cardio-pulmonary-resuscitator board, a jaw spreader, a sphygmomanometer, a stethoscope and other miscellaneous items such as gauze and bandages.

MRS. GOODSON explained Christmas Seal money is always used to promote lung care and this was one of many outlets for the money. She also commented on the merge of the Fayette County TB and Health Association into the South Central Ohio Lung Association.

"Under this new set-up, six counties are covered. They are Fayette, Pickaway, Ross, Pike, Jackson and Lawrence. The main office is in Chillicothe and Mrs. John Summers serves as executive director," she stated.

Nine members of the Washington C.H. Fire Department are certified emergency medical technicians. They are Lt. Cecil Seaman, Lt. John Rockhold, Lt. Bill Smith, and firemen Jay Smith, Darrell Michael, Pat Denen, E.J. Helt and Ronnie Cox.

Certification required a 60-hour course which was held from August through November.

Ned Kinzer, operator of Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home, initiated the training program when he found out about a bill on President Nixon's desk requiring all ambulance personnel to be qualified medical technicians.

Kinzer had six persons to be certified and the maximum class load was set at 20, so he opened the remaining places to firemen, Fayette County Sheriff's deputies and Washington C.H. police officers. Police officers could not participate because of their involvement with the Ohio Revised Code classes, that they were attending at night.

Kinzer footed the bill for textbooks and the instructor's fee which amounted to hundreds of dollars.

Rea to head Demolay here

Mark Rea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Rea, 132 E. Paint St., has been installed as the master councilor of the Fayette Chapter Order of Demolay.

Installing officer was state master councilor Pat King Jr. and he was assisted by Tony Charlie, Jim McGee, Bob Garrison, Chuck Burgoon and Brian Daubenmire.

Other officers installed were Galen Bock, senior councilor, Steve Baughn, junior councilor, Michael Pope, senior deacon, Kevin Earp, junior deacon, Ronnie Vance, senior steward, Jerry Brickles, junior steward, Dan Lowe, scribe, Steve Six, treasurer, John Rhoads, chaplain, and Jim Woods, almoner.

During the ceremony, awards were presented to several members of the chapter and a reception was held following the program in the Masonic Temple.

Horse show set near Leesburg

LEESBURG — The Bar-None Riding Club will sponsor a horse show at the Producers Livestock Association Stockyards, U.S. 62-S, July 4.

Rain or shine there will be seven competitive events during the morning session, beginning at 10 a.m. After a short lunch break, there will be 12 events slated in the afternoon.

There will be trophies and ribbons for the winners and some of the events will have cash awards. Many of the competitions are limited to certain age brackets and four of the events are limited to 4-H members.

Gate admission is $1 and children under 12 years of age will be admitted free.

Firemen douse tiller blaze

A report of a fire at Stitt Greenhouse, 625 Lewis St., which actually turned out to be a blazing roto-tiller, was reported to the Washington C.H. Fire Department at 4:02 p.m. Wednesday.

Wayne McAllister had attempted to start the tiller, not knowing there was a gasoline leak which had saturated magneto.

Firemen extinguished the fire with water and estimated damage at $250, or nearly a total loss.

The greenhouse is owned by Billy Welsh, Bloomingburg.

Rhoads, Gilligan seek coal plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Ohio Gov. John Gilligan and his Republican challenger, former Gov. James Rhodes, both were in the nation's capital Wednesday to seek location of a federal coal conversion plant in the Buckeye State.

They were on separate missions, with Gilligan promoting use of the Old Ben Coal Co. facility near Toledo and Rhodes, acting for his development company, supporting a Belmont County site.

Gilligan accompanied Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to a meeting with officials of the Interior Department's Coal Research Office.

Afterward, they told newsmen they were dismayed with the agency's decision to go for competitive bidding for choosing a company for a coal conversion demonstration.

Metzenbaum said the decision would delay starting the operation until next spring, while the Old Ben plant is ready now to begin demonstration conversion of coal to other energy fuels.

The senator said he had talked to John Sawhill, head of the Federal Energy Office, and Sawhill promised to look into the matter and report back in a few days.

George Fumich of the coal research office said competitive bidding was necessary because tax dollars have been used in developing technology for coal conversion.

Fumich said his office probably will issue a call for bids this week. Companies will have 90 days in which to respond. Fumich said a decision on a company could be reached by spring.

He pointed out that even with demonstration plants converting coal, it would be four to five years before any operation could go full scale.

Rhodes met with Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton to ask for assurances that Ohio would get full consideration and enough time to prepare the agreements necessary for such a large undertaking.

"The catch is that the feasibility studies for the operation were done by a California firm with the arbitrary assumption that the plant would be located in Southern Illinois," Rhodes said.

"Ohio is the best place for both the production and use of coal," he added.

Rhodes said Belmont County officials have identified potential sites which meet the known federal criteria for the plant.

He noted that the county provides the access to both water and rail bulk cargo transport which would make the site equally available to the coals of West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Cycle rider hurt in rural accident

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported visible signs of injury to a Bloomingburg man involved in a motorcycle accident at 10:10 a.m. Wednesday.

Deputies said Jeffrey Lynn Wilson, 16, of Bloomingburg, was traveling northwest on Bloomingburg - New Holland Road, two-tenths of a mile southeast of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad track, when he lost control of the motorcycle he was riding and went down.

Although Wilson did show visible signs of injury, it is not known whether or not he was treated.

The motorcycle incurred moderate damage in the mishap.

Washington C. H. police officers also reported an accident involving a motorcyclist, along with three other traffic mishaps.

Police said a motorcycle driven by Stanley East Jr., 22, of 224 Draper St., was struck in the rear by a car driven by Stephen D. Terrell, 27, Bloomingburg, at the Elm and Cedar street intersection at 2:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Slight damage was reported to East's motorcycle and there were no injures.

A Fayette County man was forced to steer his car into a tree to prevent a collision with oncoming traffic when his brakes failed at 1 p.m. Wednesday on the Oakland Avenue bridge, city police reported.

Robert W. Thompson, 27, was uninjured in the mishap. His car was slightly damaged.

An accident in the Borden Burger parking lot involving cars driven by David R. Parker, 19, London, and Lillian F. Penn, 41, New Vienna, occurred at 12:02 p.m. Wednesday. City police reported slight damage to the Penn auto.

A car owned by Delbert G. West, 637 Bellaire Ave., incurred slight damage when struck in the rear by an unidentified driver, while parked at Washington Square Plaza, Columbus Avenue, between 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday police reported.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Impeachment is a matter which weighs heavily on the minds of many Americans today. Because I may one day have to vote on this most serious issue should the House Judiciary Committee report out articles of impeachment, I have refrained, and will continue to refrain, from making any comments or judgments on it until all the facts are in.

What I will not refrain from commenting on, however, is the irresponsible and deplorable manner in which a lot of the facts and fabrications considered behind the closed doors of committee hearings are being leaked to the press. This is a travesty of justice and the perpetrators of these leaks, at the very least, should not be permitted to continue in their positions on the committee staff. After all, Charles Colson was prosecuted, convicted and sentenced to prison for the very same thing.

THE COMMITTEE has been conducting this phase of its impeachment investigation in closed session primarily because the material involved is often relevant to other cases either in court now or pending court action. If the material were to be made public, it would jeopardize these cases and the whole issue of fairness by which we solidly base our judicial system.

Furthermore, the evidence being leaked is selective in nature and not often accurate, nor are the sources totally impeccable. For example, one aide to a committee member, who certainly has made his opposition to the President known many times over, is the author of several memos about evidence damaging to the President. Yet, this same aide was also on the campaign staff of Senator McGovern during the 1972 presidential elections when Watergate occurred. One could infer that there is a possiblity of bias on the part of the person interpreting the evidence, but the trouble is, whether they are accurate or not, the memos he wrote receive almost instant authenticity and credibility once they hit the news media. Few, if any, have the proper means of verifying them, too.

What I strongly object to is the double standard this also involves. Here we have people involved in the prosecution of others for abusing the duties and responsibilities of a particular office, yet they are doing the exact same thing. Where is there own sense of ethics that they would peddle secret testimony or evidence on such a highly sensitive and critical national matter as the impeachment of the President of the United States? It is time the staff members involved in the Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings also take an oath of secrecy as the committee members have done. They should then be discharged from their duties if they break it.

I DO NOT consider this a minor matter. Nor do I think the press has acted in any commendable way by publishing these leaks. Some headline mongers have used the argument of the "public's right to know" without so much as a thought to the equally important "rights of the accused". Considering the implications of the Judiciary Committee's task, responsible reporting and discretion certainly would have been the better part of valor.

Eventually, the public will know the truth, and I believe we are ever coming nearer to the time when we will have all the facts and when we will have an end to Watergate and the terrible problems it has caused. The investigation of the wrong doings should not be turned into a witch hunt or a lynch mob, nor should the constitutionally based impeachment process be belittled and degraded by such shoddy activities. Continued leaks from the Judiciary Committee until its hearings are opened to the public are not only grossly unfair to the President who is under investigation for possible impeachment, but also to the entire country whose future hangs heavily in the balance.

Taft blasts Gov. Gilligan on flooding

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Warren County communities continued cleanup operations in the aftermath of weekend floods and U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, chided Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan for not yet declaring the communities a disaster area.

"At this point in time," Taft said in a release from his Washington office, "delaying each succeeding day only increases the loss to individuals who have suffered damage.

"I am urging the governor to ask for President Nixon's declaration of a disaster based on preliminary information and will seek the earliest possible Presidential declaration and consideration," said Taft.

Officials in Franklin, where a levee burst flooding 104 homes, hoped to have the levee repaired today.

In Lebanon, city officials predicted restoration of full electric power today. Floods damaged the municipal power company.

About half the city of 8,200 was without power after the Saturday storm which dumped 7.2 inches of rain on the area.

The city has been using portable generators plus temporary lines from the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. Part of an alternate power plant has been restored, but City Manager Charles Guard estimated it would take a month or two to repair the main plant.

Taft said Gilligan could proceed on the basis of partial information compiled by federal disaster agencies, which estimated $2.3 million damage as a result of the weekend storms.

He said enough information has been gathered for the Small Business Adminstration to grant funds.

Nostalgia hits hard facts

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Toledo's bid to revive a couple of nostalgic forms of transportation is having trouble getting on the track.

The Toledo, Lake Erie & Western Railway has put a diesel on in place of its ancient steam engine, for use on excursion trips. The railroad said the diesel will do the job while repairs are made to leaky flues on the steam engine.

And the Waterfront Electric Railway, Inc., a nonprofit railway planning to operate an electric trolley along the waterfront, says its trolley apparently is sitting on a dock in Portugal.

The railway said bought the trolley from the city of Oporto, Portugal, but the shipper in Oporto has had trouble getting space on a Great Lakes-bound ship.

The longest hunger strike recorded was one of 94 days by nine inmates of Cork Prison, Ireland, from Aug 11 to Nov. 12, 1920.

Senior Citizens band wins award

There is rhythm after 60!

Is there rhythm after 60?

The Senior Citizens of Fayette County proved that's when it really begins, by taking the first place trophy in the LeSourdsville Lake Amusement Park talent contest, last week.

Twenty of the 39 participants in the trip to Lesourdsville Lake comprised the band. All of their instruments were homemade and their outfits consisted of meatcutter hats donated by Neil Helfrich, of Helfrich's Super Market and red scarves fashioned from red cloth they had purchased.

Before the band stole the show and walked away with the trophy during the talent contest at 1:30 p.m., there were games to play from 10 a.m. until noon, then a lunch to eat and dancing in the ballroom.

Floyd Dowler, 92, performed a specialty dance number with Cora Fultz, 74, and Pauline Richardson performed a solo dance number. The dance numbers were accompanied by the band.

Dowler was selected as the recipient of the Lesourdsville Lake Amusement Park "Oldest Man 1974" trophy.

U.S. taxes may hurt lottery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— John Kirkland, executive director of the Ohio Lottery, says federal gambling tax regulations could cost the state 10 per cent of its lottery revenue and create problems for the Lottery Commission.

If the state has to meet the federal regulations, $12 million of the expected annual lottery receipts of $120 million would go for taxes.

Kirkland said Wednesday Ohio has joined eight other states in fighting the Internal Revenue Service regulations.

He said problems could arise if the 9,000 lottery ticket sales agents have to buy gambling licenses.

There might be problems "especially in large supermarkets where technically each clerk that sells tickets would have to be licensed," the director said.

Federal law requires owners of games of chance to pay 10 per cent of the receipts in excise taxes, and those who operate the games must buy annual $50 gambling stamps.

Representatives of Ohio and the other states met earlier this week with IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander in Washington. Alexander has said that state lotteries, as they are now structured, come under the federal gambling laws.

Woman fights to save homestead

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

WAYNE, W. Va. (AP) — Ethel Carson says she has given up on the federal government and has begun relying solely on God to save her family homestead.

"I'm just praying that God will keep their hands off me until He finds me another place to go to," the 66-year-old widow said as she sat on the porch of the old frame farmhouse her father built at the turn of the century.

Mrs. Carson lives on Miller's Fork Road in rural Wayne County.

It's a land of overgrown fields and weed-choked driveways leading to houses no longer there. The road is rutted. Humped groundhogs laze boldly along the roadway and a passing automobile sends scores of rabbits springing off in every direction.

Once scores of farm families lived along the road, but no longer. Almost everyone has left, except for Mrs. Carson, Pearl Blankenship—a widow who lives down the road and is in the process of moving out— and a few others.

The Miller's Fork exodus began three years ago when the federal government came in and began condemnation proceedings in preparation for the Beech Fork Lake project.

"They're all gone now," Mrs. Carson observed one day last week. She grew up on Miller's Fork, left when she was 18 and returned nine years ago to take care of her aged father. "And them federals have told me to leave, too, three different times. Now they say I've got to be gone by July 1st."

Mrs. Carson said she accepted the government's final offer of $15,000 for her house and surrounding six-acre bottom, but that more than $2,000 of that money went for attorneys' fees and her father's funeral expenses.

"Now I've just got $13,000 left and I can't find a place for that," she said. "I'd leave if they'd treat me right but I can't find no place for $13,000. I can't go into debt, all I got coming in is $111 a month from Social Security.

"The government people tell me to get out and move into one of them projects but I've got to have some land for a garden. That's food, you know."

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office at Huntington said of all the land condemnation cases his office had handled throughout southern West Virginia, Mrs. Carson's was one of the most perplexing.

"We've never had a situation that's gone beyond a writ of assistance," he said. "But sooner or later we're going to have to take her out bodily. Right now we're trying to get her son to reason with her."

Back on Miller's Fork Mrs. Carson sat on her porch and fanned away a fly.

"Some of those govenment men told me they'd set me out in the yard," she said, flicking at the insect. "And I told them go right ahead. I told them I can die and go to heaven out in the yard as well as anyplace else ... and believe me, that's my goal."

OFBF sets campaign on prices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation has launched a campaign to fight low farm prices by identifying retail stores charging the highest food prices.

The theory is that if retail prices can be forced down, consumption will be stimulated, pumping more money into farm prices.

The plan was formulated at a meeting here of all of the state's 86 county farm bureau presidents.

Mike Lafferty, a spokesman for the farm bureau, said the county officials agreed that "farm prices have been down long enough, retail prices have been up long enough and it's time they got back in line."

Local farm bureaus will begin policing retail stores, identifying those with the highest and lowest prices and any found engaging in price gouging, Lafferty said.

The survey reports will be available in county offices for public inspection, either in person or by telephone.

Lafferty said it was possible that the survey results might be published if the initial plan doesn't result in a drop in retail prices.

Lafferty said the prices paid farmers for their products have dropped 12 per cent since the first of the year, while retail prices have risen.

Jehovah's Witnesses open Cincy meet

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Some 32,000 delegates from Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia are expected for the opening of a four-day convention of Jehovah's Witnesses today at Riverfront Stadium.

The assembly, called "Divine Purpose," is one of 85 such gatherings planned by the sect this summer in the United States and Canada.

Day Camps set

4-H Roundup

By CATHY WHITE
4-H Program Assistant

Most of you may think that this is a busy time for 4-H because of the fair coming up next month. That isn't the only reason 4-H is busy this time of year Another big event is coming up - 4-H Day Camp 1974 is just around the corner for all youth 9-11 years old.

There will be three camps this year lasting eight days each. The first camp will be at Good Shepherd Church, 1003 N. North St., July 8-11 and July 15-18. The last two camps will both be at Eastside Elementary School. One will take place July 29 - August 1 and August 5 - 8, and the other will be August 12 - 15 and August 19 - 22. The time for each day of camp for every Day Camp will be from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The cost of Day Camp will be 50 cents per child for the entire eight days of Day Camp. There will be a discount if there are several children in the family. A morning snack, lunch and medical insurance will be provided for each camper.

A choice of a mini 4-H project consisting of bicycle, sewing, cooking, or woodworking will be offered to each camper. Along with his or her chosen project such things as games, physical fitness, movies, ecology and music will be offered to all campers; not to mention the special programs and visitors coming to Day Camp this year.

Any additional information about Day Camp 1974 can be obtained by calling the Fayette County Extension Office (335-1150) or stopping in at the office, 319 S. Fayette St. Just ask for one of the camp directors. They are Janelle Donahue and Cathy White.

NINETY-TWO AND STILL DANCING — Floyd Dowler, recipient of the LeSourdsville Lake Amusement Park "Oldest Man 1974" trophy, did a specialty dance number with Cora Fultz, 74, and also performed in the Fayette County Senior Citizens band, which took first place in the talent show, recently at LeSourdsville Lake.

Norman holds Astros to five hits

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Fred Norman likes those pressure situations like Wednesday night's 9-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Since the Reds scored six of their runs in the ninth inning, it was more of a pressure situation for the 5-foot-8 lefty, who improved his record to 8-5.

"I do like the pressure," said Norman after holding the Astros to five hits. "I wasn't getting the ball where I wanted it tonight and it was a matter of concentration. Pressure makes you concentrate."

Norman's ground ball in the fifth inning and Astros' left fielder Bob Watson's solo home run in the fourth made for a 1-1 deadlock until Dave Concepcion's home run put Cincinnati ahead for good in the seventh.

Third baseman Dan Driessen made it 3-1 in the eighth with another home run, and the bottom fell out for Houston in the ninth inning.

Driessen's homer and a walk to Merv Rettenmund chased Houston starter and loser Don Wilson, and two Astros' relievers, Mike Cosgrove and Fred Scherman, were treated harshly by the Reds in the ninth.

Cosgrove issued three hits and two walks before leaving and Scherman wild-pitched home a run and walked in another run with the bases loaded.

Former Astro Joe Morgan doubled home two runs and Rettenmund and Darrel Chaney each singled home runs.

"I've had to live with pressure all my life because of my size," Norman said. "Coaches have told me all along that I'd have to go twice as hard because I'm small."

"But I think the best thing I've got going for me now is confidence. I think I can get any one of four pitches over at any time.

"I let them (opposing hitters) chase me. I have so many pitches that they have to seek me out."

Elsewhere in the NL, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Atlanta Braves 5-4; the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 12 innings; the Montreal Expos blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates pounded the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2, and the San Diego Padres dropped the San Francisco Giants 4-0.

The smaller the lead, the better Norman thinks he pitches.

It was a pressure-packed game until the Reds' big bats roughed up two Houston pitchers in the ninth.

Dave Concepcion's first homer since May 12 snapped a 1-1 deadlock in the seventh inning. An inning later, Dan Driessen belted his second homer of the season for a 3-1 lead.

Norman, who struck out six and walked one, raised his record to 8-5 and lowered his earned run average to 2.18.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 2

Jim Rooker got some runs so Jim Rooker did what Jim Rooker thinks he can do—win ballgames.

"I've had 14 starts and I really think I could easily have 10 wins," said Rooker, 4-6, who threw a three-hitter past the Cardinals. "I don't think it's my luck, I think it's the club's luck.

Expos 2, Phillies 0

Steve Rogers' sinker finally was "working beautifully tonight," he said. He finally got his eighth victory after six straight losses with a four-hit shutout over Philadelphia.

Dodgers 5, Braves 4

Relievers are supposed to save victories for the starters. But Mike Marshall has won the last five games the Dodgers have won, including the last two over Atlanta.

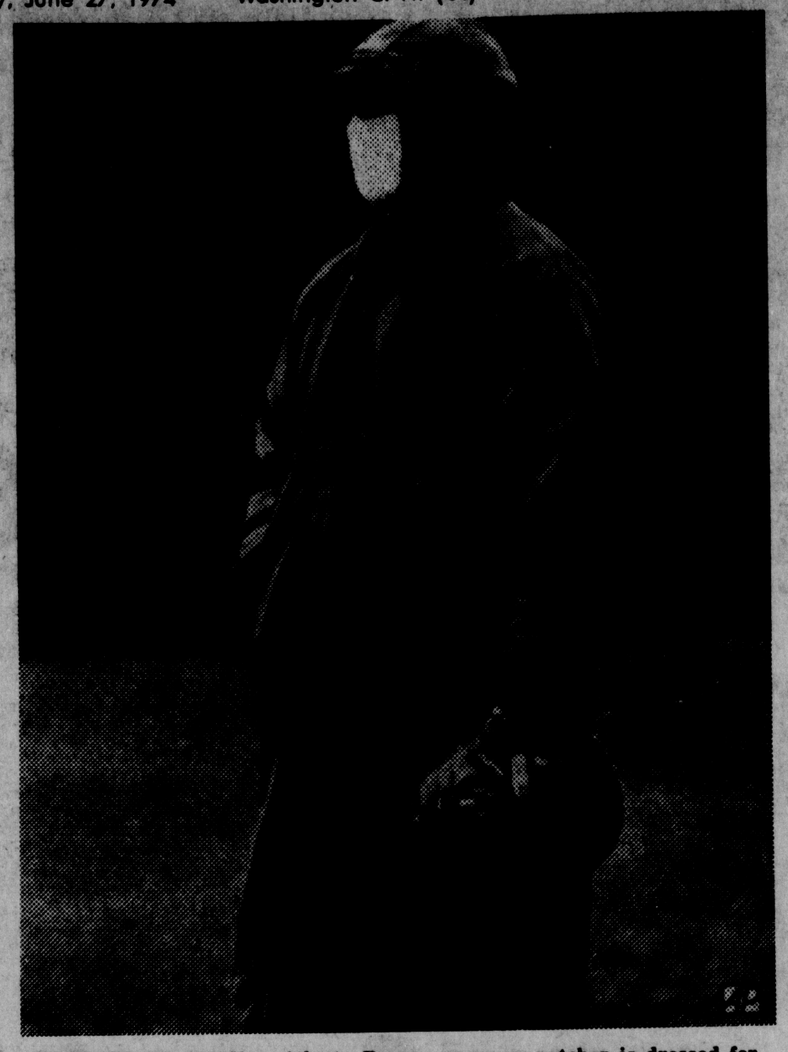
Mets 5, Cubs 4, 12 innings

The last time Jack Aker was a winning pitcher—last July 4 against the Philadelphia Phillies—he was wearing a Cubs uniform. This time the losers were Cubs.

Cleon Jones' 12th-inning single drove in pinch-runner John Milner, giving the Mets a sweep of their three-game set with Chicago.

Padres 4, agiants 0

Fred Kendall's three-run triple and Bill Greif's six-hitter sent the Giants down to their sixth straight defeat.



DRESSED TO PLAY — Atlanta Braves warm-up catcher is dressed for cold, rainy weather during game in Chicago.

Jim Reeves signs with Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Reeves, a 20-year-old outfielder for the University of Texas, signed Wednesday night with the Cincinnati Reds and will report Saturday to Tampa of the Florida State League.

Reeves, selected fourth by Cincinnati in the free agent draft, signed after his team completed play in the college world series.

Cincinnati has now signed 22 of 25 players selected and 14 of the top 15 selections.

Angels blanked on two hits by Oakland's Dave Hamilton

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Dave Hamilton is finding his touch, but he's still suspicious about it. Bill Lee is losing his, but isn't worried.

Hamilton has been assured by Oakland Manager Alvin Dark that he's part of the A's starting rotation. If Dark needed any assurance that Hamilton belongs in it, he got it Wednesday, when the left-hander two-hit the California Angels 5-0.

Lee, the southpaw ace of Boston's staff, was pounded for 11 hits by Milwaukee, but he didn't seem too concerned, and neither did Manager Darrell Johnson after the Brewers' 7-1 rout of the Red Sox.

In Wednesday's other American League games, Kansas City edged Chicago 2-1 in 12 innings, Baltimore nipped Detroit 5-4, Cleveland beat New York 3-2 and Minnesota mauled Texas 9-4.

Hamilton, with the first shutout of his major league career, raised his record to 5-1.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 1

"He threw all right, but he made some bad pitches," Johnson said of Lee. "He's been making some mistakes lately and also has been bothered by a blister, but he'll be all right ...."

And Lee said with a shrug: "I had good stuff, but it just wasn't in the cards for me to win. I didn't have that fine control."

Ed Sprague had it. He checked Boston on four hits, including Carlton Fish's double and Rico Petrocelli's single in the fifth.

Royals 2, White Sox 1

Paul Splittorff went all 12 innings against Chicago, giving up just six hits.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Ross Grimsley pitched a five-hitter for Baltimore—not exactly the kind to write home about, though. Two of the Tigers' hits were homers by Mickey Stanley and Ed Brinkman.

Fortunately for the Orioles, Paul Blair, Don Baylor and Jim Fuller belted homers, too. But it took Andy Etchebarren's tie-breaking single in the ninth inning to beat Detroit.

Indians 3, Yankees 2

Right-hander Steve Arlin, acquired from San Diego about two weeks ago, blanked the Yankees until the sixth, when consecutive singles by Gene Michael, Elliott Maddox and Chris Chambliss chased him.

Twins 9, Rangers 4

Tony Oliva drove in four runs, three of them with a homer that highlighted the Twins' 14-hit attack.

Youth leagues

Girls softball

Center Pizza and Weekly Advertisers came up with softball victories in the Girls' Softball League, Wednesday evening. Center Pizza defeated Jeff Royal Blue 24-20, as Nancy Binzel cracked a home run and a triple for the winners. Advertisers downed Jeff Royal Blue 15-6. Terri Williams was the winning pitcher.

Washington Little League

While Wilson Field is still being readied for Major League play, the Minor League continued its action with Sagars handing the Elks a 9-6 loss and Bumgarners stopping 1st Federal 9-7.

Seven errors proved very costly to the Elks. Ken Eddlemon, who was the winning pitcher, struck out 10 batters.

Although Bumgarners only collected three hits, 1st Federal collected a 9-7 triumph. Tony Marti doubled twice for the losers. Kearns was the winning pitcher.

Strike may eliminate NFL exhibition games

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike that could eliminate the National Football League exhibition season appeared probable today after NFL owners and players reached a major impasse in new contract negotiations.

The NFL Players Association has said the union will strike Monday unless its 63 demands, including the so-called "freedom demands," are met.

The contract talks were broken off Wednesday after two hours of discussions, midway through a scheduled three-day meeting that began Tuesday. Federal mediator James Scearce said the negotiations had reached a point "where we cannot be constructive."

Scearce said the two parties have agreed to meet upon his call but both owners and players agreed the strike will take place Monday, two days before San Diego is to open the first of the 26 NFL training camps.

"The gauntlet is down," declared Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, NFLPA president. "There is going to have to be a power play. We're going to have to conduct a strike."

The players' union declined to estimate how long the impending strike might last but said the organization planned to set up picket lines around the annual College All-Star game in Chicago July 26 and the training sites of the two teams involved, including the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins.

John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, said the owners attempted to explain Wednesday the report made public several weeks ago showing that each team made a pretax profit of $940,000 last season. The union claims the owners made approximately $2.3 million apiece.

After the morning session, the two sides broke for lunch. When they returned, however, Scearce met with the players after talking to the owners and said it would be better to recess the negotiations.

Russia—U.S. track competition slated

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — International socializing will turn into on-the-field competition Friday when United States and Russian teen-agers begin seeking track and field victories for themselves and their countries.

The competition is restricted to men 19 or younger and women 18 or younger.

It will be third annual junior meet involving the men. The Soviets won the first meet in 1972 at Sacramento, Calif., 124-108, and the United States won last year at Odessa, USSR, 123-108.

Reiber's return ruined by three unearned runs

Post 25 hands Portsmouth 3-2 win

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

PORTSMOUTH — Although Randy Reiber finally made his long-awaited debut on the mound for Post 25; it was the Portsmouth jinx which won out in the end. Taking a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the seventh frame. Portsmouth scored one run with the aid of a hotly contested balk and came up with another in the bottom of the eighth frame for a 3-2 victory.

By scoring a run in both the seventh and eighth frames, it maked the third time Portsmouth had snatched victory from the grasp of Court House. In the last trip to Portsmouth, Post 25 also carried leads into the final inning; but they came out on the losing note in 7-6 and 5-4 decisions.

Once again, the winning run was scored by means of an error. Tied 2-2 going into the bottom of the eighth inning, Reiber walked Barry Sparks. However, Sparks was thrown out when Brian Bays hit into a fielder's choice.

Singles by Randy Ratcliff and Andy Vetter filled the bases; but in an attempt to throw Ratcliff out at second, Post 25 catcher Paul England threw the ball wildly into centerfield and the winning run crossed the plate.

Court House had taken a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the final inning. With one out and the score tied 1-1, England smashed a curve ball over the left-center field wall for a solo home run.

Post 25's lead was short-lived. In the bottom of the seventh inning, Portsmouth's Mike Stapleton singled to center and Jeff Miller came in to run for him. Jeff Cattle sacrificed him to second and Miller advanced to third on a questionable balk. Scott Sturgill singled to right field to score Cottle with the tying run.

Despite jamming his shoulder early in the season, Reiber was in top form in his debut on the mound. Yielding a pair of hits in both the seventh and eighth innings, Reiber gave up a total of six hits and no earned runs during the night. He struck out eight batters and walked just two.

Portsmouth starter Dave Bush lasted seven innings. He gave up a total of two runs and five hits. Bush struck out 11 in five innings and walked seven. Relief pitcher Bob Adkins picked up the victory, as he struck out two batters.

Portsmouth took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. After being hit by a pitch, Sparks was advanced to second on a sacrifice by John Newberry. A single to left field by Ratcliff, scored Sparks.

With Portsmouth leading 1-0, Washington Court House came up with a run in the third frame. With one out, first baseman Allan Coppock reached base on an error. Walks to Reiber and Tom Riley loaded the bases with two outs. Second baseman Mark Scherer delivered a single to tie the score.

For the remainder of the game, Reiber and Bush were locked in a pitcher's duel. Although he did not strike out anyone and ran into control problems in the first couple of innings, Bush finally settled down and struck out 11 batters in the final five innings.

Saturday afternoon, Post 25, which is now 3-5 in South Central Ohio League play, travels to Chillicothe Post 62 for a 1 p.m. doubleheader. On Sunday, Hillsboro arrives to the Washington Senior High diamond for a 2 p.m. doubleheader.

Archeological treasures found in Greek Museum's stock rooms

By PAUL ANASTASIADES

ATHENS (AP) — Greece's National Archeological Museum, the world's richest in ancient Greek and Roman art, has discovered further treaures under its very nose—in fact, in its huge basement.

In a lecture given by Nicholas Yalouris, the museum's director, it was revealed that "wondrous archeological pieces of art, almost priceless, have been discovered in the basement of our museum."

Yalouris explained that, following quiet excavations over the past 25 years in the museum basement stock rooms, he decided to reveal that a rich collection of antiquities was discovered, ranging from pre-historic to post-Roman times and including stone, metal and clay works.

He said they were found "in layers stacked on top of each other," some crates with antiquities still unopened since being taken from their excavation sites in the 19th and earlier 20th centuries.

Paintings, charts or serial numbers explaining the origins of the antiquities had been destroyed by insects and rats, or faded by time. In many cases the museum had the original antiquity on exhibit, but with a part of it broken off and missing—the head of a warrior, for example. The missing parts, which when added sharply increase the over-all value of the work, were often found among "the pieces left downstairs."

Many of the antiquities unearthed from the museum basement were from the museum basement were from the Mycenean period, including an elephant ivory model of a war galleon and a warrior's helmet.

There was also armored plating for a warrior's heel found in a Mycenean tomb, a revelation which added further credibility to the "Achilles heel" concept and the belief that a warrior was completely neutralized when wounded in the hell. The heel shielding in the museum cell is the oldest in the world yet to be discovered, Yalouris said. An ornately engraved ivory comb and a compass further revealed the Mycenean finer tastes in life.

Amidst the immeasurable treasures found—copper and stone seals and vases of 15th century B.C. depicting Greek gods and legends, jewelry, house ornaments, weaponry—one item stood out above all else.

It was the engraving of the head of a sea monster dating back to the 5th century B.C., which after extensive matching was found to belong to the western pediment of the Parthenon on the Acropolic—the country's No. 1 world-renowned archeological gem.

Engraving of the sea monster's back and body had already been found and preserved at the Acropolis museum, and when put together fit under the feet of the Goddess Amphitrite, who can be seen on the Parthenon's upper western pediment.

In the spring and fall, hordes of students crowd the more popular temple grounds and gardens of Kyoto. Tourist buses jamn narrow streets.

In 1972, commercial honey production in the United States reached 106,050,000 pounds, up 13 per cent from 1971.

Meat quota unlikely to resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are strong signals that the Nixon administration soon will decide against reimposing meat import quotas to help U.S. cattlemen and will cite figures showing shipments from foreign suppliers are dropping substantially of their own accord.

Meantime, there still is no apparent breakthrough in negotiations to let U.S. cattle and beef begin entering Canada, a market that has been shut off since April 9 because of Canadian fears that some products might be tainted with DES, a controversial livestock growth hormone.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Bell was dispatched last week to New Zealand, Australia and Japan to check on the foreign meat situation, particularly on reports that foreign supplies were being held back from the U.S. and other world markets.

Bell reportedly said in Australia that he felt the United States was not likely to reimpose beef import quotas nor insist on "voluntary restraint" agreements to hold down shipments the remainder of this year.

Assistant Secretary Clayton K. Yeutter told a reporter Wednesday he believed Bell had found assurance that Australian meat shipments were being reduced substantially. He said Bell had filed earlier reports showing similar cutbacks in New Zealand.

Together the two countries provide about 70 per cent of the quota-type meat, mostly low grade beef, imported by the U.S.

Earlier, Agriculture Secrrtary Earl L. Butz had estimated total imports this calendar year would be a record 1.575 billion pounds.

But last week Butz said he expected that figure to be shaved at least 200 million pounds when new figures are available. A new estimate based for the most part on Bell's findings will be issued soon, possibly this week.

The Canadian situation remains sticky. Congress and the administration are caught up in a swirl of efforts to help U.S. livestock producers recover from a severe financial crunch and want to reopen the $100 million Canadian beef market.

Yeutter said he believed, however, the Canadians want to delay settling the dispute until after their national elections July 8. He said talks are continuing in the administration on possible counter measures, including the possibility of curbing Canada's exports to the United States.

"Certainly, we would rather resolve the matter by negotiations," Yeutter said. "But if that's impossible, we certainly need to look at all the options and that is one of them."

If melted at a uniform rate, the Antarctic icecap would yield about six million cubic miles of water — enough to feed the Mississippi River for 50,000 years, all United States rivers for 17,000 years or all rivers in the world for 750 years.

Opening lead - two of spades.

A defender seldom deliberately paints a false picture of his hand. Bridge is a partnership game, and to transmit false messages to partner would strike at the very core of successful defense.

But there are isolated hands where you don't care a tinker's dam whether partner is fooled or not, and in such cases it may be possible to perform wondrous things by deceiving partner. Here is such a case.

Assume you're East and partner leads a spade on which declarer plays the eight from dummy. Undoubtedly the normal play is the ten, forcing declarer's ace.

If you now put yourself in declarer's shoes for a moment, you can see that he will inevitably make six hearts. He draws three rounds of trumps, cashes four clubs discarding a spade from dummy, and takes a diamond finesse. When it succeeds, he is home free. His only loser is a spade.

Now let's go back to trick one and play the king of spades instead of the ten! This play may make your partner unhappy, for he will think South has the A-Q-10, but his grief will be only temporary.

When you play the king, declarer is almost certain to think your partner led from Q-10-x-x, and, if he does, he is sure to go down. He will draw trumps and sooner or later play a spade to the J-9, expecting to establish a spade trick and render the diamond finesse unnecessary.

It is almost inconceivable that he would first cash four clubs in order to discard a spade from dummy, because that would compel him to rely on a diamond finesse for the slam.

By playing the king you offer declarer the illusory chance to discard a diamond from dummy on the fourth club. South is almost certain to avail himself of this offer, and thus encompass his own destruction.

Close Look at Boxing

Our 15-year-old boy is big and strong and an excellent athlete. His high school coach wants him to try out for the boxing team. Because I strongly object, it has caused much unpleasantness in our home. How do you feel about this sport?

Mrs. H.B., Ill.

Dear Mrs. B.:

It is difficult for me to be totally objective about boxing.

The so-called manly art of boxing is fraught with possible dangers. In amateur and professional fights noses are broken, jaws are fractured and cauliflower ears are not uncommon.

The boxing literature is filled with evidence of permanent brain damage, the result of hemorrhages in the brain, following a fight.

There will be those, of course, who will deny that this is a dangerous sport and say that it is no more hazardous than others. This may be true, but in many contact sports head gear and protective devices can prevent injuries.

If the point system were used exclusively in professional and amateur boxing, then protective headgear could be worn to insure complete safety.

Whenever I ask my doctor what the prognosis is about my condition, he seems to avoid the answer. If the diagnosis can be made, why not the prognosis, too?

Mr. S.M., Wash.

Dear Mr. M.:

Diagnosis is a very specific conclusion which the doctor arrives at after a complete evaluation of the patient's condition.

Laboratory tests, X-rays and a physical examination are made in individual cases. Complete evaluation pinpoints the cause of disease.

Prognosis is a prediction of how a disease will progress and how soon it might terminate.

Doctors often avoid forecasting specific details about how long a condition will last.

In some instances, of course, it is possible for the doctor to anticipate time with a reasonable amount of certainty. In other instances, it may be impossible to predict the course of an illness or its duration.

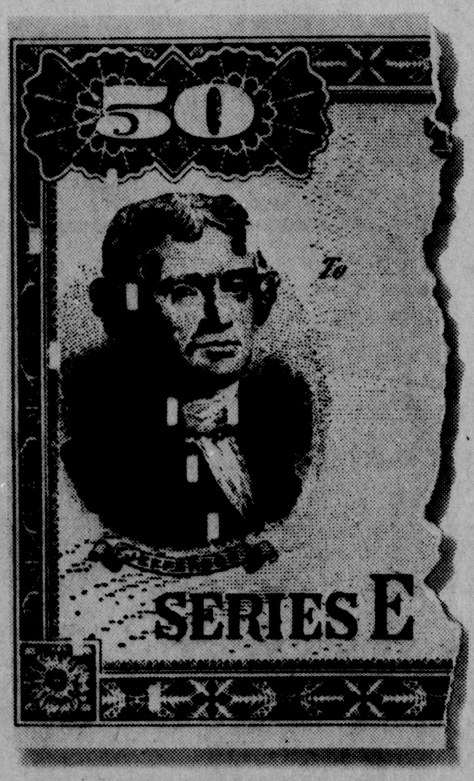
THE BETTER HALF — By Barnes

"Oh, oh, what are you mad about now?"

Steal me. Burn me. Throw me away. I'm still yours.



Once you bring me home, I'm yours forever.

Even if I'm burned. Or lost. Or stolen.

If you look for me and can't find me, just report it. And you'll get me back, as good as new.

And remember: I'll never break your heart. Or leave you stranded in the tight spots.

I'll always be there when you need me.

And that ought to make you feel pretty secure.

Blue Cross to fight new rules

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There appears to be little doubt that the Department of Insurance's proposed rules for state regulation of the seven Ohio Blue Cross plans will be challenged in court.

Testimony opposing and supporting the rules was presented at a departmental hearing Wednesday.

Blue Cross spokesmen labeled them unconstitutional. Backers said Blue Cross had cozy relationships with hospitals and failed to respond to the needs of subscribers.

Insurance Director Kenneth E. DeShetler, who conducted the hearings, said a review of the testimony would be made in the next few weeks.

Twenty days will be given for submission of proposed changes and additions. The rules are expected to be filed within 30 days.

"That is if the Blue Cross systems don't go to court trying to stop us," said Robert V. McDavitt, public relations director for the department.

Kiehner Johnson, an attorney for Blue Cross, said the proposed rules violated constitutional requirements that a state agency could assume only powers given it by the legislature.

Johnson said attempts to regulate contracts between Blue Cross and hospitals was "an unconstitutional exercise of legislative authority that takes away the right of private corporations to manage their own affairs."

The chief witness for the department was Sylvia Law, a professor of law at New York University and author of the book, "Blue Cross: What Went Wrong?"

The insurance department hosted Miss Law and her book later in the day at a downtown hotel. The press was invited by a department news release.

Miss Law contended, upon questioning by DeShetler, that Blue Cross should keep "an arms length" from the hospitals it serves.

One of the provisions in the rules is that two-thirds of the trustees of Blue Cross be comprised of subscribers. Miss Law said subscribers went unnoticed in Blue Cross operations.

"Blue Cross plans should be controlled by the subscribers, not the hospitals," she said. She suggested purchasing agents for hospitals be required to get competitive bids for insurance plans.

"The issue at stake is not just controlling hospital costs," she said. "It is really a question of democracy..."

Earl Kammer of Cincinnati, president of Blue Cross of Southwest Ohio, said the proposed rules ignored what Blue Cross had done was an attempt to "magnify the deficiencies."

Jeff Masons honor Owens

JEFFERSONVILLE — To live 65 years is an accomplishment in itself, but to be a Mason 65 years, having joined at the age of 21, is really something!

Justin L. Owens was honored in his home in Jeffersonville Wednesday for doing just that.

Owens has been a member of the Jeffersonville Lodge No. 468 F&AM during his 65-year membership.

Owens attained the degree of master Mason in 1909 and became master of the Jeffersonville Lodge in 1926. He has a son, Robert Owens, who became master of the Jeffersonville Lodge in 1946 and a grandson, David Owens, who is an active Mason and another grandson, Richard Owens, who is presently pursuing his degree work with the lodge.

Justin Owens has received gold pins for 50 years, 60 years and now, 65 years of active involvement in the Masons. He still attends the semi-monthly lodge meetings which require him to climb three flights of stairs.

The Jeffersonville Lodge has two other 65-year members. They are Glenn Brock and Fred W. Conner. The lodge itself, founded in 1873, is in its 101st year of existence.

Authorities look other way as beach nudity increases

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — The lifeguard strolled out of his station 200 yards from the cresting waves, glanced around at about 200 naked men and women and sighed, "Yep, it's going to be a fun summer."

It has been that way all year for Randy Steigely, a guard for six years on the heavily used beach in this Los Angeles district. The guys and gals have been taking off their clothes and authorities have been looking the other way.

"We've told the police that if the activity is pure nudity and nothing else ... we don't feel there's any violation of state law and we have no desire to make arrests," said Asst. Los Angeles City Atty. Dave Perez.

Steigely, 23, said Wednesday that more than 10,000 bathers and sightseers flocked last Sunday to his stretch of Venice sands, a flat, open beach adjacent to a residential area.

"Yeah, it was wall-to-wall people from this station to that one, over there," he said, gesturing 400 yards north. "I'd say about 4,000 of 'em were naked."

An attractive 17-year-old girl, also sans clothing, said:

"I've always wanted to take my clothes off at the beach because I like the feeling. But where I'm from, Queens, N.Y., you wouldn't think of doing such a thing.

Car damaged

An unidentified male threw a can at a car driven by Sylvia June Jones, Old Chillicothe Road, as she drove from the Washington Square Plaza parking lot and onto Elm Street, at 3:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Washington C.H. police officers reported the incident caused the chrome stripping on the top of her car to come loose.
